KRUGER DRAFTS BOER DEMANDS.

CALLED ON BY CABINET.

News Reaches London That General Kitchener Intends to Push Campaign of Suppression in Africa.

WILL ISOLATE ALL PRISONERS.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—After a consultation with Fischer, Wessels, Wolmarans, and Leyds at a veritable Boer Cabinet meeting in the Hotel Scribe today, Kruger drew up a draft of a preliminary proposition to be submitted first to Minister Delcasse, although the demand is for intervention and is addressed to President Loubet.

Dr. Leyds at once left the hotel with the document and drove to the Quay d'Orsay, where he was immediately received by Minister Delcasse, with whom he had a long conference.

Delcasse Not So Cordial.

Minister Delcasse, while not willing to take the lead in any intervention, informed Dr. Leyds that in accord with the view of Russia, France was willing to listen to any demands to act as a passive mediator, as this attitude had been forced on the Cabinet by Loubet.

Henri Rochefort now proposes an international assemblage of journalists of the world to map out a plan of campaign in favor of the Boers, to raise funds, and to charter ships to carry volunteers to the Transvaal. To avoid the spying of the governments Rochefort suggests The Hague as a fit meeting place, as it will be under the protection of the Dutch Queen.

Will Attend Official Reception.

Kruger has decided while in Paris to visit the Hotel de Ville, where an official reception will be prepared, the date being set for Wednesday afternoon.

Today the Boer President visited the exposition and was received by Director Picard and his staff. He ascended the Eiffel tower, which seemed to astonish him, and then went to the Boer farm in the Transvaal pavilion. He was much moved by the sight of the farm and touched by the tributes of homage he saw on all sides.

Mr. Kruger stopped and gazed at his own bust, which was profusely decorated with flowers and other tributes of admiration. Behind the bust was a Bible, lying open, and Mr. Kruger read a verse from it. He afterwards examined the Boer farm.

He saluted the statue of Villebois Mareuil, who died in the Transvaal.

Boer Chief in Good Health.

The Boer President is in good health and entirely recovered from the fatigue of his voyage, and is so encouraged by the enthusiasm of his reception that he appears several years younger.

All the French Ministers have now called on Kruger, who this afternoon in return sent a card to each member of the Cabinet by M. van den Hoeven.

Manifestation Is Checked.

Bands of Kruger enthusiasts attempted to start an anti-English manifestation today and marched down the streets shouting, "Down with Chamberlain!" "Long live Kruger!"

By order of the Premier the police charged the crowd and seventeen arrests were made. It is now denied that Morinaud will ask the Chamber to vote an expression of sympathy for Kruger, as Waldeck-Rousseau has begged him to desist, declaring there would be terrible consequences from such a measure.

The Premier really fears a conflict with England. On the other hand, the Presse says: "France was never so civilly treated by the English as now when she has asserted her right to acclaim Kruger as she pleases. This should convince the government of the folly of Europe's trembling policy before England."

Kitchener Shows No Mercy.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Details of Kitchener's plan of operations against the Boers are cabled by the Daily Mail's Pietermaritzburg correspondent, who says the new colonies are to be divided into circumscribed areas and a mobile force apportioned to each, with infantry, to keep open lines of communication. Ox wagons are to be dispensed with and only light cape carts employed to carry ammunition. All Boers and neutrals captured are to be taken to the coast and kept there until the country is cleared. The work is expected to be long and arduous, lasting possibly for years, and certainly for months. The report that Lord Roberts has asked for 20,000 more regulars to relieve the volunteers and the yeomanry is believed to be quite probable.

Urges Stamping Out Rebellion.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Rt.-Hon. Robert William Hanbury, President of the Board of Agriculture, addressing his constituents at Preston this evening and referring to Mr. Kruger's complaint of "British barbarism," said: "This is no time for paltering with the dying embers of the Boer rebellion, for rebellion it now is, and it must be stamped out vigorously."

Steamer Goes for Roberts.

IRWIN DEFEATS $152,500 GRAB.

ROW MAY END IN COURT.

KALLIS AMONG THE MISSING.

President Irwin of the County board yesterday vetoed the $152,500 appropriation for the annual expenses of the seven Cook County towns. His opponents on the board, led by Commissioner Wright, raged and stormed, indulged in personal abuse, and finally refused to answer when the question of supporting the veto was put to a vote. But their struggles accomplished nothing. There were three yeas, Hoffman, Mack, and Irwin, the opposition remaining silent, and on these the veto was declared sustained. County Commissioner Kallis, who on Sunday night declared he would be present and uphold President Irwin, did not appear till after the question was settled.

According to D. D. Healy, the next move in the appropriation fight must be a legal one. The legality of the veto may be questioned in court or mandamus proceedings begun to force the payment of an appropriation to some one of the towns. The new board, which organizes next week, has no power to take up the matter.

Veto Message Is Bitter.

Both factions on the board went to the meeting prepared for a fight, and there was little delay in starting it. As soon as the session convened President Irwin directed that his veto message be read and put upon its passage. The message itself was not calculated to produce good feeling. In defense of his veto stand Mr. Irwin used such terms as "corrupt henchmen," "crews of legal highwaymen," "dirty politics," "robbery," and "waste of people's money." He said that "the town system in Chicago is a cesspool for corruption," and added that "it is an outrage that this community should support numerous crews of legal highwaymen who render no services whatever to the people and whose only claim to excessive salaries is the one fact that they are efficient workers in dirty politics."

Beer Issues a Challenge.

Before a vote could be taken on the veto disorder began. It is declared that Commissioner Wright and his followers had planned their tactics in advance. Commissioners Burke, Beer, and Carolan ably seconded their leader in keeping up a run of loud talk and noisy demonstrations. Commissioner Wright struggled to create an impression that the President was depriving him of the privilege he claimed to discuss the veto, and Commissioner Beer challenged the President to come down from his seat and undertake to put him out.

Then Commissioner Wright demanded to know whether the President had received from County Attorney Johnson an opinion on his power to veto these appropriations.

"That is my private business," Irwin replied, "and I will not furnish you with a copy of any opinion."

Commissioner Wright moved that the attorney be asked to furnish the board with a copy of his opinion, put the motion, declared it carried, and dispatched a messenger to the attorney's office.

Attorney Rules Against Irwin.

Within five minutes the messenger returned with a copy. Attorney Johnson's opinion in substance was that the President's vetoing powers did not include appropriations for the towns. He based his opinion on the ground that the appropriations are a tax levy and impose no liabilities on Cook County.

Then Commissioner Wright moved to place the veto on file. President Irwin declined to entertain the motion, insisting that the only vote that could or would be taken was on the veto itself. Whereupon the champion of the appropriation called on his followers not to answer the roll call, and thus make it appear that there was not a quorum present and voting. President Irwin here had an opportunity to apply the Reed rule, but did not. With the votes of Commissioners Hoffman, Mack, and Irwin the message went on record as having been sustained.

President Irwin's Veto Message.

President Irwin said in his veto:

"I return herewith without my approval the resolution passed by the Board of Cook County Commissioners whereby certain sums of money were authorized extended against certain towns in the County of Cook.

"My reason for this action is a simple one. It is because such allowance by the County board of any sum of money whatever for town purposes, under existing law, is a willful waste of the people's money and a vicious disregard of the rights of the taxpayers and property-owners of this great county. It is an outrage that this community must support numerous crews of legal highwaymen who render no service whatever to the people and whose only claim to excessive salaries is the one fact that they are efficient workers in the dirty politics that must needs be amply rewarded by fat jobs."

Healy Discusses the Meeting.

"Such tactics," said Mr. Healy, in speaking of the meeting, "will not stand in any court. The veto is sustained, and if the President's powers reach far enough it will stand. In any event, the towns are stopped from drawing the money until the courts say they can have it. That will bring the question to a legal test."

The disorder did not end with the appropriation question. President Irwin returned without his approval the claim of William Struckman for $8,750. During the discussion of this matter Commissioner Struckman stated that President Irwin had promised to assist in passing the claim. Irwin hotly denied this statement. A motion to pass the claim over President Irwin's disapproval was lost.

The turmoil spent itself in the midst of an effort by Commissioner Mack to get through a resolution instructing the Superintendent of Public Service not to indorse coal bills for the Dunning institution unless they were accompanied by the original bills of lading. In the midst of the argument the board adjourned until Saturday morning.

CITY POOL ROOMS CLOSED.

POLITICAL INFLUENCE DRIVES GAMBLING OUTSIDE LIMITS.

James O'Leary & Co. Will Open the "Santa Fe Turf Exchange" on the Line of That Road and "Bud" White Is to Run Another on the Alton—Police Pass the Word at Local Resorts Where Bets Are Made, but Handbooks Will Continue.

Political influence in the First Ward and other city districts where there is gambling on the races led to an order yesterday closing all these places and forcing the business outside the limits, where favorites will have a monopoly. Today James O'Leary & Co. open "The Santa Fé Turf Exchange" at a convenient point on the line of that road, and "Bud" White and his friends will open their "Turf Exchange" on the line of the Alton. Both gambling firms will run special trains for the benefit of their patrons, and the men who bet on horse races and prefer poolrooms to "hand books" will have to patronize either one of the "Turf Exchanges."

The arrangements for opening these "Turf Exchanges" have been going on for some time. O'Leary's is the more pretentious place and is expected to get the larger amount of the trade. They were not ready, however, until yesterday, and then their advertising cards were thrown broadcast and the betting public was told what trains it must take to reach the places where "commissions would be taken on all foreign races."

Local Rooms to Close.

The moment these arrangements were completed all local poolrooms were told they must close, and now the two "turf exchanges" in question can do business without any fear of competition. O'Leary, who is at the head of "The Santa Fé Turf Exchange," is a resident of the Twenty-ninth Ward, and has been mixed up in Town of Lake politics for some time. He is the close friend of Alderman Carey of the ward, who has always stood his good friend, and Alderman Carey has also been in many ways especially favored by the present city administration.

The completeness with which the city poolrooms were closed yesterday surprised all the "wise people," who have been accustomed to watching such police movements. In the down-town district nothing but "handbooks" have been running for some time, and they probably will continue running in the face of the present order.

On the West Side, however, there have been a number of poolrooms open, and some on the South. Some of these places, notably that of ex-Alderman John Rogers, at May and West Madison streets, have been able to survive most storms, and Alderman Conlon of the Eighteenth Ward has been successful in keeping his place open.

Yesterday even these favored places were closed, and their patrons told that in the future if they wanted to bet on the races they must take a train to do it.

Hand Books Undisturbed.

The "hand books" are expected to continue business at the same old stands, as the police have explained several times it is impossible to stop them. This kind of betting is not especially popular with the average race track gambler, as the odds are not posted and the bettor never knows what he is going to get if he wins. The poolroom is more to his liking, as there he gets a ticket stating the terms of the bet, and the "hand book" as a rule is only patronized by the heavier bettor, who can protect himself and get what is due him. The smaller fry, who have but a few dollars to bet and feel their losses the more keenly on that account, go to the poolrooms.

Picture Cabinets Installed.

Slot machines are still carefully housed away in the saloons about the down-town district, but in the places formerly occupied by the gambling devices cabinets with pictures not suitable for modest eyes have been installed. Previously only a few of the cabinets were to be found in the better grade saloons. In each machine twelve pictures are placed, and on the insertion of a nickel the pictures revolve and are illuminated by an incandescent lamp in the machine.

SOON TO BEGIN GOLF ROAD.

Work on the Midlothian Club's Private Line Will Begin in Near Future.

The Midlothian Country club will soon begin work on its private railroad line to connect its golf links with the Rock Island tracks at the Midlothian station. The distance of two miles, which has heretofore been traversed in a slow-going 'bus, will now be traversed in much less time. Work will be begun in grading for the tracks next week, and the line will be in operation at the opening of the golf season next spring.

H. N. Higinbotham, George R. Thorne, A. C. Bartlett, and Judge John Barton Payne are among the members of the club who have planned the enterprise. They will not only build the road as a spur for the suburban trains on the Rock Island but they will install either an electric or compressed air service of their own, with cars, to meet all the through trains. "The Royal Road to Golf" has been suggested as the name for this unique railroad. It is expected to cost $25,000.

"Arrangements for building the road are practically completed," said Vice President John G. Shedd yesterday. "The contracts for grading have been let and work should begin the first of next week. There are a few points that have not been settled yet. The motive power which will run our cars to and from the Rock Island tracks has not been decided on. The building of the road will be completed this winter and we shall have it in operation next spring."

SENATOR DAVIS IS SINKING.

Physicians Begin to Lose Hope of Patient's Recovery from Illness.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 27.—At 1:3 this (Tuesday) morning Dr. Stone issued this bulletin: "Senator Davis is somewhat weaker tonight; is taking little nourishment. Respiration, 16; pulse, 120."

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The physicians in attendance upon Senator C. K. Davis are gradually giving up hope of the patient's recovery, and his symptoms are becoming more discouraging every hour.

Last night showed a recurrence of the delirium of Friday night. He was unable to take much nourishment and there was even difficulty in administering the necessary medicines. When not delirious he sank into a stupor and seemed little conscious of what was passing about him.

At noon the following official statement was given to the press by Dr. Stone:

"Senator Davis was exceedingly restless during the night and slept but three hours in all. Is taking less nourishment and is given his medicine by injections. Temperature, 101. Pulse, 124. Respiration varying during the last twelve hours from 12 to 26."

TREATY TERMS ARE NOT LIKED.

GETS WORD FROM CONGER.

Extreme Demands Thought to Be Impossible of Execution and Beyond Reason.

DISCUSSION FOR TODAY.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Minister Conger has advised the State department of the agreement under a preliminary treaty made between the Ministers at Pekin, with a view to settling the Chinese question, and a copy of it has been transmitted to the home governments for action.

Some of the proposals contained in the treaty will not meet with the approval of this government. President McKinley has already declined to assent to the proposal to maintain a guard between Tien Tsin and Pekin, and if he should agree to this proposition at all it would be on condition that it is sanctioned by Congress. Neither will the President agree to the razing of the forts. Some of the other proposals will be acceptable to the United States. This government is in favor of punishing the Chinese who may be designated by the representatives at Pekin as guilty of inciting the Boxers, but the United States will not agree to a wholesale slaughter. Neither will it agree to the exaction of an indemnity from China which that government cannot pay.

Many believe, however, that the agreement will not meet with the indorsement of all the powers, and in the immediate future there will be a renewal of the squabble at Pekin. It is the belief, therefore, that the only way in which a settlement can be reached will be found in the adoption of the President's proposition for an international commission to meet at some European capital or at Washington and settle the question which the Ministers at Pekin have endeavored to do for some months past.

On Lines of French Note.

While the officials of the State department are guarding carefully the contents of Minister Conger's dispatch and refuse to divulge the character of the agreement, there is excellent authority for saying the preliminary treaty is based upon the conditions contained in the proposals made in France.

Among the most important of these are the interdiction in China of modern fire arms; the abolition of the Tsung-li-Yamen and the substitution of a Foreign office similar to those of the civilized powers, and free intercourse between the foreign representatives and the officials of the Chinese Foreign office and with the court itself; the maintenace of a legation guard at Pekin and a force of soldiers between the coast and the capital; the razing of the forts in China; punishment of those guilty of inciting Boxers to commit violence upon the foreigners, and the payment of a substantial indemnity for the Outrages committee.

Li Hung Chang Reported Ill.

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Li Hung Chang, according to the Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post, is seriously ill and has telegraphed for his adopted son, Li Ching Fang.

Hard Work Yet to Come.

Dr. Morrison, telegraphing the Times from Pekin on Nov. 25, says:

"Telegrams from Europe, which continually speak of the peace negotiations between the Chinese and foreign envoys, show a misconception of the situation. No negotiations are now on and are not possible until the Chinese have accepted the terms of the conjoint note, which is not yet presented and whose acceptance must be compulsory.

"The delay in the presentation of the note is due to the postponement by the home governments and adds greatly to the difficulties of the position.

Difficulties to Be Counted On.

"Assuming that the Chinese envoys accept the terms of the conjoint note the serious work will then begin.

"The first extreme difficulty will be enforcing the death sentences upon Princes and officials; compelling the court to return to Pekin; removing the Empress and Emperor from the domination of Tung Fu Siang, who is unwilling to execute himself, even in deference to the commands of the German Emperor.

"The second difficulty is how to secure the payment of the indemnity, which, at the lowest estimate, already amounts to £60,000,000.

"The third will be the recasting of the commercial treaties, including the Tibet convention."

LONDON, Nov. 26.—England has given adhesion to the latest note upon China sent to the powers from Washington, according to information from a high source. This note opposes demanding that Prince Tuan and other Chinese officials be put to death as a condition precedent to a settlement with the Chinese government.

Russia and France have also expressed agreement with Secretary Hay's view that it is to the interest of all the European powers to end the Chinese trouble as quickly as possible, whereas a demand for the heads of Chinese officials which cannot be complied with or enforced only tends to prolong the crisis.

Germany still holds out, but it is expected that she, too, will signify her agreement before long.

SUBURBS ARE FIGHTING ANNEXATION TO CHICAGO.

Residents of Nearby Towns Summon State Representatives to See That City Streets Are Dark and Hard to Tell from Mudholes, While Village Highways Are Light and Well Paved—Kitt Gould Advises Campaign of Photographs.

Residents of small towns near Chicago are using their utmost efforts to prevent consolidation with the city. Their State Representatives are being called to visit the suburbs and see how the streets and sidewalks in the outlying sections of Chicago suffer when compared with the independent towns. The present city administration is in disrepute and Representatives and Senators are assured that if they support a measure to consolidate the suburbs new men will be sent to Springfield.

Two of the suburbs most active in this fight are Riverdale and Dolton. These towns have a wholesome object lesson within sight the year round. Between them is a small section of Chicago. Three eighths of a mile in One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street is bounded on the south by Dolton and the north by Riverdale. The Riverdale section is a well-kept macadam road, and Dolton is not far behind. The Riverdale part of the street is lighted by gasoline lamps placed fifty feet apart, while Dolton's section is made as light as Michigan avenue by arc lights. The Chicago portion is dark as Erebus and the road itself is practically impassable. Children have to leave Chicago and walk several blocks out of their way on the Riverdale or Dolton walks to reach school. Leighton avenue, separating Riverdale from Chicago, is as bad as One Hundred and Thirty-eighth streeet.

So great is the disgust of the residents of the two villages over the condition of the Chicago section of the street that they decorated it as follows:

"THIS IS THE ROAD TO CHINA: NO BOTTOM."

"CARTER HARRISON'S ROAD: NO BOTTOM."

For ten years the citizens have watched the road fall into disrepute, until today it is used only by farmers who cannot enter the city by any other way. Their own villages are well policed. Riverdale has two policemen in its well-lighted street, while Chicago expects one lone patrolman to travel from One Hundred and Twenty-seventh to One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and into West Pullman, at great risk of being held up himself.

"We have grown tired of seeing this district in the condition it is kept by the City of Chicago," said Justice Shaefer yesterday. "We pave and light our streets from a general fund, while the city wants us to come in and have them paved by special assessment. With such an object lesson before us we are not likely to consent."

So anxious are the citizens to prevent annexation that they called on their Representative, Kitt Gould, to pay them a visit. After they had shown Mr. Gould the two pictures yesterday, one of decay, the other of prosperity and good care, they asked him how he was going to vote.

"Well," he responded, "in the light of the evidence you have presented, I hardly see how it is possible to favor consolidation. Have pictures taken of the condition of your streets and those of the Chicago section and I will present them to the Legislature."

Concurred in the Mayor's acceptance of the resignation of Dr. W. S. Christopher from the Board of Education and in his appointment of James A. Peterson.

Received the Mayor's veto of an order for the investigation of unlicensed cars of elevated roads.

Received the Mayor's reply to the request of the Chicago River Improvement Association for a conference with the Union Traction company.

Deferred for publication the report of the Redistricting committee and the minority report of Alderman Raymer.

A bill for the abolishing of justice courts and the creation in their stead of district courts of record, with an elective judiciary, was presented to the City Council last night by Alderman Freeman K. Blake and was referred to the Committee on State Legislation. With the bill was an order that the Council support it for passage by the State Legislature.

According to the provisions of the bill, it was proposed to divide the city into such districts as may be determined upon by law. In each of these districts a court should be established to supplant the justice court, to be a court of record, with jurisdiction in criminal cases such as now is exercised by justices of the peace, and jurisdiction in civil cases, the extent to be determined by law, in amounts not to exceed $500.

To Abate Present Abuses.

The purpose of the bill is to abate the abuses of the present justice system. It is proposed to make it impossible for attorneys to annoy an opponent by carrying him to the limits of the county for the trial of a case or to use other methods for the inconvenience of defendants.

Fees are to be abolished by the provision of the bill. The Judges of the district courts shall be paid a salary to be determined by the Legislature. The term of office also is left to the Legislature to fix. The people of each district, it is recommended, shall elect the Judge for the court of the district.

It is declared that the adoption of the bill by the Council and its subsequent passage by the Legislature would remove a great evil from the judicial system. The bill is said to have the support of attorneys and Judges. Discussion of its provisions has been left to the special Council Committee on State Legislation.

Traction Ordinance Offered.

The Council received its first presentation traction ordinance and referred it to the Railway committee. The ordinance was introduced by Alderman Wulff, who insisted that he did not know the corporation back of it. It provided for a franchise for an electric surface road in Lincoln and Foster avenues, from the intersection of Evanston and Foster avenues. The life of the franchise was placed at twenty years, during fifteen of which the company agreed to pay a graded compensation to the city.

The right to connect with other lines was asked, and from this it was said that the proposition was one of the Northwestern Elevated railway company desiring to use the surface road as a feeder for the elevated.

It was provided that the company might operate by animal or electric power, by overhead trolley if desirable, on a double or single track. The streets of which the use was asked were: Beginning at the east line of Evanston avenue at its intersection with Foster avenues, west in Foster avenue to Lincoln, and northwest in Lincoln to the city limits.

Three Years for Building.

The company agreed to complete half of the track within eighteen months from the passage of the ordinance and to have the rest completed within three years. It bound itself to operate at least one car every half hour from 6 o'clock in the morning until 12 at night.

A graded compensation was promised, 1 per cent of the gross receipts for the second term of five years, 2 per cent for the third term, and 3 per cent for the fourth term. The company agreed to give bond in the sum of $10,000 for the completion of the work and an additional $10,000 for other liability. Permission was asked to build conduits, if necessary, to carry its wires from its power-house to the line.

Alderman Blake also introduced an order with a bill providing authority for any city or town in Illinois to establish and maintain municipal lighting plants It was sent to the State Legislation committee. It granted authority to towns to combine to manufacture gas, to levy taxes, and borrow money for the establishment of the plants, and to assess on property-owners the cost of establishing them. It granted the city councils and town trustees the power to make all regulations for the operation of the plants, and required that the contract for the erecting of the plants be let to the lowest responsible bidder. It provided that no frontage consents should be necessary for the undertaking of municipal ownership by any city or town, and demanded that the receipts from the supplying of gas be deposited in a separate fund.

An immediate passage of the order was demanded by Alderman John Brennan, "just to put the boys on record for or against," he said. The attempt to pass failed, and it was sent to the committee.

Better Brakes for Street Cars.

An ordinance, brought up by Alderman Herrmann, providing for the equipment of all street cars with lever brakes capable of being operated from the motor cars, was passed. It is effective in the case of trailers which have been connected with the other cars simply by the coupling and which, it was claimed, have been responsible for the inability of motormen to bring their cars to a sudden stop when necessary.

Alderman Jackson had passed an order for the Special Assessment committee to prepare a bill for passage by the Legislature requiring that all special assessments be paid to the City Collector rather than to the County Treasurer.

Asks for More Policemen.

Alderman Finn presented a resolution asking that the Finance committee make an appropriation for 500 additional policemen next year.

Alderman Maypole asked that the Superintendent of the House of Correction be requested to report on some other way of employing prisoners in his charge than in the manufacture of articles which were sold in competition with goods made outside.

City Electrician Ellicott asked for an emergency appropriation of $260,000, part of which is needed to pay the quarterly gas bills of the city. The original appropriation of $450,000 was said to be exhausted. The request was sent to the Finance committee.

When the report of the Redistricting committee was sent in to be deferred and published another attempt was made to have it referred back to the committee for further consideration, but it failed. Alderman Raymer submitted his minority report, with a different plan for the proposed new wards.

NEW TRUSTEE A LAWYER.

James A. Peterson Born in Chicago and Once a Candidate for Member of School Board.

James A. Peterson, who was appointed a member of the Board of Education last evening by Mayor Harrison, is a lawyer. He was once a candidate for the appointment to the board during Mayor Swift's administration. His home is at 2345 North Forty-first avenue, Irving Park. He has lived in Chicago all his life. He was born in 1863 and spent his childhood in an old-fashioned house which stood until a few years ago at Milwaukee avenue and Desplaines street. His education was gained in the West Division High School and Northwestern University. In 1886 and 1887 he taught school in the Towns of Schaumberg and Leyden.

He was obliged to swell the salary of schoolteacher by putting in his spare time as traveling salesman for the silk firms of Belding Bros. & Co. and the William Skinner Manufacturing company. Though the firms are rivals, Mr. Peterson is now the attorney for each of them. In 1887 Mr. Peterson was admitted to the Illinois bar. He was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in 1896.

Mr. Peterson was married in 1893 to Miss Lois Barker of Lebanon, Ky. They have two children.

"I am gratified at my appointment," said Mr. Peterson last night, "although it was unsolicited on my part. I am a Republican, and therefore think the more of the compliment."

"Dr. Christopher has gone away for a week's rest," said Mrs. Christopher last night, "and he left instructions that his whereabouts should not be disclosed. As to his reason for resigning from the Board of Education, I may say that it is his conviction that his medical practice has come to claim his time almost entirely."

TEACHERS DEPRIVED OF PAY COUNTED UPON FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

Controller Kerfoot Declines to Honor Salary Certificates Till Civil Service Commission Informs Him About the Status of Secretary Legner's Position.

Teachers in the public schools of Chicago will not be among the thankful on Thanksgiving day, they say, and many of them who had expected to eat turkey with "the old folks at home" will be obliged to content themselves with a regular meal at the boarding-house.

Certificates representing $300,000 are lying in readiness to be handed out at the Board of Education rooms, while Controller Kerfoot is blocking the entire transaction by refusing to sign a warrant on the City Treasury.

Mr. Kerfoot says the Civil Service commission must assure him that Mr. Legner is still Secretary of the Board of Education before he will assume the responsibility of issuing a warrant for so large an amount.

Ever since Mr. Legner walked out from the examination being held for his position there has been more or less uncertainty as to the office of Secretary of the Board of Education. The recent action of the Civil Service commission in stopping Mr. Legner's salary drew Controller Kerfoot's official attention to the matter, and he decided he must have authority to pay over the teachers' salaries.

"I am waiting for authority from the Civil Service commission before I issue this warrant for $300,000 to a person to whom they may or may not consider officially responsible. It may be true that Mr. Legner is still under bond, but it is no part of my duty to look up his bondsmen."

The principals of a number of schools were at the board rooms yesterday when it became known that the money for salaries was being withheld. "This will raise a perfect storm among some of the teachers," said one of them. "The teachers are becoming exasperated between occasional threats to cut down their pay, the failure to return them to their promised schedule, and the irregularity with which they sometimes get their pay. Coming just before Thanksgiving, this pay day is important, as many of them go out of the city. They have regular ways of saving their money from month to month, and, while none of them are in absolute need of money, they cannot readily get the cash to take the place of the expected month's salary."

ART WORKS SAID TO BE FORGED.

Twenty-five Terra Cotta Statues in Boston Museum of Fine Arts Prove to Be Bogus.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 26.—Mr. Edward Robinson, in charge of the Greek room at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, announced today that twenty-five out of twenty-eight terra cotta statues, supposed to have come from Tanagra, Greece, are forgeries.

Twenty-three of the figures were presented to the museum by the late Thomas G. Appleton and came from a dealer of high standing.

Mr. Robinson's attention was called to the figures by John Marshall, an English expert, and close examination revealed that nearly all of them were false.

The discovery was made last summer, but it was only a few days ago that the Art museum directors learned how Mr. Appleton had been imposed upon.

A Greek shopkeeper of New York was persuaded to visit the museum and at once declared the figures were made in Athens in 1874 and that he knew the maker. Fifteen men, he said, were now behind prison bars in Athens for making terra cotta forgeries "from Tanagra." Tanagra is a small town near Athens, from which most of the genuine terra cotta figures come.

STOPS INCOME OF CASTELLANES.

Creditors Secure Injunction Preventing Payment of Money to Countess.

SUM IN DISPUTE $385,000.

GENERAL NEW YORK NEWS.

Samuel Untermeyer applied to and obtained today from Justice Fitzgerald, sitting in the Supreme Court, an injunction order, returnable on Monday next, against the Count and Countess Castellane and George Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould, and Helen M. Gould, as trustees under the will of Jay Gould, restraining them from paying to Anna Gould, Countess de Castellane, any part of the estate in the hands of the trustees or from applying any part of the trust fund to the debts of Anna Gould or to her support or that of her children until the further direction of the court.

Shuts Off Income of the Castellanes.

The plaintiff in the suit is Anthony J. Dittmar, who sues as assignee of Asher Wertheimer, a London bric-à-brac dealer. The complaint contains copies of drafts drawn by Wertheimer and accepted in writing by the Count and Countess de Castellane, amounting to upwards of $385,000, of which $285,000 and upwards are past due. It is alleged that Anna Gould has $18,000,000 held in trust for her by her brothers and sister, and that her income is $900,000.

It is claimed that $250,000 a year is all the Count and Countess require for their support, and the plaintiff asks that the remainder of the income should be applied to the payment of debts. It is said over $250,000 of surplus income has already accumulated in the hands of the trustees which ought to be used for this purpose. The present suit is said to be a test case, and it is reported is backed by other creditors than Wertheimer.

A few weeks ago George J. Gould was appointed guardian for the Countess de Castellane in a proceeding in the French courts. The creditors claim that the purpose of this proceeding was to get the property of the Countess de Castellane away from attack by her creditors so as to enable the Goulds to force settlement of the debts at their own time and on their own terms.

"The Countess de Castellane is not entitled to any part of the capital or principal sum of the estate of her father, as the statement of the plaintiff seems to imply. The will of Mr. Gould provides, in substance, that the income is to be a trust fund in the hands of the trustees, to be appropriated for the support and maintenance of his daughter, and that she cannot anticipate or dispose of any part of that income until it is actually received by her, and that until so received it shall not be liable for her debts or those of her husband; and undoubtedly the trustees will feel it to be their duty to have this provision in the will carried out in its full extent, or as far as possible. She has no control nor has the court any control over the principal sum, which goes to her children after her death."

He denies that George Gould's appointment was made to get possession of the income of the Countess, saying it was to prevent her from incurring fresh obligations without the consent of her brother.

Will of Charles H. Hoyt Probated.

As had been expected, Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, cut off his nearest relatives in his will, which was filed for probate in the Surrogate's Court of this city today. There is doubt as to the actual value of the estate, the estimates varying from $250,000 to $400,000. Hoyt left his beautiful country place at Charlestown, N. H., to the Lambs club, and, among other conditions, insisted that it shall be designated "Hoyt's Pasture for the Lambs."

In the last clause of the will Mr. Hoyt cuts off his few surviving relatives in these words: "In making this, my will, at the present time I have no relatives nearer than cousins to be considered by me, and my cousins and distant relatives have never shown by any act any desire for my friendship or good will; hence I have deemed it more consistent with fair dealing and justice to dispose of any property to those who during my life have been my well wishers, and to such charities as in my judgment are most fitting."

Frank McKee, the partner of Mr. Hoyt, gets the biggest share of the estate. He is bequeathed Mr. Hoyt's diamond and sapphire ring, and out of the proceeds of his life insurance is to be created a fund for the benefit of Isabella McKee, daughter of Frank McKee. The income is to be used as support of Miss McKee until she reaches her majority, at which she is to receive the entire fund. The theatrical business of McKee & Hoyt is to be conducted by McKee solely for his benefit. To Sarah M. Scales and Mary M. Scales, the sister and mother of the late Mrs. Hoyt, Mr. Hoyt leaves $5,000 jointly. To "my faithful employé and loyal friend, Fred R. Zwiefel," is bequeathed $3,500. W. H. Currie receives $10,000; Elwood M. Dasher, $10,000; Charles Goodman, Hoyt's valet, $2,500, and Thomas Davis Sr., his gardener, $1,000.

To Abraham H. Hummel and to Herbert W. Bond is left $1,000 each. To T. Henry French he leaves his watch, chain, and attachments, the locket containing a miniature of his wife. A trust fund is created of the residue of the estate, of which $300 a year is to be paid for the maintenance of the mausoleum. Half of the remaining income is to be paid to Frank McKee, and the balance is to be divided equally between the Lambs club and the Actors' Fund.

Police Capture Swindler.

Henry Zelig who is said to have swindled business houses in nearly every city in this country, and whose stealings are said to amount to nearly $1,000,000, was arraigned before Recorder Goff in the Court of General Sessions today.

Zelig four years ago was in the meshes of the law, charged with swindling several merchants in this city, but was admitted to bail and when his case was called he was nowhere to be found. Detective Sergeant McConville caught Zelig on Saturday night in a Turkish bath.

The Recorder adjourned the case until tomorrow, when Zelig will ask for a reduction of the bail. Zelig is said to have worked a swindling game here only last year, but disappeared before convicted and is said to have been in Chicago most of the time since.

John W. Gates is going to Port Huron to shoot ducks. Shearing lambs in Wall street has grown tiresome to the great Western speculator, who has made two "turns" in "the street" within the year 1900 which have netted him, it is estimated, no less than $2,000,000. Mr. Gates is said to have sold out all of his long stock in the recent rise and to have "cleaned up" $1,000,000.

He sold out 50,000 shares of American Steel and Wire between 45 and 50, it is said, and called 40,000 shares of Union Pacific on privileges bought in London before election. These privileges entitled him to call stock at 58 which has been selling around 72. The American Steel and Wire stock is said to have been accumulated last summer below 35. Mr. Gates modestly disclaims having made any of the great deals with which he is credited in Wall street.

This story, like many others heard in Wall street, is directly traceable to the café of the Waldorf-Astoria, where Mr. Gates and his coterie of Chicago millionaires, the Keene galaxy of speculating stars, and the Jacob Field constellation of lesser lights shine nightly.

John W. Gates is one of the few Western plungers who may be said to have got the better of Wall street right along. Wall street regarded him as a "come on" when he arrived there in 1898 with Steel and Wire trust.

Odd Medley of Noted Persons Called to Court.

Bishops and ministers of the gospel mingled with pugilists, and bank Presidents touched elbows with saloonkeepers in part I., General Sessions in the Criminal Court Building today. Clerk Welch explained that the subpœnas which had brought them there had been obtained by Louis A. Gourdain, who is in the Tombs charged with having conducted a lottery. Gourdain had been put in a strait jacket by Warden Hogan.

Recorder Goff, who was on the bench, looked down in utter amazement as one great man after another put in an appearance. First came Bishop Potter. Close upon the heels of the noted churchman came James J. Corbett and Joe Walcott, the pugilists. President York of the Police board was another of the victims. Then in swift succession came Martin Engel, Max Hochstim, Warden Hogan of the Tombs, Edward M. Poor of the Garfield Bank, a clerk of President John A. McCall of the New York Life Insurance company; Police Captain James K. Price, Police Captain James Reynolds of Brooklyn, Banker James Stillman, a representative from the editor of every daily newspaper in New York and Brooklyn, and a dozen other busy men of affairs.

"Gourdain is crazy," Warden Hogan explained, "and he is conducting his own defense to an indictment charging him with violating the banking laws by running a get-rich-quick concern. He demanded fifty blank subpœnas last week and got them. He filled in the names and mailed the subpœnas to President McKinley, Governor Roosevelt, Queen Victoria, the Czar of Russia, Mark Hanna, William Jennings Bryan, J. Pierpont Morgan, Eugene V. Debs, John L. Sullivan, and James J. Jeffries.

Sandy Hook Courses for the Yacht Cup Races.

It is generally accepted now as certain that the yacht cup races will take place over the courses at Sandy Hook. While the New York Yacht club will not commit itself in the matter officially it is known it desires to make the arrangements for the races as pleasant for Sir Thomas as possible. A well-known yachtsman and close friend of the Irish Knight read a letter from him today, in which he touched upon the matter as follows:

"With regard to my personal opinion respecting the best courses for the Americus Cup contest I prefer Sandy Hook. I don't think there is in the world a better course for a yacht race than that off Sandy Hook. My opinion is that with sufficient wind there could not be any better and fairer course, and, personally, I feel that there would be more glory in fighting the battles over the old historical course, where we have been so often defeated.

"Anyhow, there has always been sufficient breeze for the American boat to win at Sandy Hook, and had Shamrock been the speedier boat the same wind would have brought it in first."

W. Butler Duncan Jr., manager of the Defender, said today he had reached no conclusion as to the skipper and crew of the new yacht. "If it were not for the Rainbow's being at Hereshoffs now," he said, "work could be started on the Defender immediately, but it has at present the room required by the new boat, but this delay will be inconsiderable, as everything is in readiness to start the minute Rainbow leaves the cradle."

Mr. Duncan had not heard who is to be his opponent on Columbia in the trial races.

In investigating the affairs of the collapsed stock brokerage firm of Chester B. Lawrence & Co., Assistant District Attorney Byrne was informed today that an employé of the Seaboard Air Line had been arrested at Fernandina, Fla., charged with embezzling $50,000 of the railroad's money. Mr. Byrne said the company believed the man had lost the bulk of the money through Chester B. Lawrence Jr.'s firm and was preparing to descend upon Lawrence for the purpose of regaining some of the alleged stolen money when the assignment of last Friday interfered with the plan. Representatives of the company may appear with the other victims against Lawrence and his assistants.

Lawrence Jr., Edward B. Underhill, and George H. Walbert were arraigned again in the Center Street Court today. A crowd of victims, mostly women, who intrusted their money to Lawrence were in court today to testify, but the examination went over until next Monday.

Steamship Clerk Charged with Theft.

Word was received at police headquarters today to the effect that a clerk of the Seaboard Air Line had been arrested at Fernandina, Fla., for the theft of $50,000 from that line. It is said the money taken by this clerk was lost through speculation with the firm of C. B. Lawrence & Co., that recently failed here, and the principals of which are now under arrest.

Confer on New Postoffice.

Postmaster Van Cott of New York conferred with Postmaster General Smith and others today regarding the proposed new postoffice building in New York. Mr. Van Cott expressed the opinion that the bill now pending appropriating $2,500,000 for this purpose would pass at the approaching session of Congress, and that the building would be erected as close as possible to the Grand Central station.

Tom O'Rourke, ex-prize fighter, sporting man, and proprietor of the Delavan, at Fortieth street and Broadway, spent some time tonight in a cell in a West Thirtieth Street Police Station charged with assaulting Frederick and Gilbert Hamilton, brothers, who came into his place shortly before 11 o'clock.

British Arbitrator Decides Government of Gautemala Must Pay R. H. May Large Sum.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—Sir G. F. B. Jenner, British Minister to Guatemala, has rendered an award of $140,000 in gold against the republic to which he is accredited in favor of R. H. EAST SWEPT BY STORMS.

WIND, RAIN, AND SNOW CAUSE A NUMBER OF DISASTERS.

Telegraph Wires Down and Confirmation or Denial of Alarming Stories Is Impossible Pending Repairs—New York City Cut Off from the World for Hours—Gale on Lake Erie Sinks Several Vessels—Break in Canal Threatens to Strand Boats.

A storm of unusual severity swept the Eastern States yesterday, causing numerous disasters on land and water, and entailing enormous property loss. Wind, rain, and snow combined to make the storm the worst of the year, and although much of the damage was done before daylight yesterday morning even at a late hour this morning a great portion of the East is cut off entirely from telegraphic communication.

Wires are down throughout New York, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, and other States, and it is impossible to tell how great the loss of life will prove. Many alarming rumors have gained credence, but confirmation of several reputed disasters cannot be obtained.

New York City was all but isolated from the rest of the world a great part of yesterday, and last night few wires were working into the Eastern city.

Rumor of West Virginia Wreck.

During last evening a rumor of a railway disaster in West Virginia in which 200 persons were said to have perished spread through the country, but advices this morning indicate that the train is safe. A landslide near Hinton, W. Va., covered the track with earth, and the report was that a Chesapeake and Ohio train had struck it and been hurled into the Green Brier River. Wires were gone and it was hours before direct news could be obtained. Officials of the railway at 1 a. m. said they had dispatches showing the train had stopped in time and was delayed by the landslide.

Schooner Sinks in Lake Erie.

Kingsville, Ont., Nov. 26.—An unknown schooner is sunk on the middle ground off Point Pelee and the sailors are lashed to the rigging. Since Sunday morning the tug Home Rule from Amherstburg has been trying to rescue the men, but there is such a high sea running that its efforts have been fruitless.

The schooner Reuben Doud is also on the middle ground, but nothing is known of its condition. Fifty boats were anchored west of Point Pelee today. Since the wind has gone to the northwest a number of them have gone out.

Gale Worst for Ten Years.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The storm which began here last night and continued most of today is the worst in ten years on Lake Erie, and seems to be general over Ohio. The gale at times reached almost the velocity of a hurricane, and from midnight to 7 o'clock this morning it blew about sixty miles an hour. Not a vessel left here between sunrise and sunset, and none will venture out tonight.

The schooners Spademan and Melvina and the steamer M. Sicken went ashore on Marblehead beach, near Sandusky, and are now being dashed to pieces. The crews were rescued by the Marblehead life savers.

Heavy Damage at Lorain.

Lorain, O., Nov. 26.—The storm wrought $100,000 damage to this harbor. Six hundred feet of the east government pier were swept away, and the seas had full sway through the gap, washing away the foundations on the opposite side of the river. The C., L. and W. railroad company's tracks were undermined, and hang suspended over the gulf made by the waters. The river channel is thought to be filled with sand as a result of the break, and navigation is blocked.

Reservoir Bursts at Athens.

Athens, O., Nov. 26.—As a result of the heavy rains the reservoir near Chauncey burst today and flooded the town a mile away. The reservoir covered three acres and was twenty feet deep. A hundred yards of railroad track were washed out and nearly all the residences in Chauncey were flooded. A hill deflecting the course of the water saved the Chauncey mine, where 100 men were at work, from being flooded.

Lives Lost in Tennessee.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Meager accounts of casualties by flood are coming in from west Tennessee. A few miles north of Dyersburg a woman and two children in a buggy were thrown into deep backwater and all were drowned.

At the south fork of the Forked Deer River a track hand of the Illinois Central was drowned.

Break in the Erie Canal.

Rome, N. Y., Nov. 26.—A break occurred in the sixty-mile level of the Erie Canal four mile west of here at 3 p. m. today. One hundred feet of the bank went out and the water rushed down on the flats. The water is swiftly going out and all boats on the canal will be grounded where they are.

Pennsylvania Towns in Peril.

Dubois, Pa., Nov. 26.—This section of the country experienced one of the worst floods today that has visited it in many years. All of the mining plants situated on low ground were compelled to close down and many residences in the lower parts of the town have four to six feet of water in the ground floors. The Beaver meadows are covered to a depth of three and four feet for miles around.

At Sabula there is danger, should the water rise but little more, of an immense dam breaking which would cause vast damage to property and possible loss of life. At Winterburn it was necessary to release some of the water in a large dam by breaking a hole in it with dynamite. The breaking of the dam would have caused disaster to the homes of citizens on the lowlands.

DR. PEARSONS ANNOUNCES GIFT.

Chicago Philanthropist Promises $50,000 Donation to College at Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Dr. D. K. Pearsons, the Chicago philanthropist, who has given millions of dollars to various colleges, today addressed the students of Colorado College. During his remarks he announced his intention of paying over to President Slocum $50,000 on Jan. 1. The sum was promised in the spring on condition that the science hall be first completed. Dr. Pearsons has been here for his health for some time. He has examined the college account books and is so well impressed with the institution's future that he waived all conditions.

WIFE AND CHILD ARE MISSING.

MARRIAGE CAUSES STRIFE

FORTUNE SPENT IN SEARCH.

A strange story of family feud and the disappearance of two of the members of the persecuted family came to the notice of Chicago detectives yesterday when Albert Davison arrived from Dixon, Ill., and, appealing to the police, offered to expend the remnant of his fortune in the recovery of his wife and daughter. Mary C. Davison and her daughter, Eula, disappeared last July from the family residence in the space of a few minutes and all trace of their present whereabouts has been lost.

Mr. Davison was conversing with his wife while the 9-year-old daughter played in the dooryard on a bright summer day. He left the room for not more than five minutes and when he returned wife and child were nowhere to be found.

In his desperation he came to Chicago yesterday and sought assistance in investigating a want advertisement which he had noticed in THE TRIBUNE, and which he hoped might furnish a ray of light in the mystery. The advertisement was as follows:

SITUATION WANTED—LADY, WITH 9-YEAR-old daughter, would like position as housekeeper in payment for board. Address ——

Marriage Causes Enmity.

Albert Davison is an Englishman, 55 years of age, who came to this country twenty-three years ago. He settled near Polo, Ill., and soon was introduced into the Canadian farming community of which Francis Jones was the acknowledged leader.

The Canadians had left their native land owing to some trouble with their government and immigrated to a vacant tract of land in Ogle County, where they held aloof from the neighboring Americans. The four sons of Francis Jones were expected to succeed to the leadership of the colony in time.

Mary was Francis Jones' eldest daughter, a comely young woman and the belle of the community. She had refused a score of suitors of her own people. Davison became a frequent visitor at the Jones house and when a few months later his marriage with Mary took place there were many murmurings in the country side and the younger element of the colony gave the bridegroom to understand that he was considered an interloper and might look for trouble.

Breach Is Widened.

Four years ago Francis Jones died, leaving a large estate, 100 acres of land being bequeathed to his daughter Mary. Within a year Mrs. Jones died, leaving $10,000 to the eldest daughter. Mrs. Davidson's sister, Maria, was named as executrix of both wills.

At this time, according to the story told by Davison, the open persecution of his family by the colony began. In the transaction of business the Davisons were compelled many times to go to Polo, and such events were invariably the signals for open hostilities.

In the latter part of last June Mrs. Davison was prevailed upon to make her brothers and sisters an extended visit. She was absent a week, and Mr. Davison, fearing for her safety, went to Polo and brought her home. During the ensuing week the discussion of the husband's suspicions led to several quarrels between the couple.

Story of the Disappearance.

On July 5 Mr. Davison remained at home in the afternoon chatting with his wife, peaceful relations having been established between them again. With the sudden recollection that he had left some jeweler's work in process of manufacture in another room, the husband dashed up-stairs, calling back that he would be down again immediately. He returned in less than five minutes, to find the house empty. The only hint of a clew obtainable lay in the story that a covered carriage had been seen driving down a rear street in the vicinity of the Davison residence. He traced the carriage to the Canadian colony, but did not find his wife and child.

From Polo Mr. Davison went to Lemoyle, Ill., and Marshfield, Ind., finding that his wife had been at both places in company with relatives, but had disappeared again. Since the latter part of September all progress in the search has been at a standstill. Mr. Davison was forced into bankruptcy by the expenses of the hunt.

Food in New York

An Experienced Physician's Work

Dr. Hylande MacGrath in experimenting on the result of food on his own body, says: "After eating four heaping teaspoons of Grape-Nuts with a little cream, I had occasion to walk about fourteen miles and was surprised at my feeling of strength and buoyancy. On other occasions, when I have taken careful note of my feelings and sensations, I have discovered that intellectual tasks are comparatively easy when using Grape-Nuts at each meal.

"Of course I understand that the theory regarding Grape-Nuts is practically perfect. That is, the food contains elements that are well known, and furnished in a concentrated and quite delicious form, it is reasonable to expect results, but the physical demonstration of these results is more satisfactory, always, than the mere statement of theory.

"Grape-Nuts combined with fruit and seasonable vegetables, I prescribe to ailing women and delicate men, and have not had a case yet that has not furnished gratifying results. A nervous, irritable man of 72 became fat and amiable using Grape-Nuts food as a regular (but not exclusive) diet.

"I have found slender, anaemic girls improved rapidly in health, spirits, weight, and looks, on Grape-Nuts food. It would be a blessing to thousands of such girls if this food was used more largely in boarding schools and seminaries, not to be administered as medicine, but as a pure, healthful, and highly nourishing food." Dr. MacGrath lives at 96 Fifth avenue, New York.

SEE GRAVES AND KILROY IN AURORA

MAY BE AT MENDOTA.

MURDERED MAN IS BURIED.

John, alias "Red," Graves, and James, alias "Pickles," Kilroy, accused of the murder of Harry Farress on Saturday last at Morgan and Twenty-second streets, are believed to have been in Aurora, Ill., yesterday. Men answering their description arrived in Aurora at 11:30 p. m. on Sunday and stopped at the Hendrix Hotel, a small establishment across the street from the Burlington depot. They arose at 8 a. m. yesterday, ate their breakfast, and left the hotel.

Depot Master Conrad Ganz says the men bought tickets to Mendota and left for that place at 9:30 a. m. Chief of Police Frank

JAMES, ALIAS "PICKLES," KILROY.

Michaels, who is working on the case, declares that he believes the purchase of tickets to Mendota was a blind, and that the men either are hiding in or near Aurora or have gone in another direction. This theory is borne out partly by Mrs. Hendrix of the Hendrix Hotel, who declares that the man answering the description of Kilroy came back to the hotel at noon for dinner.

Two detectives from Chicago arrived at Aurora during the day and hurried on to Mendota, following the clew of Depot Master Ganz. No trace of the fugitives was found there up to 2 o'clock this morning.

Notified to Watch Out.

Captain Wheeler of the Maxwell Street Station is interested in the story from Aurora because early in the day he announced his belief that Graves and Kilroy left Chicago on a Burlington train at 1 p. m. on Sunday. He received information from railroad employés that two men answering the description of the suspects had left at that hour. The Chief of Police of Aurora and police departments along the line as far as Burlington, Ia., were notified to be on the lookout for the men.

Captain Wheeler will present the evidence against the men. An indictment would facilitate their extradition should they be located outside of Illinois.

Kilroy's Police Record.

Kilroy is considered a "bad" man, who will not submit to arrest without a "gun fight." Though only 25 years old his picture is in the rogues' gallery. His police record there is as follows:

Arrested on March 27, 1897, on one charge of robbery and three charges of assault. Accused of holding up John Miller, 278 West Twentieth place, at Halsted street and Johns place. Victim shot through hat and robbed of $2.75. Identified by complainant. Tried in Criminal Court and found not guilty.

On Jan. 21, 1896, shot Policeman Thomas Mahoney of the Twenty-second Street Station in the groin. Shooting took place at Wentworth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. Arrested; assault charge stricken off.

The police were inclined to believe that either Kilroy or Graves was wounded by Farress. Dr. Max A. Weisskopf, 631 Center avenue, told the police he had seen Graves enter a barber shop at 627 Center avenue at 9 a. m. on Saturday, but had not attended him.

Funeral of Harry Farress.

Harry Farress was buried in Rosehill during the afternoon. The services were held at the residence, 1556 North Halsted street, and were attended by all the Gauger company employés

Mr. Gauger said his firm would make ample provision for the widow.

George Martin, the member of the Woodworkers' union who acted as picket, was held over to the Criminal Court in the Maxwell Street Police Court yesterday on the charge of assaulting John Ehlen, one of Gauger's employés, on Oct. 3 with a coupling pin.

CZAR SENT MANY THREATS.

Letters Received at Lavidia Saying He Will Be Assassinated if He Recovers.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Dispatches received here declare that the Czar has received hundreds of threatening letters since the beginning of his sickness, nearly all to the effect that if he recovers he cannot ultimately escape the fate to which he is destined by his relentless enemies.

Almost the whole of the kitchen staff of the imperial palace at Lavidia has been dismissed.

There are now nine doctors in attendance, four Russians, two Germans, one Dane, one Finn, and one baptized Jew. The lack of agreement is said to be owing to each nationality favoring a different treatment and hence the slow recovery of the patient.

Czar Shows an Improvement.

LIVADIA, Russia, Nov. 26, 11 a. m.—The following bulletin regarding the Czar's condition has been issued:

"The Emperor passed a good day yesterday. He was able to sleep a little and had some perspiration. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon his temperature was 99.3, pulse 76. At 9 o'clock in the evening his temperature was 99.5, pulse 72.

"His Majesty passed a good night. He perspired profusely. This morning the august patient's condition was satisfactory. At 9 o'clock his temperature was 95.9, pulse 70.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Since the Czar's sickness apparently assumed a serious turn it has been the daily practice of brokers in Paris, London, and elsewhere to announce his Majesty's death. Hence, probably, the reports of the Czar's death which have reached New York.

Declares That No One Can Attend Performances There Without Danger of Contamination—Standard Oil Company Secures Valuable Concessions in Roumania, Giving a Practical Monopoly of Oil Production—Beer Poison Cause of Many Deaths.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Archbishop Walsh of Dublin says the Dublin stage is in a scandalous condition, and that it is impossible to witness certain plays produced without being contaminated and degraded. This criticism, which is supposedly aimed at "Zaza," "The Degenerates," and other plays, is warmly approved by the Dublin press, both Catholic and Protestant.

Standard Oil's Big Grant.

According to a Bucharest special to the Daily Express, the Standard Oil company has secured for $2,000,000 the privilege of petroleum mining in all tracts owned by the Roumanian government, and the right of exploration and shaft sinking wherever tracts of oil are found, and a franchise for laying pipe lines wherever it pleases. This is practically a monopoly.

In Russia's policy for the subjugation of Finland, as a preliminary step, it is said annexation of Swedish territory is planned.

Deaths from Beer Poison.

Mr. H. C. Tattersall, the health officer of the town of Salford, in a report to the Health committee yesterday, said that fifty-one deaths were the result of arsenical poisoning from Manchester beer. One hundred other cases, he said, were treated by district poor officers, and eight of these were fatal.

Dr. Tattersall says also that a serious amount of sickness in the last four months is from the same cause, and that an epidemic exists at Salford, Manchester, Liverpool, Birkenhead, and several smaller places.

The Manchester Brewers' association has appointed a committee of experts to inquire into the history, cause, and progress of the epidemic.

Fail to Agree on Ritual.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—The Times published a summary of the proceedings of the roundtable conference held at Fulham Palace last night regarding "the doctrine of holy communion and its expression in ritual," showing that all attempts to obtain the general assent of members to a statement of belief on the questions at issue were unsuccessful. The conference included leading members of the different sections of the Church of England, among them Lord Halifax, Lord Stamford, Canon Gero, Canon Newbolt, Canon Armitage, and Professor Handley Moule.

Americans Best and Cheapest.

The Times prints this morning correspondence between Sir Charles Edward Howard Vincent, member of Parliament for Central Sheffield, and Lord Claud John Hamilton, chairman of the Great Eastern railway, in which the latter explains that the company was compelled to place a large order for steel rails and fishplate with an American firm, because the contracts with English companies were hopelessly in arrears. He says also that the American price was lower than that quoted by the English concerns.

NO REPLY TO GENERAL WOOD.

Cuban Convention Decides Not to Answer Address and Rejects Other Resolutions.

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—At the opening of today's session of the Cuban Constitutional convention Señor de Quesada moved the rejection of a resolution introduced on Saturday expressing the sorrow of the convention at the departure of General Fitzhugh Lee. The resolution was thereupon rejected unanimously.

Señor Gualberto Gomez notified the convention that he would present for consideration a motion in answer to General Wood's address to the convention.

General Sanguilly immediately objected, on the ground that the address was in the form of a military order, which could not be answered by the convention.

Señor de Quesada moved that in the judgment of the convention General Wood's address should not under any consideration be answered by the convention, and this was carried unanimously.

Señor Gomez then explained that his intention had been misconstrued, as he had not meant any discourtesy to the military authorities.

The convention granted Señor Cisneros leave of absence for a month and then adjourned until Wednesday.

Civil Governor Nunez, in a special report to Señor Tamayo, Secretary of Government, on the municipality of Havana, says: "Many irregularities occur in the conduct of business, owing to lack of organization and rules, as well as the absence of any standard. The municipality ought to appoint a junta of citizens and councilmen to consider the question of taxation and also the budget."

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 26.—The Somalis have risen in Jubaland, a province of British east Africa. About 4,000 well-armed men are on the warpath. Subcommissioner Jenner, who had been on a tour inland with a small force, it is officially confirmed today, was murdered about Nov. 13, during a night attack made on his camp by professedly friendly natives. Reinforcements from Mombasa have been sent to Kismayn.

JONES SPURNS HIS PARTY.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE SEEKS TO WIN HIM BACK.

Delegation Waits Upon the Drainage Trustee and Promises Him the Presidency of the Board if He Will Consent to Go Into Caucus Against the Republicans—He Refuses to Have Anything to Do with the Program.

Drainage Trustee Alexander J. Jones received the special committee of the County Democracy appointed to persuade him to come back to the fold yesterday and sent its members away a badly disappointed set of politicians.

They asked him to consent not only to go into a caucus of the Democratic majority of the Drainage board, promising him the Presidency if he would, but also to consent to the dismissal of all the Republican employés from Chief Engineer Randolph down and the filling of their places with men named by the Democratic machine.

Mr. Jones replied that he would have nothing to do with any such program and then had a few remarks to offer about the Democratic managers who had tried to defeat him for reëlection and suggested that the County Democracy should purge itself of such "bolters" as Burke and Eldred before it talked about party fealty.

The committee consisted of Pat White, William F. Gleason, W. L. D. Austin, M. C. McDonald, Attorney McMahon of the Board of Education, Assessor Gray, and Captain James Farrell. Trustee Smyth, another Democratic member of the Drainage board, was present when the committee called and took part in the conference.

Reply of Jones.

Chairman White stated the object of the call, and in reply Mr. Jones said:

"To begin with, gentlemen, I desire to state that I am rather in doubt as to the propriety of my receiving you as a committee of the Cook County Democracy. It seems to me that if the Cook County Democracy has any complaint to make it should first purge itself of party disloyalty by the immediate removal of Secretary Burke and Fred Eldred for openly bolting the Democratic Sanitary District ticket in the late campaign and supporting Lloyd J. Smith in preference to myself. However, waiving all that, I will state to you frankly that there will be no partisan reorganization of the Drainage board, because that is impossible without my vote, and I assume the full responsibility of refusing to join in a partisan organization.

"There will be no official of the Sanitary District removed because of partisanship. Mr. Porter will remain as chief clerk, Mr. Randolph as chief engineer, Mr. Runnells as general counsel, Mr. Blount as treasurer, and Mr. Coen as Marshal of the Sanitary District. Mr. Gilbert will be succeeded by James Todd, a Democrat, and the assistant clerk will be succeeded by a Democrat, but these will be the only changes in the leading positions of the board."

At this Mr. Austin said it was rumored that he would be the President of the board and receive his election by the votes of four Republicans and certain Democrats, and suggested that the Democratic party expected Mr. Jones to go in caucus with his colleagues and be elected by their votes, instead of by the Republican votes.

"I would not accept the Presidency on a party vote under any circumstances," said Mr. Jones.

To Oust Watson and Dunlap.

Chairman Watson and Treasurer Dunlap of the Democratic State committee were in the city yesterday nominally to settle the financial affairs of the committee. The matter of the reorganization of the committee came up for discussion, and both the visitors showed considerable perturbation lest the enemy in the form of the former gold Democrats under the leadership of John P. Hopkins should obtain control.

All Chairman Watson would say for publication was that he expected that the old rule of electing a country member chairman would be followed. Robert E. Burke, for the City Hall machine, also said he would be opposed to any organization Hopkins might be back of and would act with Dr. Watson.

The present organization suggested that if it would be conducive to harmony Dr. Watson would retire and allow Dunlap to be elected chairman. The sentiment of a majority, however, seems to be in favor of a new deal all around. It is argued that Dr. Watson and his friends are too much bound up with Bryan and Bryanism. Dennis Hogan and Ben T. Cable are mentioned for the chairmanship if Mr. Hopkins does not want the place.

SAY HANNA IS FOR CULLOM

REPORT IS GIVEN OUT AT THE SENATOR'S HEADQUARTERS.

National Chairman Said to Have Sent a Special Message Denying Stories of His Opposition and Declaring That the Defeat of the Illinoisan Would Be a Loss to the Republican Party—Governor Tanner Regards It as a Fake.

It was given out at Cullom headquarters yesterday that Senator Hanna had sent word to Senator Cullom that all stories about his having at any time said anything adverse to Senator Cullom's candidacy for reëlection were absolutely false, and as far as his preferences went he would not only like to see the Senator returned from Illinois, but would consider it a loss to the Republican party in Washington and the administration if he were not. The message was sent by a special messenger, who delivered it to Senator Cullom personally.

This action grew out of some stories which have been retailed around the Great Northern Hotel recently to the effect that Senator Hanna had said that Senator Cullom was too old for the place, and it would be better if Illinois would choose a younger man for the Senate.

When Senator Hanna was told of the stories he expressed not only surprise, but considerable anger, and sent the message given above.

Congressman Reeves and ex-Senator David Littler were among Senator Cullom's callers yesterday. State Senator Fort also called to pay his respects, and Senator McCloud of Cook County dropped in and told the Senator he would vote for him.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—When shown tonight the statement published in a local afternoon paper, under a Chicago date line, to the effect that United States Senator Hanna had declared he believed it would be a great misfortune to the State of Illinois and base ingratitude to Senator Cullom should he fail of reëlection, Governor Tanner denounced the whole story as a fabrication emanating from the Cullom cohorts in Cook County, with the object of bolstering up the Senator's waning cause.

"This story," the Executive declared, "is only on a par with a string of falsehoods being sent out from Senator Cullom's headquarters by the federal officeholders, in relation to the Senatorial contest in Illinois.

"Senator Hanna has said nothing of this kind. It is a pure fabrication of the federal officeholder mentioned as having been in close communication with Senator Hanna for several days."

WARD CLUBS VOTE TONIGHT.

In a Few Cases Contests Are Promised, but Generally There Will Be No Opposition.

Republican ward clubs will hold their annual elections this evening. In a few cases contests are promised. There has been some talk of a small fight in the Fourth Ward, but it seems to be confined to one precinct, and no one doubts but that the friends of Martin B. Madden will win without any trouble.

In the Eleventh the old contest between the Badenoch-Stone people and the followers of William Moxley is looked for, and it is stated Fred Bangs will try to make a contest in the Twelfth.

In the Eighteenth Ward George Berz has a fight on with the faction which used to rally around John Rogers, and in the Twentieth Ward the old Going trouble is expected to break out again. Alderman Wulff has started a contest in the Twenty-seventh Ward, and in the Twenty-eighth the opponents of John McKenna say they will run an opposition ticket. The old Duffy-Webb row is on in the Twenty-ninth, and in the Thirty-first the usual controversy between Charles Vail and the Badenoch-Noble people is looked for.

KILLED AT GRADE CROSSINGS.

Fred Lewis and Unknown Man Are Run Down—Trolley Car Claims a Victim.

One man was killed and two other persons injured in grade crossing accidents yesterday.

The Dead.

LEWIS, FRED, 4621 Marshfield avenue; caught between two railway cars at Forty-fourth and Loomis streets; body crushed; died an hour later at his home.

The Injured.

Bush, Mrs. Jennie, 980 Newberry avenue, passenger in Kedzie avenue trolley car which collided with St. Paul freight train near Albany and Chicago avenues; badly bruised; taken home.

The body found at Lawrence avenue was that of a well dressed man, but there was nothing by which it could be identified. One hundred feet away the man's hat was found. It was cut in two. It is thought he was struck by a south-bound train and thrown to the subway. The body is at Sievers' undertaking rooms, 2312 Lincoln avenue. A card of the Laborers' Exchange, 440 State street, was found in one of the pockets. The man was about 45 years old, and had dark hair and eyes.

Hladka was a letter carrier, but was off duty at the time of the accident. He was crossing the street when he was struck.

Lewis, who was a butcher employed by Armour & Co., was crossing the tracks when he was caught between the bumpers of two cars. He was taken home by the ambulance of the Stock-Yards Police Station, but nothing could be done for him.

The street car stopped to let the freight train pass and when the gates were raised the conductor, Patrick Nevill, signaled the motorman to go ahead. Without warning the train began to back and struck the car, which was filled. All the passengers escaped but Mrs. Bush.

BANKERS ON DAWES' PLAN

CHICAGO MEN THINK CONTROLLER OF CURRENCY WRONG.

More Restrictions on Loans to Directors, They Say, Would Work Injury by Either Driving Away the Business of Best Customers or Forcing Out Ablest Members of Boards—Present 10 Per Cent Rule Too Stringent.

Chicago bankers, speaking yesterday of the recommendations made by Controller of the Currency Dawes in his annual report, expressed the fear that to throw new restrictions about loans to directors would deprive banks of their best customers. In most of the local banks care is taken to have loans to directors secured by collateral.

In several of the banks officers are not allowed to borrow there. In others where officers and employés are permitted to borrow they must put up collateral. Bankers take the position that representative men should be encouraged to enter the boards of directors of banks, and that when they are identified with some business almost of necessity they are borrowers.

Officials of Chicago banks do not favor any change in the present reserve law. They say that to compel banks to keep a larger percentage of their deposits on hand in cash would cause a sharp falling off in the totals of deposits in Chicago by country banks, and that the earning power of the institutions would be affected.

Bankers expressed their views as follows:

ERNEST A. HAMILL, President Corn Exchange National Bank—Directors are probably the largest and best customers of a bank. I approve of the principle that a bank should not loan to its officers. We never make large loans unless the collateral is of high grade. The present law in reference to reserves is a fair one.

ELBRIDGE G. KEITH, President Metropolitan National—A good rule to make is that directors, officers, or employés should put up collateral for loans. I think there should not be a change in the law respecting the reserve.

JOHN C. M'KEON, Vice President Commercial National—I am not in favor of anything that would discourage responsible business-men from becoming directors of banks. I don't think a man at the head of a bank should have large outside interests, but it is impossible to get a responsible Board of Directors without including leading business-men. At times these men have a legitimate use for funds. I think the present reserve system is satisfactory.

JAMES B. FORGAN, President First National—We have a bylaw in this bank providing that directors shall not be loaned money except on collateral.

E. D. HULBERT, Vice President Merchants' Loan and Trust company—If directors of banks are disposed to loot the bank they would probably find a way of doing it, no matter what the laws were. I see no reason why loans ever should be made to employés and officers without first being submitted to the Board of Directors. As to a bank loaning more than 10 per cent of its capital, the fact that this law is almost uniformly violated by large banks as well as small is pretty good evidence that it is a poor law and inconsistent with good banking. In speaking of the reserve the Controller has called attention to a real evil in the matter of encouragement of speculation by the accumulation of large amounts of idle funds. If it is thought that this evil is so serious as to require government interference, would it not be better to provide some system of elastic currency which would permit the retirement of circulation when not needed rather than to attempt arbitrarily to force banks in the country to keep a larger reserve than they believe to be necessary?

JOHN J. MITCHELL, President Illinois Trust and Savings—I don't think the feature of the present law restricting loans to 10 per cent of the capital is practical where the banks have collateral as security. Loans to directors and officers are not desirable where they pass on them themselves. Where collateral is given directors are the same as any one else.

JOHN A. LYNCH, President National Bank of the Republic—It would be impossible to obtain a representative Board of Directors if they could not borrow at the bank. If the reserve feature were changed it would affect deposits in large centers and also the earning power of banks.

ONE HANGS IN THE AIR, ANOTHER PINNED BY A BEAM IN STEEL WORKS.

Suspended in mid air, 100 feet from the ground, by his jacket fastened to a slender bolt, Andrew Anderson, employed on a blast furnace in the Illinois steel works, hung for an hour yesterday afternoon, while employés of the works endeavored to rescue him.

Finally by means of extension ladders the man was taken down from his perilous position, and exhausted carried to the ground. He was taken to the company's hospital, where he soon recovered.

In the evening a crane on which two men were at work fell. One of them was pinned under it and was held an hour before he was rescued. Both men were fatally hurt. The injured in the two accidents were:

The men hurt in the afternoon were all working on a scaffold at the top of a new blast furnace when the scaffolding broke. Twenty feet from the top of the blast furnace Anderson's jacket caught on a short, fragile bolt extending two inches from the surface, and his rapid descent was suddenly checked. His companions crashed through the network of scaffolding to the ground, and were later picked up unconscious and bleeding by other employés.

Alfred Johnson and Anthony Rydoski were at work on a hugh crane last night. The iron joist on which they were working broke. Rydoski was pinned between the iron and the timber. His piteous cries attracted a crowd of workmen, and the "sailor-" crew rescued the man after an hour's work.

VICTIM BEATS UP ROBBER.

A. W. PROTHERO GIVES PHIL O'HERNE SEVERE INJURIES.

Former, Once Chief of Police at Ashland, Wis., Breaks the Ribs, Cuts and Bruises the Face of the Latter, Whom He Discovers Trying to Take Wealth and Money—Holdup Man's Companion Escapes with Booty.

Phil O'Herne, a prisoner at the Desplaines Street Police Station, is a living testimonial to the fact that the holdup business is attended with considerable physical risk. O'Herne and another man, whose name is unknown to the police, tried to rob A. W. Prothero, 817 West Twelfth street, early yesterday morning while he was asleep in a saloon at West Lake and Halsted streets, and found they had run up against a terror. O'Herne's companion escaped, but O'Herne was taken to the County Hospital for repairs, with the following injuries:

One gash over the left eye.
Two blackened eyes.
One ear partly severed.
Three ribs fractured.

Former Wisconsin Chief of Police.

Prothero was once Chief of Police at Ashland, Wis., where ability to whip one's weight in wildcats is the prime qualification for the position. At present he is an employé of the Wisconsin Central railroad company. He was out for a good time on Sunday night, and in his search for enjoyment found O'Herne and his companion. After they had had several drinks Prothero went to sleep in a chair. He woke up to find O'Herne's companion tugging at his watch, and an instant later there was trouble.

O'Herne sought safety in flight, running north in Halsted street. He was overtaken by Prothero on the viaduct, and had been undergoing punishment for at least five minutes when Policeman Mulvihill heard his cries for help and came to the rescue. Mulvihill found Prothero sitting astride his victim, beating him. Under the apprehension that Prothero was a holdup man, Mulvihill arrested him, taking O'Herne as the victim.

Explanations were made at the police station, which gained Prothero his freedom. O'Herne's companion ran away with a silver watch and $5 belonging to Prothero.

Holdup in West Monroe Street.

A. P. Redfield of 1243 West Adams street, an insurance adjuster, was held up by two men in front of 508 West Monroe street at 8 o'clock last night. He was robbed of $3 and a bunch of keys. When he started from home he left a large roll of bills, remarking that he did not want to be robbed of so much money.

The Hyde Park police captured a supposed "flat worker" during the day. The man gives the name of John McDermott. Mrs. Charles Casey of 5747 Drexel avenue found the man in her flat late in the afternoon. She screamed and he fled down Drexel avenue. The man encountered Policeman Michael Grossman, who pursued him. A crowd joined in the chase and McDermott was caught.

After ransacking the home of Christ Meltzer, 150 Milton avenue, in the afternoon, burglars set fire to a mattress and fled. The fire was discovered by George Ott, who was passing. He called help and put out the fire. The burglars obtained little plunder.

Other Cases of Robbery.

Mrs. Dora Dooley's saloon at 146 La Salle avenue was robbed early in the morning. Three young men knocked down Mrs. Dooley and took $5 and a revolver from the till. Many persons were in the saloon, but the assault was so sudden that it was not before the three men had left that they recovered from their surprise. The East Chicago avenue police were notified, and detectives caught Thomas Gallagher.

Disguised as a brother of the Alexian Brothers Hospital, George Richter has for two months, it is declared, been obtaining large sums of money from residents on the North Side. He was caught when Brother Ambrose of the hospital, while walking in Belden avenue, saw him.

The grand jury voted an indictment against P. J. Morgan on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, preferred by Miss Claudia A. Kitley. The woman lives at 6017 Rhodes avenue, and was knocked down and robbed.

MAN WHO RECORDED DISCOVERY OF GOLD IN CALIFORNIA DIES.

Henry W. Bigler, One of the Men Working at Sutter's Mills When Great Strike Was Made, Passes Away at Salt Lake.

Salt Lake, Utah, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Henry W. Bigler, who made the record of the great California gold discovery in 1848, is dead at St. George, Utah. He was about 75 years old.

Bigler was a member of the Mormon battalion working at Sutter's mill race when the discovery was made. He made the following entry in his diary on Jan. 24, 1848:

Six days later he wrote in his diary that the metal, when tested, proved to be gold.

"We were building a dam and digging a tail race for the mill. Several Indians were working with us and the superintendent, James W. Marshall, was in the habit of coming down every afternoon to see how the work was progressing. The Indians had struck bed rock, which was principally rotten granite, and the work was slow. That afternoon when Mr. Marshall came down he discovered something glittering in a crevice at the base of the bed rock a few inches under water. He sent a young Indian after a tin plate. He wanted to try panning out the sand. After breakfast the next morning I was preparing to set off a blast under a bowlder in the upper part of the race when Marshall came up the channel, carying in his arms his old white hat, and with a wide grin saying:

"'Boys, I believe I have found a gold mine.' In his hat were nuggets of the yellow metal varying in size from small particles up to the size of a grain of wheat."

The gold was tested and found to be pure. Efforts were made to keep the discovery secret, but to no avail, and the California gold excitement ensued. Instead of remaining to dig gold Mr. Bigler came to Utah. He was one of the first missionaries to the Sandwich Islands, going there in 1850, he returned to Utah after a few years and took up a farm. He has always been prominent in Mormon Church circles.

BILL TO IMPROVE JACK RABBITS.

Kansas Legislature Will Introduce Measure Establishing Commission to Try Breeding Experiment.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Senator-elect Fred Dumont Smith of Edwards County will introduce a bill in the Legislature to establish a State rabbit commission. His idea is to cross the breed of the Belgian hare and jack rabbit. The jack rabbit is unfit for food, but Smith's experiments show that the meat of an animal part Belgian hare and part jack rabbit is delicious. He estimates that 40,000,000 pounds of jack rabbit meat go to waste annually in Kansas. This can all be saved as an article of food by the adoption of his scheme. He says he wants $5,000 to make experiments. He offers his services as Commissioner for two years free.

MANDELS' BLOCK DOUBLY GUARDED

Mayor Orders Police Force Increased and Non-Union Men Protected.

PICKETS ARE CHECKED.

HERMAN LILLIEN FINED.

Mayor Harrison ordered the police detail at the Mandel Bros. Building doubled yesterday, and no cases of assault were reported as occurring near the place.

Forty policemen in uniform and twelve detectives in citizens' clothing were on duty in the immediate vicinity when the whistle gave the signal for the men to quit work for the day. Whether the presence of the police in such numbers had the effect of restraining the union pickets or whether the officials of the Building Trades' council had ordered a change of policy could not be ascertained.

"I have given instructions to have the force doubled," said Mayor Harrison. "If necessary the entire force will be concentrated there. Such riots in the down-town district must stop. They are bad enough anywhere else in the city, but they cannot be tolerated a minute down-town. There are thousands of women passing and repassing that corner, and if men get in the building and start a general fusillade of pistol shots there will be a great state of affairs.

"The firm putting on the fireproof covering complained to me yesterday that the activity of the strikers interfered with its men. I have given Chief of Police Kipley instructions to place detectives on guard, so that arrests will be made if trouble be started. Orders have been issued that the persons making assaults shall be taken before the grand jury. This interference with workmen must be stopped.

"There is a legitimate way to settle strikes and labor difficulties and it must be followed."

Many Pickets Present.

At quitting time at least a dozen business agents and officials of the Building Trades council were patrolling the building at Madison street and Wabash avenue, under the eyes of the police. The non-union workingmen, as they came out, were placed under the protection of from two to five policemen, according to their number, and escorted to street cars. A number of the men left by the elevated trains, the police keeping watch at the station to see that they were not followed.

It was reported later in the evening that a fight had taken place at Harrison street and Wabash avenue between four negro laborers employed on the Mandel Building and a half dozen union pickets, in which the former had been worsted, but inquiry of persons who had been on the scene all the evening failed to confirm the report.

President Lillien Fined.

Herman Lillien, President and business agent of the Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' union, was fined $5 and costs for persistent loitering in the vicinity of the Mandel Building since the strike was declared. Frank Thoman, arrested for pasting and distributing boycott labels, was fined $3 and costs.

Hold to Building Trades Council.

Acting on the demand from the Master Steamfitters' association that they make known their position on the question of withdrawal from the Building Trades council before proceeding further in the attempt to effect an agreement, the Journeymen Steamfitters' union voted unanimously last night in favor of remaining with the central organization. The vote puts an end to the negotiations between the journeymen and master steamfitters, unless the latter should modify their attitude toward the Building Trades council.

Ten men who had joined the independent union of plumbers were expelled from the regular Journeymen Plumbers' union last night as an additional warning that disloyalty to the Building Trades council is attended with a penalty.

BLACKLIST CASE IS ON TRIAL.

Justin Wyman, in $50,000 Suit Against Master Plumbers and Others, Says His Business Was Ruined.

A case involving the right of different trades to join in an effort to control the material market is being tried by Judge Clifford. It is a suit for $50,000, begun by Justin Wyman & Co. against the Chicago Master Plumbers' association, the Raymond Lead company, and the L. Wolff Manufacturing company. The plaintiffs pleaded their business was ruined by what they term a blacklist, published by the Master Plumbers' association.

The suit began some time ago as the result of the action of the Master Plumbers' association on Jan. 20, 1898, the result, the plaintiffs assert, being their retirement perforce from the plumbing business, and later from the plumbing supply business.

Justin Wyman was the chief witness in the trial yesterday. He alleges a fine of $100 was imposed upon him by the Master Plumbers' association because he employed journeymen plumbers, contrary to the orders of the association. He refused to pay it, and he said his name was taken from the list of members and placed upon a list which was described as being unfriendly.

He traced the destruction of his business to this action, which, he said, deterred members of the association from working for him and dealers from purchasing their supplies from him. He said his credit always was good, and when he had sought to secure supplies from the Raymond Lead company and the L. Wolff Manufacturing company he was unable to buy anything.

He testified that John Clifford and L. Wolff of the L. Wolff Manufacturing company both had told him if he came and tendered them the money for the goods they would have to tell him they had not the goods in stock. This, Mr. Wyman said, was an evidence of the far-reaching effects of the blacklist to which he had been forced to submit at the dictates of the Master Plumbers' association. He said he had to quit the business of plumbing and gasfitting and had entered that of furnishing supplies, but he found it impossible to replenish his $12,000 stock, and soon was compelled to retire. He said the "conspiracy was far-reaching and oppressive, almost the entire labor and material market being controlled by said defendants."

TELLS CLERK TO IGNORE COURT.

William M. Townsend, Assistant Manager for A. Montgomery Ward, Fined $100 for Contempt.

William M. Townsend, assistant manager for the firm of A. Montgomery Ward & Co., was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Brentano for advising one of his clerks to pay no attention to a summons to serve on a jury in the Superior Court.

James H. Parle, the juror, had explained to the court his failure to appear, and a bailiff was sent for Townsend. When he appeared Judge Brentano said:

"A summons to serve on a jury is paramount to any inconvenience which the absence of a worker under you may occasion the company you represent. I will fine you $100 for contempt of court, and, unless the fine is paid, you will stand committed to the County Jail. The summons for jury service is of more importance than the business of any corporation."

SALE OF DALY TROTTERS.

Some of the Prominent Bidders and Buyers Are Unknown to the Turf World and Not Even Their Names Are Given—Erirange, a Two-Year-Old, Brings the Top Price of $5,400—Smuhlbach of Wheeling Secures Lady Thisbe for $4,100.

[BY H. T. WHITE.]

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The Marcus Daly estate converted thirty-nine head of trotting colts into cash today at the Madison Square Garden auction. The amount realized for the lot was $28,236, or an average of $725 per head. Six of the lot bought $17,435, and one of them sold for $5,400.

The top price was paid for the 2-year-old filly Erirange, that won a good race at Lexington and made a record of 2:21 in so doing. It was thought the 3-year-old filly, Lady Thisbe, whose record is 2:16¼, would bring more than any of her stable mates, and for this reason she was placed first in the 1,800 horses to be sold this week, but the best offer for her was $4,100, and at that price she went to the bid of Henry Smuhlbach of Wheeling, W. Va., a wealthy brewer, who is always on the lookout for speedy additions to his racing stable. The only real competitor with Smuhlbach for the filly was E. T. Bedford, a Brooklynite, who is a great road rider, but he quite at the $4,000 mark.

When Erirange was led into the ring it was soon evident several of the talent had an eye on her, and in three bids she was at $2,500. "Knapsack" McCarthy, who was bidding for ex-Chief of Detectives Byrnes, had a limit of $3,500 from his patron, and went there by big jumps, but the others held on. Ed Tipton bid $3,000 for a St. Louis man who did not want his name known, and J. W. Cooke, the Philadelphia dry goods man, did his own talking up to $4,000. In the meantime William Simpson, the big New York pawn broker, had joined the game at the $3,200 mark and he held on well. At $4,100 Driver John Turner of Philadelphia got on the firing line, and it was a duel between him and Simpson. With raises of $100 they kept going until Turner said $5,400, when Simpson walked away, and the best sold young trotter of the year went to the Quaker City.

Bidder from New England.

Herbert Gray, who does the buying for Lawson of carnation and copper stocks fame, was on hand and made a few bids on Erirange and one or two others, but the only one he bought was the 2-year-old filly Spatula, a daughter of Milrof, dam by Prodigal, that he got for $700. The second horse on the list, Impeachment, with a record of 2:18¼, went to $1,235 on his road qualities, but four figures were not reached again until Priola, a 2-year-old with a record of 2:20 against the watch, was put up.

Then a new bidder came on. He was a quiet-looking young man, who arrived early in the morning and planked down $10,000 in cold cash with the management of the sale.

"I don't want to be advertised," he said, "and so am giving you this money in advance. If I buy any horses you can take the price of that and hand me the balance when the sale is over."

He gave the name of A. Cutler and said he was from New England, but declined to go any closer to home. Mr. Cutler spent $3,350 of his roll for Priola, and the price shows there were others who were eager to buy records, as no one who saw the filly perform in her only start of the year, where she was distanced after showing the most speed of all the field, would want her to go to the races with.

That demonstrated speed would sell way up was again shown when Lissadil, a 2-year-old with a record of only 2:29¾, was brought out. She went to $2,350 on the best sort of bidding and fell to Joseph Rochester of Philadelphia. None of the people from that town knew who Mr. Rochester was, and the impression is that a new rich man is starting a stable of trotters.

Lumber Jack, a 2-year-old, whose mark is 2:30, brought $1,000, and he was the last to bring that much. The rest of the Daly lot were well bred and had gone good trials at home, but there were no records, and as no guarantee of soundness was given with them the prices fell away, although the average for the entire consignment was high and showed the market, even for prospects, to be better than ever.

The Gamin, a 2:14¾ trotter, record made this season, was put up and went for $700. This horse was bred by Daly, although not owned by his estate, and closed the sale of that consignment.

Chicagoans in Attendance.

There was a big attendance of representative horse lovers from all parts of the country, and Chicago was well represented by C. K. G. Billings, Fred Hartwell, Alderman Fowler, John Pahlman, Willard Cave, George Jerome, W. H. McDoel, and Dick McMahon. Every other large city had its road riders on hand, and the drivers were all here, among them John Splan, John Turner, Amos Rathbun, Will Young, William Hakill, Joe Thayer, Mike Bowerman, Charles Marvin, Billy Weeks, John Tappan, the last two coming from Europe, where they have lived for many years.

J. B. Haggin, the noted breeder of thoroughbreds, was on hand, looking for bargains in trotters, and W. F. Steele, C. W. Williams, and others well known in the West put in an appearance.

In the evening Lamp Girl, 2:09, was the star, and G. B. Loring of Worcester, Mass., got her at $3,000. The pacer Jersey Mac, formerly of Chicago, brought $500.

I learned tonight on the best authority that Erirange, sold for $5,400, was bought for Frank Ellis of Philadelphia, who was prominent on the turf years ago, but has not figured much of late. John Turner will drive the filly.

JOCKEY MARTY BERGEN SET DOWN.

His Tame Finish on The Lady Displeases Tanforan Judges.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Although it rained heavily on Sunday the track at Tanforan dried in phenomenal style, and the mud larks did not cut the figure anticipated.

Mocorito, the favorite in the first race at 6½ furlongs, led until the saddling paddock, when she was passed by several, High Ho winning cleverly from Osmond and Plohn.

Dr. Bernays beat the big field opposed to him in the 7-furlong dash in rather handy fashion. Salvation, a stake horse in 1897, made his reappearance on the turf in this race, but finished in the ruck.

Rolling Boer took up 125 pounds and captured the 2-year-old race at 6 furlongs from Bedeck in a style that demonstrated he is a high-class youngster.

Wooster Boy spreadeagled his field in the fourth race at 1 mile and 70 yards. The Lady was second and Gold Or third. Herculean, the only other starter, swerved as the barrier shot up, and was left. Marty Bergen, who rode The Lady, was set down by the judges for his lethargic ride.

Maxello, Eight Dollars, and Meadow Lark finished in the money in the order named in the fifth race at 7 furlongs. Nellie Forest made a great bid for the last race, but Dangerfield beat her out in the last sixteenth.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—Four favorites and two second choices took the money at Bennings today. The track was heavy. The judges' decision in the fourth race gave considerable dissatisfaction. The popular impression was that Quite Right and San Luis ran a dead heat. Jockey Slack claimed Quite Right had fouled him, but the claim was disallowed.

CHICAGO DOGS AT CINCINNATI SHOW.

J. W. Wakem and E. H. Ingwersen Make a Number of Entries.

Entries for the Cincinnati Fox Terrier club's annual show of the smart little dogs it fosters closed yesterday, and the hundred and more include six from Chicago. These six are the pick of the great number of well-bred fox terriers owned here, and local fanciers look for them to do well against all comers in the Cincinnati ring.

J. Wallace Wakem has entered a team of four from his Seldon Farm Kennels, where he has over fifty to select from. In the novice class he has Seldon Slap, in the limit class Seldon Simcoe and Seldon Stuyve, and in the open class the imported dog Veracious, which stands at the head of Mr. Wakem's big string. Besides the class prizes they will compete for several cups and the team prize. Seldon Stuyve won several blue ribbons as a puppy at the Chicago, Kansas City, and St. Paul shows last spring, and yesterday he was sent to compete in the open class at Philadelphia, where a large dog show will be held from Wednesday to Saturday of this week. He will join his kennel companions at Cincinnati. Mr. Wakem, who has bred a great many terriers of quality, thinks highly of this young dog.

The two other Chicago entries for the Cincinnati fox terrier show are Daddy and Richmond, an imported brace owned by E. H. Ingwersen, a wealthy cattle dealer from the Stock-Yards, who has paid long prices for some of the best terriers produced in England. Both have won many prizes, and it is expected they will be the strongest competitors Mr. Wakem's dogs will meet.

HERBERT TWEEDIE IS AN AMATEUR.

Is Reinstated by the United States Golf Association.

Herbert J. Tweedie, the local golfer, yesterday received a letter from Robert Bage Kerr, secretary of the United States Golfing association, announcing he had been reinstated as an amateur. The news was welcome to Tweedie, who had long felt he was placed in a false position by being classed as a professional. He had never played or taught for money, although having laid out golf courses. At the time of the open championship President Thomas and Secretary Kerr, together with H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, talked the matter over and agreed to take Tweedie under advisement.

Tweedie is undoubtedly one of the best amateurs in the West and his presence on the team of the club to which he belongs will do much to strengthen it.

George Braid and his father, Robert Braid, who have been at Kansas City through the summer, arrived in the city yesterday. They will sail on Saturday for Scotland. David Mentiply, George Turpie, and James Herd will also sail for home on Saturday. George Braid has signed a contract with the Town and Country club of St. Paul for next summer. William Fovargue, who was with the club this year, will spend the winter at Thomasville, Ga.

A. Christie of the Riverside Golf club has gone to Phoenix, Ariz., for a four months engagement with the local club.

A match game between several of the local professionals will be played at Washington Park club today.

Accepts Chicago Woman's Challenge.

Toledo, O., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Miss Rose Murray, when informed of the challenge of Mrs. Wachsmuth of Chicago, announced her readiness to accept it, and said she would play for $1,000 a side, if desired, or merely for the fun of it. Her father, Dr. Murray, said this evening that if Mrs. Wachsmuth came to Toledo he would be pleased to entertain her at his residence. Miss Murray is ready at any moment to begin the proposed matches.

NEW COACH AT MICHIGAN.

EDWARDS, PRINCETON GUARD, APPEARS AT ANN ARBOR.

Tiger Captain of Last Year Gives the Wolverine Line Some Valuable Pointers, and Their Effects Are Expected to Show Against the Maroons on Thursday—Stagg's Players Indulge in Practice That Is Satisfactory to the Coach.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—At the eleventh hour Michigan has received a prop in the coaching line that has already developed marked results. "Big Bill" Edwards, Princeton's '99 captain, arrived in Ann Arbor today and with his 248 pounds thrust into football jeans put the varsity guards through their paces this afternoon.

With the Princeton trio, Biffy Lea, Jim Knight, and Edwards, Michigan has an expert for every critical spot in the lineup, barring the back field, and the evidence of the big guard's presence was not long in showing up.

Edwards believes in practical demonstration of the tactics he teaches, and he went in at scrub guard opposite "King" Kelly in the afternoon's scrimmage, a move that more than once sent the Michigan man spinning on his head.

The practice was most satisfactory to the coaches. All the varsity material was in the field, barring Full Back Sweeley, whose kicking leg is being carefully guarded over against Thanksgiving day.

The whole contents of Lea's handbook of formation were flashed on the rooters, and there was much enthusiasm shown over the unerring way the team reeled off the various plays.

There is a marked improvement since the Ohio game on Saturday, and although Michigan played anything but mediocre football on that occasion, and both offense and defense are strong and aggressive, the men should be at the top of their form on Thursday, as not the slightest evidence of staleness has so far shown.

Tomorrow night a squad of eighteen will leave for Chicago, and on arrival will go directly to the Chicago Beach Hotel, the official Michigan headquarters. On Wednesday morning the scrubs will follow, and join the advance guard in the afternoon. There is nothing but confidence in the Michigan camp.

A big delegation of Michigan rooters will throng the special trains on Wednesday morning, and the sale of tickets has proved a record breaker so far.

MAROONS PRACTICE VIGOROUSLY.

They Make Three Touchdowns Against a Strong Line of Scrubs.

The Chicago team started in on its last three days of grace yesterday with encouraging practice, in which a decided improvement was shown over last week's work. The men are getting used to their new lineup and as a result the work is going much smoother.

The varsity was lined against the strong scrubs and pushed them over field with ease. The scrub lineup included Kennedy, Herschberger, Ahlswede, Ervin, Moth, and Fowler, all big men, but the varsity succeeded in making three touchdowns. The men were also practiced at catching punts and showed surprising improvement in this work also.

All season the men have failed to catch the kicks, but now there is a decided change of form. Henry, Sheldon, Garrey, and Lord were all at work taking care of the kicks and did well. Speed was not out for practice, but expects to get out today. Flanagan was at practice and is in shape once more.

It is pretty certain Carey will not play again this year, as his injury has developed into enlargement of the heart. It is a continuation of the old injury received at Minneapolis and has been made worse through the hard work he has been doing in the line. His place was taken by Conrad, who did good work.

Sheldon was continued at half back, and it is fairly certain he will play that position next Thursday. Garrey will act as quarter back. Sheldon has developed into a good half and will have more opportunity to play his best game than he has had heretofore this year as quarter back.

Stagg is working at some new formations with which to block Michigan's plays, but what they were he of course would not say. He was, however, in a good humor after practice and said the team was coming right up in its work. He seems to think the long looked for brace has arrived. He will not admit that Michigan has proved to be a weak team because Ohio prevented it from scoring, and maintains that the Buckeye eleven is strong this season.

"Practice went well tonight," he said. "The men have improved a great deal and the way they pushed the scrub team around today was encouraging. The Thanksgiving game is not going to be an easy one for Michigan, and we have strong hopes of quitting with a final victory to our credit. There was no fumbling and the team work was much better. I do not know just how the team will be lined up for the last game, but I think I will play Sheldon at half, with Garrey as quarter."

COACH HOLLISTER'S NEW TANDEM.

He Uses the Dietz Brothers and Johnson on the Offensive.

When Dr. Hollister, the Northwestern coach, lines up his protégés against Iowa on Thanksgiving day he will have a set of backs who will surely give hard work for the Iowa line. Captain Dietz and his brother, "Geddy," have been taken from the line and made the first and second men in the tandem, with Johnson, the fleet little dodger, the last of the trio. It is evidently the purpose of the purple coach to batter the Iowa line, and if the Dietz boys hold out he will certainly carry out his purpose. They are the heaviest men on the team, and both have already acquired a reputation at running with the ball from their line position.

What they are able to do from the back field was seen last night when they punctured the scrubs' line time after time, or when they were sent out as an interference for Johnson on his end runs. It is undoubtedly a change that will help the team materially.

Ward will be shifted from center to right guard to take Captain Dietz's place, and Fleager will fill in at right tackle, the position that G. O. Dietz has filled so well. Shock will again return to center.

The Dietz brothers will return to their regular positions when the team is on the defensive, and Ward will again hold down the center, while Shock and Fleager will play the rush line halves.

McChesney was in the lineup last night, and will probably be used in the Iowa game for his kicking ability.

The changes made will leave both Breedin and Davidson out of the game. It is rather strange that no place can be found for these men, who have put up such a strong game in every contest in which they have taken part.

Elliot has regained his former position at left end, and is as speedy as ever, but occasionally shows his old weakness of running back with the ball. "Lieber" Hanson, the nervy left tackle, will be used a great deal in carrying the ball.

The practice yesterday showed a great improvement over that of last week, when the men were still feeling the effects of their game with the Gophers.

All of the players are in good shape.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The Iowa team had its first outdoor practice since the Grinnell game today, and showed up in excellent form. Captain Griffith and Eby are in fine condition, and will be strong when the Northwestern game is played. It will be Captain Griffith's last gridiron battle. The team was swift today, and entered into the play with great dash and vigor.

THOMPSON HAS PLENTY OF PLAYERS.

Many Offer Their Services for the Saturday Game Against Yale.

Chicago's All Star football team will start practice tonight for its match on Saturday against the Yale Law School team. As many as possible of the local aggregation will meet at the Armour Gymnasium to run through the signals. Alderman William Hale Thompson and several of the ex-cherry circle players met last night at the Grand Pacific Hotel to arrange signals and discuss the selection of a team. From the number of applications received there will be enough players to select three or four good teams, and the difficulty will be to discriminate.

Right end—Baeder, C. A. A.; Graver, C. A. A.

Herschberger is a trifle uncertain, as he expects to go home for the holidays, but says he would like to play. The public would undoubtedly be glad to see him again in action. Phil Draper writes he will leave for Chicago on Thanksgiving night.

There is no doubt Manager Thompson will be able to present a strong lineup, and with such heavy men as Paulman, Stewart, Thomas, and McWeeney, the local aggregation should outweigh the visitors.

The proceeds of the match will be divided between St. Luke's Hospital, Mercy Hospital, Visiting Nurses' association, Old People's Home, Illinois Manual Training School farm at Glenwood, First Unitarian society charity fund, and Michael Reese Hospital.

Although not under the auspices of the Chicago Athletic association, the directors will urge the members to give the match their support.

S. T. A. Loftis, chairman of the Charity committee, yesterday sold ten boxes in ten minutes, among the buyers being J. K. Armsby, R. Prindle, Sam Thall, Sam H. Hunt, F. Lyon Roach, and Frank Fanning.

YALE CONSOLIDATED TEAM LINEUP.

List of the Men Who Will Play in Chicago on Saturday.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Captain Fred A. Wenck of the Yale consolidated football eleven tonight finally selected the eleven which he will take to the Northwest for its Thanksgiving trip. It will be made up practically of the college team which opposed the varsity in the regular daily practice all fall. It is undoubtedly the strongest Yale consolidated eleven which ever took the gridiron.

Kunzig played several games on the varsity this fall. He was first substitute left tackle all fall. He rowed No. 4 in the Yale varsity eight which walloped Harvard by quarter of a mile on the Thames last June. Wade has been regular center on the law school eleven all the fall. He was substitute guard on the Yale varsity last year. Gaylord is the old Lawrenceville Academy guard. Hyde played full back for Wesleyan University two years ago. He was full back for the Yale varsity several games this fall. He pressed Hale closely for the position, but damaged his eye so badly in the Dartmouth game that he was out of the practice for a month. Hart is a brother of Ridge Hart, the Princeton half back. He played half back on the scrubs most of this fall. Easton was also half back on the scrubs.

This eleven will leave here tomorrow afternoon for Detroit, where it will play its Thanksgiving game. On Saturday it will meet the Chicago stars in Chicago.

YALE PLAYERS BACK AT RECITATION

Election of Captain Is Postponed—Departure of Coaches.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Yale's football players this morning began attending their recitations as usual with the exception of C. H. Brown, Guard Sheldon, and Center Rush Olcott, who will take a week at their homes to rest after their exciting game against Harvard. Their departure will cause the postponement of the election of a Captain until next week. Gould, Stillman, Weare, Hale, and Sharpe are all mentioned as candidates, although Weare and Stillman will graduate in June.

Movements are on foot to give the Yale champion eleven a banquet as a testimonial of the alumni and undergraduates aside from that tendered them by the Football association on Saturday night. The Yale University club talks of giving one on behalf of the undergraduates, and the New York alumni favors one on behalf of the graduates. Nothing definite, however, has been decided in either case.

The Yale Football association today reported that it received about $42,000 from the game, to be divided equally with Harvard.

George Sawin, the Harvard half back, who was left here by the crimson eleven, said today that his stay was occasioned by a desire to visit his uncle, N. W. Kendall, the millionaire brewer of this city, rather than because of injuries. He will go to Boston tomorrow.

F. W. ALLEN TO COACH YALE CREW.

Captain of Last Year's Boat Is Selected for the Position.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Yale's crew coach next year will be Fred Winthrop Allen of Walpole, Mass. This announcement was authorized tonight on the authority of Captain Augustus Blagden of the Yale varsity navy. Allen was Captain of the Yale eight which last June led Harvard by nearly a quarter of a mile at the end of the four-mile race on the Thames. Allen will come to New Haven in a few weeks and take charge of the varsity candidates, remaining with them until the three races with Harvard are rowed at New London next June. He will have full control of the rowing policy, and with Captain Blagden will determine the stroke which is to be rowed.

The system of having a large number of former Captains and oarsmen come here and spend a few days as acting head coaches will be abolished, although all former oarsmen will be welcomed. Captain Allen will be distinctively the leading coach. John Kennedy, the former professional oarsman, will have charge of all the rigging and general supervision of the boats.

De Pauw, 47; Hanover, 0.

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—De Pauw easily defeated Hanover today by a score of 47 to 0. During the first ten minutes of play Hanover was able to hold De Pauw's line, but after that time De Pauw broke through the visitors' lines, and made runs around the ends, scoring at will. By winning this game De Pauw wins the championship of the secondary league of Indiana colleges. The game was too one-sided to be interesting.

Games of the High Schools.

South Division High School will play the Northwestern University freshmen today at the former's field, at Twenty-sixth street and Wabash avenue. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. On Thanksgiving day South Division will go to Moline, Ill., to play the Moline High School. Moline claims the State championship outside of Chicago.

RYAN TO FIGHT CARTER TONIGHT.

Tommy Ryan, the undoubted middleweight champion of the world, will make another appearance at Tattersall's tonight, where he is booked to meet Kid Carter, the Brooklyn 158-pounder, in the windup. His last appearance in the big local arena was with Jack Root. On that occasion both contestants were unmercifully roasted by some of the critics. The exhibition put up by Ryan did not suit some of the spectators, who thought he should have taken chances with Root. Now the report is being circulated that Ryan is anxious to rehabilitate himself in the good graces of the fight-going public, and if these are to be credited he will at the sound of the gong tonight wade in and put Carter to sleep in short order. Under these circumstances it is perhaps well to realize that Ryan is too old a pugilist to take any unnecessary chances. He is after the long end of the purse, and is just as satisfied to get it by outpointing his man as by taking a chance to put him to sleep.

If the fight is to be fast and hard Carter is the man to take it so, and, judging from his exhibition at the Star Theater against Tim Murphy, he is likely to try hard enough. As far as cleverness is concerned he is no match for Ryan, but having fully as good a punch in either hand and the advantage of about ten pounds in weight he figures he has a chance. The men will weigh in at 158 pounds at 6 o'clock. Carter will have to keep working in order to make the figure, while Ryan can scale several pounds under without any trouble.

Harry Harris has a call of 10 to 7 with the money wise in the match with Clarence Forbes. Kid McFadden, San Francisco's red top champion, and Morris Rauch are expected to furnish a rattling scrimmage. Jeff Thorne and Barney Connors are down for another bout. The Englishman thinks this is about the first time he has had anything in the nature of an even match. Larry Gleason and Harry Griffin, at 130 pounds, and Joe Sherlock and Gene McGovern, at 125 pounds, will show in the curtain raisers.

George Siler, Ben Donnelley, and Malachy Hogan will be the referees, and Joe Humphreys, announcer of the Broadway Athletic club, will furnish the oratory for the evening.

LONG KNOCKS OUT MARTIN JUDGE.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—One lone woman in male attire and about 600 men saw Bob Long, colored, defeat Martin Judge in the tenth round of their twenty-round contest tonight. The blows that brought to Long the long end of the purse were two right-hand solar plexus drives. The first, a terrific smash, made Judge blink a bit and draw in his body. The second came a few seconds later and did the business. Bob steadied himself and when he got himself rightly balanced he let fly his right and landed it heavily and solidly right below Judge's short ribs. The blow did not upset Martin, but lifted him clean off his feet. The fight, as far as it went, was fast in spots only. Martin, by right-hand body blows, with an occasional shift of the left for the head, had a shade the better of affairs. It must be said for Long, however, that he had not cut loose. He was playing a waiting game, seemingly to tire Martin, then go in to finish him. The ten-round preliminary bout between Jack Lewis and Pete Boyle resulted in a draw.

Queenan and Jackson Fight Today.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 26.—Before the Omaha Athletic club tomorrow night Perry Queenan of Chicago and "Young Peter" Jackson, the colored welterweight, will fight twenty rounds.

Art Sims Whips Whittaker.

Akron, O., Nov. 26.—Art Sims tonight defeated Johnny Whittaker of Cleveland in seventeen rounds. Whittaker was all but out when the referee stopped the fight.

DEFENDER WILL BE AT 35-FOOTER.

Chicago Yacht Club Takes Action Regarding the Race with Canada.

The yachts which compete for the Canada's Cup on Lake Michigan next summer will be thirty-five feet in racing length. This was determined at the Chicago Yacht club's special meeting last night, the Canadians having already signified that the same size as prevailed in 1899 would be again agreeable to them.

The Cup committee, which will have complete control of the international series of races for the Canada's Cup, also was determined. It will consist of Commodores Charles A. Thorne, chairman; John B. Berryman, George Warrington, and Edward Rosing.

Another important result of the meeting was that all doubt as to the immediate building of the much discussed new clubhouse was dispelled by the subscription by thirty-four members of $6,000 as a starter toward a fund of $20,000 which the club has decided to expend. One thousand of the amount pledged was subscribed by H. George Lytton. As the club has a membership of 143, there are 111 to hear from, and a new clubhouse next summer is assured. Its location will be on the lake front—after the inner basin has been filled in—approximately at the foot of Monroe street.

George Lawrence resigned as a member of the club's Board of Managers and George M. Pynchon was elected to fill the vacancy. George R. Peare's resignation as the club's delegate to the Lake Michigan Yachting association was accepted and E. P. Warner appointed. George B. Shattuck was elected to serve out W. R. Crawford's unexpired term on the Board of Managers.

A committee was authorized to write the American clubs of the Yacht Racing Union of the Great Lakes to build boats to compete in the trial races for the selection of a defender of the Canada's Cup.

Commodore Thorne recalled C. E. Kemer's statement that the Detroit Yacht club would build a defender and said he had heard somewhere that the Cleveland Yacht club has a similar intention.

Vice Commodore Masters announced a syndicate in course of organization, but not yet ready for names to be mentioned.

The boat which Messrs. Pynchon, Dunn, and Carpenter are about to build will be named Illinois.

R. F. Myers Reinstated.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 26.—The Turf congress has reinstated R. F. Myers of Dayton, O., who was ruled off at Chicago some years ago.

PHOENIX BOWLERS ENCOUNTER A HARD PROPOSITION.

Hofmanns Defeat Them Three Straight Games by Rolling at a 972 Gait—Best Work of the Season to Date—Match Is Closely Fought Throughout—Fast Finish by W. V. Thompson — Results of Various League Contests.

Phenomenal bowling marked the series rolled last night in the Chicago league between the Hofmann and Phœnix teams. Although averaging the fine figures of 931, the Phœnix men had to put up with three straight defeats, their opponents making the league average record with 972. It was a grandly rolled series, in which the Phœnix players were only beaten after a hard battle. In the second game the teams were tied in the eighth frame, with 802, while in the first the Hofmanns led by only ten pins in the ninth. Not since the State tournament in the early part of the year has any such rolling been seen. Then the Chicago league team averaged 983, against Peoria, and 982 1-3 against the South End league. The Hofmanns' average to date for eighteen games is 931 14-18.

Of the many fine performances recorded last night one of the best was by W. V. Thompson, the Phœnix player, who in the second game made 147 out of a possible 150 pins in the last five frames.

TELL OF ERRORS IN THE COUNT.

Judges and Clerks of Election Appear Before Judge Carter and Commissioners.

The judges, clerks, and challengers of the Seventh Precinct of the Thirty-fourth Ward and the Twenty-second Precinct of the Tenth Ward appeared before Judge Carter and the Board of Election Commissioners in the City Hall yesterday. It was declared that in the Thirty-fourth Ward the clerks in the Seventh Precinct had given both Republican and Democratic candidates more votes than were registered, and that in the Tenth Ward's Twenty-second Precinct there were discrepancies between the poll books, tally sheets, and police reports.

In the Seventh Precinct of the Thirty-fourth Ward 673 voters were registered. Only one set of votes, that for Presidential Electors and Governor, was correct. They numbered 673, the number of voters registered. For Lieutenant Governor 711 votes were cast, according to the returns, and for Secretary of State 721 votes. Judge Carter asked the men for detailed statements as to their methods of counting.

It was related that the number of ballots was so large that after the straight tickets had been taken out the judges formulated a plan of counting the split tickets. Lists were made out on cards as the ballots were counted and the numbers added one from the other. When the finals were reached, about 10 o'clock the morning after election, the figures were given to the clerks and were then counted on the tally sheets.

The examination was completed without any apparent success in determining the cause of the discrepancies in the votes cast. In the case of the Twenty-second Precinct of the Tenth Ward errors had been made on the tally sheets. They were corrected.

One hundred and sixty members were present at the dinner, and that number of steins added to the collection in the buffet dining-room. A mandolin orchestra and vaudeville performers supplied the entertainment.

DOWIE'S PLANT A NEW INDUSTRY

Secretary Gage Gives Reasons for Decision to Admit Lacemakers.

NO VIOLATION OF LAW.

OLEO FIGHT IS NOT ENDED.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage, as forecasted in THE TRIBUNE this morning, today decided to admit the lacemakers imported by Dr. John A. Dowie, who came to this country to work in the lace factory at Waukegan, Ill., holding that the industry is a new one.

Lacemakers for Zion to Work at a New Industry.

Commissioner Powderly declined to admit the lacemakers to this country, and they appealed from his decision. Secretary Gage sustained the appellants on the ground that the industry in which they will be employed is a new one, that the alien contract labor laws have not been violated, and he ordered the release of the lacemakers. It also was charged that these people were likely to become public charges.

After the Secretary had rendered his opinion Commissioner Powderly sent the following dispatch to the Commissioner of Immigration at Philadelphia, where the newcomers now are held:

"After consideration of the evidence submitted and the argument of counsel submitted thereon, it appears it is the purpose of Dr. John A. Dowie, who had arranged with the appellants to come over with the purpose to secure their services in the manufacture not only of lace but also of the thread from which lace is to be made. Although lacemaking in some of its branches has been carried on in this country for some years heretofore, it seems to have been the practice to import the thread used in such establishments.

"The department is of the opinion the said industry is a new one not established and is within the exception mentioned in the act of Feb. 26, 1885, and as it is not claimed or shown by the representatives of the Lacemakers' union that labor could not have been obtained in this country to prosecute the industry, there is apparently no violation of the alien contract labor law.

"In view of the foregoing the appeal is sustained and you are directed to release and land the appellants, the relatives and dependents of the principals, who were debarred as likely to become public charges."

One of the most important functions of the evening was a dinner given by the Belgian Minister and the Countess Lichtervelde in honor of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the United States Minister to Belgium. The guests were the Spanish Minister and the Duchess of Arcos, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Cridler, Miss Maud Pauncefote, Count Quadt of the German Embassy, H. C. Norman, Third Secretary of the British Embassy, and Count Beaudoin Lichtervelde.

Speaker Reed reached here this morning and went immediately to the Ways and Means committee-room at the Capitol, where he spent the greater portion of the day. The presence of Mr. Reed here at this time excited considerable comment, especially as he represents clients who are interested in the repeal of some sections of the war revenue act.

Thomas B. Reed Appears Before House Committee.

Mr. Reed reached the committee-room some time before the subcommittee now drafting a bill repealing parts of the war revenue act arrived. The ex-Speaker remained, however, until the arrival of the subcommittee, which consists of Representatives Payne, Dalzell, and Hopkins.

When the subcommittee was called to order, although its meetings are supposed to be secret, Mr. Reed did not depart, but remained for nearly two hours during the executive meeting, from which every one else was barred. It had been announced that this committee would not even grant hearings, but if any one interested in the repeal of the war taxes desired to do so he could submit his views in writing.

There is a disposition on the part of the committee to go a little farther in repealing the taxes than was intended at first, and it would not be surprising if the war tax of 60 cents a thousand on cigars should be dropped. The committee also is considering the removal of the tax on steamship tickets, bills of lading, foreign bills of exchange, and on conveyances and mortgages.

Rear Admiral Farquhar will take the North Atlantic squadron on a winter's cruise to the West Indies. The command will include three battleships—the Kearsarge, Alabama, and Massachusetts. It is proposed also to have in the fleet five torpedo boats, the evolutions of which will be watched with great interest by the naval experts.

Representative Tawney of Minnesota expects to renew the fight at once for the oleomargarine bill, which has been made the special order in the House for Thursday of next week. "Farmers from the Atlantic to the Pacific," he said today, "are in favor of the bill, and the consumer who wishes pure butter is with them. A petition of 5,000,000 farmers has been signed in favor of the bill.

Oleomargarine Fight Will Be Resumed at Once.

"In thirty-two States there are prohibitive laws against the manufacture of oleomargarine colored as butter. Notwithstanding these laws 79,000,000 pounds of the spurious article was sold in these States last year. If the bill passes oleomargarine will become subject to the laws in these States, and a great reform in food products will result.

"The bill reduces the present tax of two cents to one-quarter of a cent per pound on the natural color of oleomargarine, and increases it to 10 cents when colored in the semblance of butter. The average cost of producing a pound of natural butter is 17 cents, while the average cost of a pound of oleomargarine is seven cents, including the two cents tax. The imposition of the tax of 10 cents would raise the cost to about that of pure butter and would make oleomargarine an article of fair competition to the farmer, and the people at large would know what they were getting."

Quite a sensation was caused at the Pension Office today by the discovery of a "speak easy" maintained by a large number of clerks, some of whom have been found at their desks in an intoxicated condition. Some of these men have been slated for dismissal, and all those who have been engaged in bringing intoxicants into the office are extremely nervous, fearing their official heads soon will be cut off.

Private Bar in Fileroom at Pension Office.

Commissioner Evans and other Pension Office officials have noticed for some time past that a number of the clerks reported for duty in the morning perfectly sober, but during the day several were seen to be under the influence of some intoxicant. A watch was set upon one of the principal offenders and before long it was discovered he made frequent visits to the fileroom of the department, located in an out-of-the-way place in the building. Upon returning to his desk it was plain he had been drinking intoxicants, and when accused of doing so made a confession and implicated two fellow-clerks.

It developed that these three men were running a coöperative "speak easy," each one in turn bringing enough whisky to the office one day to supply the trio. The investigation developed that others were engaged in the same practice, and it is claimed at least fifty clerks were implicated. When all the facts are known it is quite certain Commissioner Evans will be called upon to fill a number of vacancies caused by the dismissal of men who have endeavored to convert a government department into a saloon.

Senator Morgan of Alabama, the father of the Nicaraguan Canal scheme in Congress, said today: "I am in favor of the ratification of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and I think this treaty will be disposed of favorably. I understand that there has been a great deal of discussion on the subject of the fortification of the canal, but, as a matter of fact, this question is one of the least important concerned in the whole project.

Morgan Favors Hay-Pauncefote Canal Treaty.

"The Hay-Pauncefote treaty does not prohibit the fortification of the canal. Neither does the Hepburn bill, which passed the House and which was reported favorably to the Senate from committee by me. But, at the same time, fortifications are not provided for. The Hepburn bill provides that, if necessary, fortifications may be placed upon the line of the canal, but what necessity is there for them?

"I doubt much whether fortifications will be built along the canal. The Hepburn bill, now pending, to be brief, makes the operation of the canal entirely neutral. There seems to be some difference of opinion on the subject of the neutrality of the waterway, but, in my judgment, this contention ought never to be allowed to stand in the way of the ultimate construction of the canal. It is too important a matter, and too close to the interests of the people, to be forced into the background by differences of opinion on matters of detail which are of comparatively small importance to the subject as a whole."

A rural free delivery route will be established in Sparland, Marshall County, Ill. There will be one carrier on the route, which will be twenty-two miles long, and cover an area of thirty-six square miles. A population of 666 will be served. The establishment of this route will cause the abolition of one star route, and the postoffice at La Prairie Center. In Iowa this service will be established at Lamoni, Decatur County. One carrier will deliver the mail on this route, which is twenty-five miles long, and covers an area of thirty-eight square miles. The population numbers 634.

Naval Constructor F. T. Bowles was in Washington today and received the assurance of his promotion in March next to the important position of Chief Constructor of the Navy. He is at present on duty at the New York navy yard, where he has charge of the important repair work on ships of war of all classes. The selection of Mr. Bowles is something of a surprise, as Constructor Hanscom, on duty at Cramps' ship yards in Philadelphia, immediately senior to Mr. Bowles, has been mentioned generally as likely to succeed Chief Constructor Philip Hichborn, when the latter completes his term of duty in March.

Bowles Will Be Chief Constructor of the Navy.

There have been other candidates, too, among the constructors who are junior to Bowles, but none of them has exerted themselves or enlisted the influence of friends in their own behalf to any extent, and when recently it became evident that Mr. Bowles would be appointed all signified their approval of the selection.

In the annual report of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury the reference to the Chicago public building is confined to a statement of the money appropriated and expended on the work. Under the original limit of cost of $4,000,000, there was appropriated $300,000 in 1895, $1,000,000 in 1898, and $130,000 in 1900, making a total of $1,430,000.

Report on Fund for the Chicago Public Building.

The amount expended on the building during the last fiscal year was $202,165, and the expense prior to June 30, 1899, was $332,812, making a total expenditure of $534,976. This left a nominal balance on hand on June 30, 1900, of $895,023, but the contract liabilities at that time were footed up at the same sum, so that the money is now practically all used up.

For the temporary building there was appropriated $200,000, with $20,000 for an annex. Enough more was set aside for rental to make the total of the appropriations $323,002. The actual expenditures have been $264,332, with contract liabilities of $51,066, so that the available balance at the beginning of this fiscal year was only $7,604.

Preparations are being made for a dinner to be given at the White House on Dec. 5 to the Paris commissioners, including Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Daniel Manning. This dinner will not be attended by more than fifty guests, but it will be the first brilliant event of the season given at the Executive Mansion, and will start the ball rolling for what promises to be a brilliant season. While the death of Mr. James Barber has changed White House plans somewhat, yet many other brilliant events have been planned by outsiders. Among the most elaborate of these events already announced will be a dinner given by Thomas Walsh to his brother commissioners.

Commissioners to Paris Will Dine at White House.

General Miles and his associates on the Board of Ordnance and Fortifications are preparing to renew the fight with General Buffington, Chief of Ordnance, over the functions of that board. Within the last few years the prerogatives of the board have been restricted greatly, and one of the fights precipitated during the last session of Congress was the question of authority reposing in the board.

Dispute Over Ordnance Board to Be Renewed.

It is insisted that the board should have the privilege of disbursing its funds to a greater extent than is now the case, and that the scope of its work should be greatly enlarged. It is likely that the fight will be taken up again this year, with every prospect that there will be no settlement of the question and that the enmity which exists between the artillery and ordnance officers will be increased greatly.

Secretary of the Navy Long's annual report takes issue to considerable extent with a majority of the members of the Board of Construction. The Secretary scales down their recommendations for new ships at a great rate and confines his own suggestion to Congress to two battleships, a pair of armored cruisers, half a dozen light gunboats, two training ships, three colliers, a transport, and a repair ship.

Secretary Long Takes Issue with Construction Board.

This recommendation of the Secretary will supersede that of all of the boards of the navy and will, in all probability, be adopted by Congress.

Aside from this recommendation, the Secretary's report contains only the usual matter. He turns to his old scheme of providing a system of rewards by medals. He suggests that the award of these medals should be made retroactive, so as cover the Spanish war. This suggestion will be likely to prevent the desired legislation in Congress, because of the general belief that if these medals are authorized it will be for the express purpose of humiliating Rear Admiral Schley.

The plan is said to be to secure from Congress authority to grant medals for conspicuous gallantry. Thereupon practically every officer in the north Atlantic squadron from Sampson down will be given a medal, except Schley. The result, of course, would be to degrade him before the world, and this is what Rear Admiral Crowninshield, who is the real power behind Secretary Long, hopes to accomplish. The scheme is pretty well understood in Congress, and if it is adopted at all it will be with such amendments as will protect Schley from the shore service clique.

Speaker Henderson arrived at his hotel at 1 o'clock this morning, and after an extremely short rest plunged at once into the business of his office, receiving during the day a call from his predecessor, Mr. Reed.

Speaker Says Congress Will Be Kept Busy.

"With only three months before us," said the Speaker, "it will be necessary to make this strictly a business session. The passage of the fourteen appropriation bills involves an amount of work quite sufficient for the time remaining at our disposal. In addition to these, however, we will pass several measures of great national importance.

"There is as yet no program of work laid out. The order of business will be determined upon from time to time and the various measures will be pushed largely in the order of their importance. As a matter of course the session will be an extremely busy one and debate, even on important measures, will be limited, while unimportant bills and resolutions probably will have to be passed over until the next Congress. Every matter of really pressing importance will be given its fair share of attention, however, and the final session of the Fifty-sixth Congress will, I think, be notable for its strict attention to business."

DR. RAYMOND URGES YOUNG MEN FOR PORTO RICO

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 24.—[Special Correspondence.]—President Andrew V. V. Raymond of Union University, Schenectady, while in Washington recently, called on President McKinley and urged that the government appoint young men where practicable in the government service in Porto Rico and the Philippines. Dr. Raymond pointed out the need of specially trained young men for this duty, and hoped, he said, that young college men would be willing to make the sacrifice necessary at first for the sake of the wide influence to be exerted later in molding the life of these acquired territories. The President was favorably impressed with the suggestion.

SCANDINAVIANS GO TO EUROPE.

Annual Christmas Pilgrimage Begins, a Party of 300 Passing Through Chicago.

The annual Christmas pilgrimage of Scandinavians to their former homes began yesterday with the passage through the city of an excursion of 300 from the various States West and Northwest of Chicago. The excursionists were mostly Swedes, with a scattering of Norwegians and Finns.

The excursionists arrived in the city in small parties during the morning and left at 1 p. m. in a special train over the Nickel-Plate for New York, whence they will sail tomorrow on the Oceanic.

Last year 12,000 Scandinavians made the Christmas trip, but the agents do not expect that figure will be equaled this year. Plenty of work and a desire to take advantage of the present prosperity is given as the reason for the falling off. Fewer Finns are returning to their old homes this year because of the Russification of Finland and the consequent heavier emigration from that country to the United States, which has brought long-separated relatives together on this side.

Report on Political Mail Handled.

A report on the business done by the postoffice for the various political headquarters was finished yesterday. Between Aug. 10 and Nov. 10 the postoffice had special service for fourteen political offices, and 826,700 pounds of mail were handled for the campaign managers. The cashier's office of the postoffice for the first twenty days of November shows receipts of $519,392, compared with $441,751 last year.

FORCE A COAL BILL THROUGH.

MACK MAKES HARD FIGHT

SHORT WEIGHTS TO POOR.

By a vote of 10 to 5, O'Gara, King & Co., holders of the county coal contracts, had forced through the County board yesterday a bill for $3,504 for coal delivered at the Dunning institutions last December. The bill had been held up in committee since that time, Superintendent of Public Service Healy and Superintendent Lange of Dunning refusing to "O. K." it, the latter having filed formal charges that the "stuff was nothing but dirt." He charged, too, that the coal was short in weight by 41,700 pounds. Every power was massed and the bill "put through," as the new Board of County Commissioners, which assumes office next Monday, has determined to investigate these contractors and their methods, the members-elect having been aroused by THE TRIBUNE's investigation, which showed that O'Gara, King & Co. have delivered cheap Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio coal at the great county institutions instead of the high grade Youghiogheny coal demanded by the contract.

Mack Fights the Scheme.

An effort was made to sneak the bill through by including it in the financial budget for the last week and passing this in a lump. Commissioner Mack discovered the scheme and led a hard fight against allowing the bill, which was forced through without the indorsements of Healy and Lange. Politicians who have aided in throwing the last three yearly county coal contracts to O'Gara, King & Co. were in the boardrooms plying the whip. After completing this work the board, by a squad of its members bolting the room, set aside Commissioner Mack's resolution requiring O'Gara, King & Co. to submit original freight bills with the bills for coal delivered at Dunning. This has been kept buried in committee since last August, and would have kept a check on the quality of coal delivered, as they would have shown at what mines the cars were loaded.

Lively Fight Begins.

The budget for the week had scarcely been submitted when Commissioner Mack got the floor.

"Bring in that coal bill," he demanded. "Who has 'O. K.'d' it? I want to know whether it was the Superintendent of Public Service or the Superintendent at Dunning. If neither of these, then who had the right to 'O. K.' it? I move that it be sent back to the Finance committee!"

There was a row at once, and everybody tried to talk at the same time. Commissioner Struckman asserted that the coal had been used months ago, on the ground that there was no other coal available. An investigation had showed, he insisted, that there was other coal in the bins at the time. Commissioner Carolan contended that "Lange had refused to 'O. K.' the bill merely because people were around inspecting the coal at the time." Hoffman asked that only the amount be paid which the kind of coal actually delivered called for.

"There's nothing on record to show that this coal was not up to grade," put in Commissioner Burke.

Then Commissioner Wright, who was the prime mover in forcing the passage of the bill, insisted that "if the coal was bad some one had failed to do his duty." He contended, in a mock heroic speech, that in that event the contract should have been canceled, and "somebody" had failed to do that. He asked the passage of the bill.

Motion to Refer Lost.

Mack's motion to refer the bill again to the Finance committee was lost. Then Wright and his followers carried the day. The five who voted against allowing the bill were Commissioners Mack, Irwin, Hoffman, Struckman, and Van Steenberg.

Commissioner Mack then sought to dig his old resolution out of committee. It follows:

"Resolved, That the Superintendent of Public service be instructed not to O. K. any coal bills for the Dunning institutions unless said bills be accompanied by original bills of lading, the car number thereon to correspond with cars delivered at Dunning; and that chief engineers at the County Hospital, Courthouse, and Criminal Court be instructed to report to the Superintendent of Public Service when coal is not up to specifications."

"Move its adoption," demanded Mack, and the rollcall began.

"Move we adjourn," yelled Wright, and his rush for the door took a majority of the board with him, and the meeting broke up in confusion.

Have Not Obeyed Orders.

The county contract specifies, however, that all bills shall be accompanied by the "original freight bill of the railroad company." Mr. O'Gara has refused to obey this order, replying to all requests that they must keep these freight bills to "get their rate rebates."

Reports continue to reach County Agent Oleson that O'Gara, King & Co. are delivering bad coal to the poor who are being supplied by the county. Inspectors support the findings of THE TRIBUNE's representative, and assert that the stuff delivered is to a great extent nothing but coal dust instead of the "clean coal" demanded by the county contract. Aside from this, 500 to 600 pounds is delivered for a half ton or the 1,000 pounds to which each applicant is entitled. "Visitors" of the County Agent's office—the men who look into the needs of applicants for relief—assert that cheap Illinois coal was delivered to the poor last year by O'Gara, King & Co. when Hocking coal was called for by their contract. Last year they got $2.34 a ton, and in 1898, $2.25 a ton for this required grade of coal. This year, however, the county pays $4.48 for every ton delivered on the County Agent's orders.

Sifts Between Fingers.

"I wouldn't give 50 cents a ton for the coal I saw," said County Visitor Ferguson yesterday. He had inspected the coal left for Sophia Rehm, 570 West North avenue.

"I could pick the stuff up in my hands," said Mr. Ferguson, "and it would all run through my fingers. It was something awful."

City Sealer Quinn yesterday assigned two deputies to test the baskets used by coal dealers in measuring coal sold in small lots. Of sixty-five baskets examined but ten were found to be accurate bushel measures. The others had a capacity ranging from five-eighths to seven-eighths of a bushel, but were used as bushel measures, thus increasing the dealer's profits with each sale. Tests will be continued throughout the winter, and unless proper measures are used arrests will be made.

Veto of the Town Officers' Salary Grab. The President of the County board uses strong language in his veto of the $152,000 grab of the Chicago town officers. He calls the town system a cesspool of corruption, and says the object of the appropriation is to support "crews of highwaymen who render no service whatever to the people." This veto was sustained, so that the town officers will not be able to get this money unless it be through the courts, and it is not likely they will be able to get any satisfaction there. The President of the County board is to be commended for this veto, which has saved the taxpayers $152,000, but it is a misfortune that he did not learn how to write such documents at the beginning of his term instead of at the end of it. It is saddening to think of all the extravagant appropriations, the salary grabs, and improper contracts that could have been killed if the extensive veto power intrusted to the President of the board had been used by him with the freedom which the interests of the county required. There have been highwaymen around the County Building and there has been corruption there. If Mr. Irwin had had a happy knack of vetoing, the gangs of highwaymen around the County Building would not have done so well as they have.

Workings of the Bankruptcy Law. The present bankruptcy law evidently appeals to debtors more strongly than it does to creditors. During the period ending Sept. 30 last there were filed in involuntary cases 1,810 petitions, and in voluntary cases about 21,000 petitions. The debtors who were forced into bankruptcy owed $27,000,000 and their assets amounted to $13,400,000. The liabilities of 19,540 debtors who sought the aid of the law were $264,000,000 and their assets were only $33,098,000. This looks like a tremendous wiping out of indebtedness to the great loss of creditors. As a matter of fact, most of these debts were desperate ones, and could not have been recovered under any circumstances. No harm has been done by freeing from technical liability the men who owe them. The bankruptcy act of 1898 differs from its predecessors in that men engaged in so many pursuits have taken advantage of it. Farmers, wage-earners, and professional men, as well as manufacturers and merchants, have filed petitions. Chicago policemen who were in the clutches of the loan sharks extricated themselves by the simple expedient of going through bankruptcy. The law needs some amendments to the provisions concerning involuntary bankruptcy, but on the whole it is working fairly well. It does not appear that the interests of creditors have been seriously prejudiced by it.

Beet Sugar in Illinois. The Illinois Sugar Refining company announces that 8,000 acres of sugar beets will be under cultivation next year. During the season which closed last week 5,000 acres were under cultivation. The statistics presented by the company show in striking fashion the profitableness of the crop. The yield of the 5,000 acres was valued at $250,000, at the rate of $4 to $4.50 per ton, for the beets delivered at the factories. The average yield per acre was from ten to sixteen tons. Hundreds of boys were employed in weeding, and it is estimated that $10,000 was paid for hand labor and $2,000 for teams and machinery, making a total cost of $12,000. With ordinary crops the expenditure would have been only $2,000, but the yield would have amounted to only $50,000. The profit in sugar beets over ordinary crops was thus $190,000. In view of these statistics it is strange that a greater increase of acreage should not be announced for next year. Illinois farmers are overlooking a valuable opportunity that is being taken advantage of in Nebraska. The acreage in Iowa is still less than in Illinois. Yet expert agriculturists, including Secretary Wilson, have declared that the soil of central Illinois and of Iowa is the best possible for the cultivation of the beets, all of which causes amazement at the short-sightedness of the farmers who neglect the opportunity to add to their wealth.

FOR COMPULSORY PEACE.

The most important result of the recent Latin-American congress at Madrid was the adoption of an agreement providing for the settlement of disputes by compulsory arbitration. The proposition was made by the Peruvian delegates and was suported by all the other nations except Chile. As that country can hardly withstand the united wishes of all the rest of South America it may acquiesce in this sweeping plan for compulsory peace. If the arrangement should be put into practical force it is likely to have a far-reaching and beneficent effect upon the whole Southern continent.

Ever since they gained their independence from Spain three-quarters of a century ago the Latin-American republics have been in a perpetual turmoil of domestic and international wars. The continual internal revolutions were bad enough, but since the different states have taken to making war upon each other for territorial aggrandizement the evils have grown worse. South America is rapidly tending to fall under the same burdens of heavy armament that oppress Europe. About a month ago Chile adopted a compulsory military system under which every male citizen of 19 years must serve as a soldier. This has alarmed the other South American republics, and there has been a general belief that the other countries would have to do the same in self-defense. Bitterness over a boundary dispute has caused Chile and Argentina each to spend $50,000,000 on armament in the last ten years, and it was seen that unless some radical step were taken the best activities of the people would soon be swallowed up in useless wars and ruinously large standing armies. All the republics seem to distrust the motives of Chile, and the action taken at Madrid is practically a coalition to bind that aggressive nation over to keep the peace.

It will be a material blessing to the whole of Latin-America and to its neighbors if the Madrid scheme for compulsory arbitration can be be made to work. The energies of the people of Central and South America have been wasted long enough in needless wars. If the republics could have prolonged peace and security their industries and commerce would grow more rapidly and the real power of each republic would increase with its prosperity. The United States would also share indirectly in these benefits. It is desirable from every point of view that Chile's policy of militarism should not be encouraged or imitated by its neighbors.

CONTROLLER DAWES' SUGGESTIONS.

The amendments to the national bank act suggested by Controller Dawes in his report for this year may not be considered at the approaching session of Congress. Most of the time will be taken up by the appropriation bills, and by army, tax reduction, and canal measures. But it ought to be possible for Congress to find a little spare time in which to consider Controller Dawes' recommendations.

It is quite natural that bank directors should be large borrowers from institutions in which they have some of their capital invested. It is surprising, however, to learn that the direct and indirect liabilities of the directors, officers, and employés of the national banks to these institutions aggregate about one-third of their total capital of $631,000,000. It is news to learn that 17 per cent of the bank failures are due to excessive loans to officers and directors. The wisdom of legislation which shall prevent the making of unsafe loans to directors without interfering with the right to make safe loans to them cannot be questioned.

There are two amendments which may not meet with the approval of all bankers, though they should, being for the protection of the business interests of the country. One provides that but one-fifth instead of three-fifths of the reserve of 15 per cent required by law to be kept in banks in smaller cities may consist of balances due by reserve agents. The other repeals the authority banks in smaller reserve cities have now to keep half their lawful money reserve in balances in central reserve cities.

The Controller explains in a lucid manner the dangers growing out of the workings of the law as it is now. During certain seasons of the year country banks deposit as much as they can of their balances in banks in reserve cities, especially New York. The latter banks can pay the high rate of interest on these balances they do only by loaning them on speculative securities. The possession by the banks of surplus funds and the wish to earn something with them promote excessive speculation. Then, when the country banks need their balances and begin withdrawing them, the men who wish to borrow money to use in speculative transactions find it difficult to do so, and there is a panic in the stock market. At the same time legitimate business interests are affected, for they find it harder to borrow the money they need.

To the extent that the law, as it stands now, encourages speculation in the great speculative centers it is unwise. The country banks will not be able to earn so much on their balances as they do now if the law is amended as the Controller suggests, but the reserve cities will no longer be subjected to a strain which may endanger the stability of the entire banking system.

LONDON TECHNICAL SCHOOLS.

Moved by German example and by German competition, as well as by the evident demand for a new order of training to replace the lapsed system of apprenticeship, the British people began about a dozen years ago a widespread educational effort "designed to teach science solely with a view to its industrial and commercial applications."

By a curious parliamentary fluke in 1890 the proceeds of a new national tax demanded by public policy on spirits, were, on account of the sudden failure of the contemplated object of the revenue, unexpectedly devoted to the cause of technical education. This fund, owing to the broad powers under which it has been administered by local authorities, has made possible a beginning toward a real system of public secondary education in a country whose lack of such a system is strangely conspicuous. Special emphasis has, however, in its expenditure been laid upon education in its immediate relation to industry and the movement thus subsidized has spread rapidly. The opening a few weeks ago of a splendid new technical school building in Manchester, the special home of technical education in the past, was only an example of events which have been chronicled at frequent intervals for the different sections of the country during this decade.

In this progress London has been preeminent. The metropolis now has eleven "polytechnics," two more are building, and there are a considerable number of other important institutions in the city where technical instruction is afforded. These polytechnics, beside their more general departments of history, literature, language, science, and art, include workshops where arts and trades art taught, and provide for instruction in domestic economy, music, gymnastics, dancing, sick nursing, and a great variety of other subjects. Their attendance, including night classes, sometimes reaches 6,000 or 8,000 at a single institution. To some etxent, too, they are specializing. One has its bakers and confectioners' school, another its school of watchmaking, another is distinguished in art, another in printing, and another in woodworking.

The Technical Education board, made up chiefly from the London County Council, but also having representation from the London School board, and several other public or semi-public bodies, is the supervising authority, and since its organization in 1893 has been aggressive in its policy. One of the features of that policy is the grant of six or seven hundred scholarships, ranging from $100 to $300 each per year, to enable promising children from families of small incomes to continue their education in these institutions.

In the main, too, it should be said that the British policy is to restrict the opportunities of technical education to persons actually engaged in industry or contemplating industrial life, rather than to extend these privileges to middle class young people who might regard them as a means of general culture. Accordingly, many night classes are provided for men and boys who are actually engaged in different lines of industry, including learners, journeymen, foremen, and managers, and arrangements are also made with proprietors whereby their younger employés can attend certain day classes without loss of pay.

That British industry will show the effect of the significant emphasis during the last ten years upon technical education is not to be doubted. There is also a lesson therein for our own country, whose skillful artisans must in future be drawn from Europe in a less degree than has been the case in the past.

COMMERCIALISM IN SALVATION ARMY.

It appears that the struggle between God and mammon is not unknown even within the ranks of the Salvation Army. Commander Booth-Tucker recently discovered that the headquarters of the organization in New York were seriously infected with the spirit of commercialism in the shape of mining stock speculation, and the stringent measures he has taken to suppress it have made a stir in Salvation Army circles not equaled since Ballington Booth's withdrawal.

The desire to lay up treasure elsewhere than in heaven is said to date from the coming of an officer recently transferred from Denver to New York. In a short time a considerable number of the officers in New York had invested in gold mining shares, and Colonel Brewer, the editor of the War Cry, became local manager for a large Seattle company. Commander Booth-Tucker, on learning this, gave the editor the choice of leaving his editorial position or giving up all commercial alliances. The editor promptly transferred his mining stock and managerial position to a friend, but it is said that many other Salvationists have been affected by the speculative spirit, and that this fact will figure in a general shake-up at the annual assembly of the council of the national staff on Dec. 7.

There is nothing essentially wrong in the purchase of mining shares by Salvation Army members, but the officers of that organization are strictly forbidden to engage in any business pursuits or to do anything that will take their attention from their religious work. The words of Christ, "Go sell that thou hast and give to the poor," are regarded as the foundation on which the army rests. By adhering to the spirit, if not to the letter, of this doctrine the Salvation Army can undoubtedly achieve the best results, and the Commander has probably acted wisely in disciplining officers infected with the spirit of commercialism. At the same time, this is a pretty severe test of the unworldliness of anybody in an age when all other men are trying to make money and to provide for old age or a rainy day. The incident is at least a proof of the almost irresistible power of the commercial spirit of the age. Clergymen should not be too hard on the ordinary unregenerate sinner for wishing to amass treasure on this side of the heavenly portals when even such unselfish men as Salvation Army officers cannot wholly resist the temptation to speculate a little in gold mining shares.

TO REDUCE TAXATION.

Early in December the Committee on Ways and Means will report a bill, the effect of which will be to reduce the yearly revenues of the government to the extent of about $30,000,000. This will be done by abolishing a number of the most vexatious stamp taxes, including those on telegrams, express receipts, and real estate transactions.

The general government risks nothing by surrendering the revenue which these taxes produce. Unless the business situation should change for the worse materially there will be an excess of receipts over expenditures for the next fiscal year. Furthermore, there is on hand a surplus of $130,000,000. That is ample to cover expenses yet to be met on account of the refunding of bonds and any immediate expenses incident to the Nicaraguan Canal if Congress should pass a bill for the construction of one during the short session.

Complaint has been made in some quarters that the Committee on Ways and Means does not intend to incorporate in its bill provisions for the reduction of any tariff duties. Some of these duties are too high. They produce no revenue, but they make it possible for the American manufacturers of certain kinds of goods to exact in American markets higher prices for such goods than they ask for them in foreign markets. But if the committee were to take up this question in connection with its bill to repeal war taxes the passage of that bill would be delayed, and might be defeated. The opening up of the tariff question would provoke an interminable Senatorial debate.

There should be a revision of the tariff. Some of the duties on finished products are too high. So are some of the duties on manufacturers' raw materials. Lower duties on such materials benefit both manufacturers and consumers. This subject of revision must be left to the next Congress, however. There is not time to attend to it this winter.

It is understood that the committee has decided not to recommend a reduction of the beer tax. That is a sensible conclusion. The tax as it stands produces much revenue without annoyance to consumers. The expenses of collection are quite small. The receipts from fermented liquors for the last fiscal year were $73,550,000, as against $32,471,000 for the fiscal year 1897. There should be no interference with taxes which produce so much revenue with so little inconvenience to the people.

"AMERICAN" MUSIC.

Mr. Edouard Strauss, brother of Johann Strauss of waltz reputation, and successor to the latter as the court ball musical director for the Emperor of Austria, has been giving his views on American music, or, rather, on the absence of it, since he declares "America has no music—no music with a national touch to it. Some day when the American forgets business he will be able to produce it." In closing his interview he is kind enough to assure us "Some day it will come to you, maybe in five years, maybe in fifty years," and when it comes we are informed it will come in the form of an opera, a form, by the way, in which it has not first come to any other country outside of Italy.

The "national touch" to music, upon which Herr Strauss lays so much stress, exists nowhere save in Germany. Since Wagner came upon the scene the national touch hardly exists there, for the national touch was given to German music first by Bach, then by Mozart and Haydn, and subsequently by Beethoven, all working on the same lines and each advancing beyond the other in the perfection of form, but it may be fairly questioned whether the distinctive national school did not end with Brahms. As to the other nations, England, France, Bohemia, Scandinavia, Italy even, and Russia, as evidenced by the music of its two greatest composers, Rubinstein and Tschaikowsky, all have been influenced by Germany. But if America is to produce no music until it "forgets business," then the time must be far away. If Herr Strauss' declaration be true that business must be fatal to music production, then it is in order to look for the speedy decline of the art in Germany, for Germany has grown commercial during the last ten years more rapidly than any other European nation.

In looking over the field of music in this country Herr Strauss finds nothing worthy of recognition but the "Belle of New York," by Kerker, and the marches and two-steps of Sousa. As this kind of ephemeral music is exactly in line with that which Herr Strauss writes himself, it is not remarkable, perhaps, that he should make these extraordinary exceptions and herald them as the only American music. It does not speak well for Herr Strauss' musical orthodoxy that he should have overlooked the works of such American composers as Dudley Buck, Professor Paine, MacDowell, Parker, Chadwick, and Kelley, who have written in the higher form and whose works have passed successfully the tests of European criticism. It is evident that Herr Strauss is not acquainted with the works of the best American composers, which may not be American music—what music is national?—but are paving the way for it. Herr Strauss' own field is a circumscribed one, bounded on all sides by the dance rhythm, learned from his brother Johann and inherited from Johann senior, the ability of neither of whom is possessed by him. His partiality for Kerker and Sousa's march and dance music is explained by this.

THE CORBIN-SPRINGER DEBATE.

The discussion of the female suffrage question between Mrs. Corbin and Mrs. Springer grows interesting. Mrs. Corbin, representing the cause of anti-female suffrage, has found in Mrs. Springer a foeman worthy of her steel, but it would appear in her latest contribution to the debate that Mrs. Springer takes Mrs. Corbin much too seriously. It was probably the farthest from Mrs. Corbin's intention to convey the impression that the female suffragists cast a slur upon the purity of womanhood by the advocacy of their ideas, or that they belong to the "loosely sexed," as Mrs. Springer puts it.

The gist of Mrs. Corbin's argument was that female suffrage, by associating women with the turmoil of politics, would take them away from the duties of home, and that the father and the children would be neglected. As to this point Mrs. Springer makes the neat reply that clubs and the shopping habit take women away from their homes, but no one charges them with negligence of domestic duty on that account. Then she gives this statement an exceedingly personal application by saying that Mrs. Corbin boasts she is a member of fourteen women's clubs, following it up with the peculiarly feminine side thrust, "I don't know how true it is, but Mrs. Corbin is said to be the worst housekeeper in Chicago"—a thrust probably delivered more in sorrow than in anger.

Far be it from THE TRIBUNE to take sides with either combatant in this war of words. Still farther be it from THE TRIBUNE to pronounce upon the housekeeping either of Mrs. Corbin or Mrs. Springer. That could easily be settled by leaving the vexed question to arbitration at the hands of a commission of housekeepers of acknowledged skill; or Mrs. Corbin might challenge Mrs. Springer to a public bout in the more important details of housekeeping. But as to the general question at issue, are not both ladies right? Is it not true that female suffrage, as well as pink teas, parties, the shopping habit, and women's clubs, take women away too much from the home and lead to neglect of children and domestic duties? From this point of view it looks as if the one side has no superiority over the other, and that each may be right in asserting that the other is away from home too much and that the children and the duties suffer by it. It is noticeable in this connection that neither Mrs. Springer nor Mrs. Corbin takes the man of the house into account. Mrs. Corbin would probably argue that paterfamilias is not the worse off, because he has his club to go to in the absence of materfamilias. She might retort that the effect of the female suffrage doctrine is to efface paterfamilias altogether, and ask the pointed question why no one ever hears of the husbands of the female suffragists or recounts the sufferings they endure so patiently, so silently. During the last campaign one of these victims, Mr. Leese of Kansas, disclosed his identity by saying that he did not approve of Mrs. Lease's doctrines, and that when she returned from her tour he should have something to say. Mary Ellen returned long ago, but nothing has been heard from the Wichita druggist.

NEW YORK SWEATSHOPS.

It is a striking but notorious fact that, through the vigorous factory legislation and inspection carried out by Massachusetts, the sweatshop has been abolished in Boston and throughout that State. It is also true, however, that the trade formerly carried on there has to some extent simply transferred its habitat to New York City. The latter city has thus gained in an injurious and impolitic form of industry, and actually sends the product thereof to Boston to be sold over its counters. Notwithstanding this partial nullification, however, of its action, Massachusetts has the satisfaction of having added to the honorable traditions of the old Bay State in this line, by again blazing the way, even at its own seeming cost, in progressive public action.

The well known fact that the sweatshop still persists in New York City, and that, too, in spite of legislation which should be adequate to its abolition, has been the subject of frequent comment and agitation in the metropolis. It was adverted to there only a few days ago at a hearing before the Tenement House commission, where it was asserted that the inspection under the existing law had been a failure so far as putting an end to sweatshops was concerned.

An effort is now reported from that city, apparently springing from persons employed in sweatshop work, which is designed to bring the subject to the attention of Governor-elect Odell, and to urge changes in the law which shall provide not only that additional inspectors be appointed to serve without salary but that the chief inspector's office shall be transferred from Albany, where there are no sweatshops, to New York, the stronghold of that industrial institution, that householders shall be forbidden to allow sweatshops on their premises, and that the local Health department shall be given coördinate powers with the Factory Inspector over their sanitary conditions.

The recognized dangers to consumers from sweatshop industry, and the low standard of life among workers which it stands for and to which it tends to reduce all workers in the trade concerned, emphasize the need for its abolition, and likewise the compunction which New-Yorkers ought to feel in so far as their State is a haven for promoters of that industry who have been outlawed in Massachusetts.

In the absence of federal legislation on the subject—an expedient which has been not a little agitated—State regulation is the only resource. There should, therefore, be a spirit of honorable coöperation, not to say emulation, on the subject among the States chiefly concerned. Especially is it beneath the dignity of any State to permit sweatshops to multiply in its midst with the express aim of thereby inviting business from a sister State controlled by a better conscience.

Since the energetic enforcement of the new factory legislation of this State by Mrs. Florence Kelley ceased three and one-half years ago little has been heard in public as to what our local conditions are. It is well known, however, that Chicago is a serious offender in the matter in question. It will accordingly be in point in this State as well as in the Empire State to have a deliberate effort made to bring up local practice to the standard of Boston, and thereby do what is in our power as a State toward placing upon a defensible basis the manufacture of clothing for the American people.

THE process of shelling out corn on 'Change is accompanied by a great deal of noise.

TOASTMASTERS and others will see the absurdity of introducing Mr. Bryan as "our next President" hereafter.

THE explanation probably is that "Dr." Dowie secured the admission of his lacemakers by applying one of his celebrated absent treatments to the Treasury department.

"DON'T forget," says the Charleston News and Courier, "that next Thursday is Thanksgiving day, and that every loyal citizen is expected then to sacrifice a turkey, or a goose, or something, on the altar of Republican prosperity." Evidently the News and Courier still retains its old grudge against Providence.

THE money the Democratic managers invested in Bourke Cockran at the rate of $200 a day was a total loss. Mr. Cockran grants no rebates.

HAVING had a good roads convention and an irrigation congress, Chicago should keep up its reputation as a refrom center by calling together an anti-grip conference.

IF the Rev. Dr. Hart of Denver is correctly reported he says Chicago is "one of the few places that tolerates" the practice of keeping theaters and saloons open on Sunday. If Mr. Hart has aught to say to the discredit of Chicago he ought to say it grammatically.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Changed Hands Promptly.

"How many capitals has Rhode Island?" cautiously asked the boy with the snub nose.

"Two," replied the boy with the dirty face.

"Yes."

"Well, you've lost. Here's a paper that says Newport ain't one of the capitals any more. They've changed the constitution of the State. You can read it yourself if you don't believe me."

"Who's talkin' about Newport? We're bettin' on the capitals in Rhode Island. They's two of 'em. They're R and I. If you don't believe me you can spell it yourself."

The matter was left to the boy with the frazzled trousers, and he decided in favor of the two capitals.

"I may not be as handsome as some fellers," said the boy with the dirty face, as he pocketed the money, "but there ain't any cobwebs in my attic."

He Was.

"Your husband seems to be making a large and unique collection of books," remarked the caller, looking with interest at the costly array of rare volumes on the library shelves.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Gaswell, with well-bred indifference. "I believe he becomes more bibulous every day he lives."

Went Too Far.

"Professor," stiffly rejoined the doctor, buttoning his coat about him and turning on his heel, "I have stood some awfully bad ones from you without a murmur, but this is the limit. Good day."

Probable Difference.

"It makes me tired," the indignant Democrat remarked, "to hear you fellows say how much worse it will be for the turkeys next Thursday than it would have been if Bryan had been elected. Blame your hide, don't you suppose we would have been just as thankful over Bryan's election as you are over McKinley's?"

"Yes," said the Republican. "But you chaps would have taken a different way to show it. You would all have got drunk."

To an Extreme.

"I believe in being kind to the birds and all that," said Miss Hankypank, "but I do think Clara Deagar carries it too far."

"What has she been doing now?" asked the other girl.

The Turkey.

The poor fowl sorrowfully say:
"I'm to be slaughtered, I much fear,

Favoritism.

"The manager doesn't like you? How do you know?" asked the girl at the revolver and cartridge counter.

"Because," answered the girl at the bicycle goods counter, "just as the holiday trade is beginning and I am getting ready to take a rest he tells me I've got to trade places with that girl that's been in the toy department all summer."

Nothing to Do but Live.

"I suppose," said Bishop Hugh Miller Thompson of Mississippi, who was in Birmingham the other day, "that there is a larger percentage of old men in Mississippi than any other State—at least it seems so to me, and I have been in a good many. By old, I mean from 80 to 90. They are not decrepit old men who hug the fireside, but are quite lively old fellows. One of them whom I knew, a man of 89, recently got a little too lively. He went out after dark without a lantern, fell into a ditch, and was broken up just as if he was china. I forget how many bones were broken."

"How do you account, Bishop, for this large proportion of old men in Mississippi?" asked some one.

"Well," said the Bishop, "there is no chance to become rich in Mississippi. Everybody knows it and does not worry himself into an early grave trying to."—Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

John Thompson, a Wyoming delegate for Congress, got badly beaten at the recent elections. In an evil hour he made a public statement that the woman vote was the easiest to get, the easiest to keep, and the easiest to manipulate. A Dog That Made Two Men Rich.

THE Chicago real estate agent had been showing the Vermont capitalist some choice property on the West Side. Two or three sales had been as good as made and it was decided to postpone further inspection of lots until the next day. They had started back towards the Vermont man's hotel on the South Side, passing from Randolph into Springfield street. A cool breeze was coming in fresh from the lake; it was early in the afternoon, so they allowed the horse to walk along slowly. The street had been freshly paved with asphalt and its smooth surface was shaded by overhanging limbs of sycamore. On one side of the street was a long row of houses that had been newly painted, around which were well kept lawns. But all the windows of these houses were drawn closely and an air of desolation surrounded them.

society had paid for its being placed there that tired beasts might drink of lake water, now free from germs and microbes and other pests that annoy physicians, delight chemists, and frighten families. The horse the real estate agent had hired for the day walked to the trough and buried its head in it almost up to the bridle "blinds." When he pulled his nose out he shook himself as a dog when he comes out of water, made a long breath, and settled in his tracks.

"We will let the beast rest while I tell you the tragic story of those untenanted houses," began the real estate agent; and, when he had lit a fresh cigar, proceeded: "Some years ago—long before the big ditch was finished that now sends our pollution down the Mississippi—but in harmless shape, I assure you—this part of Chicago was the most fatal to health of any district of this immense city. Smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and tubercular troubles could always be found in nearly every block between Madison street and the river. Most of the tenants hereabouts were of a low order of intelligence, superstitious, and ignorant of the laws of hygiene. The streets and alleys were unclean and the stench was something awful. But you can see for yourself how the conditions have changed.

"Up to 1893 an undertaker named Patsy Murphy did business on the South Side, but his profits were nothing to brag about and, therefore, his bank account was not large. At all events it was too small to permit his daughter Emiline to dress in that fashion compatible with her beauty and her ambitions. Wherefore Miss Murphy grew more restless and dissatisfied as she got older.

"Among the men who paid her attention and finally laid siege to her soft but unjeweled hand was Dr. Matt Bethune, who a few days before Miss Murphy attained her 19th year had received his diploma from an Ohio medical college. But he was poor also. So Miss Emiline reasoned it out that to marry him would neither enhance her wardrobe nor elevate her station in society. The evening she told him of her decision she followed him to the steps and confessed there that she liked him better than any other man she knew. She told him more than that when she gave him her hand to say good-night.

"'You get a big practice, save your money, and you and I may yet be the principals in a ceremony in the big brown church on the avenue,' she said.

"Well, the future wasn't a promising one for a young doctor who had no social standing in a community where most of the families employe butlers and own automobiles. So Bethune began looking around for a better location. See the little drug store on the corner there? Well, just over it is Dr. Bethune's office, and right back of that is his sleeping-room. How he pays his rent I do not know, for I hear he has not had a case for many months.

"And do you see the undertaker's sign on that empty building on the other side of the street? That was where Murphy held forth for five years and prospered," continued the real estate agent. "When Dr. Bethune left the South Side he located at his present stand. He hadn't been a resident many weeks before he ran across Murphy and told him that if he would move his shop near where he was located he would make money by the bushel, and Murphy moved. About two months after he had opened his commercial maws for the dead a strange little mongrel dog ran in his store one morning and hid behind a coffin that lay on the floor. Some bad boys in the neighborhood had been pelting it with rocks, and the frightened brute took refuge in the first place he saw was accessible. Murphy went to the door, spoke harshly to the boys, and then returned and patted the trembling dog on the head. When it came time for Murphy to go home for dinner he coaxed the dog to follow, and, arriving at the house, he had the servant feed it. Murphy named him Blucher and gave him to understand he was his friend and that his home was his also.

"Well, I don't suppose there ever was a dog that had sense like this Blucher fellow. He not only knew about things that happened around him, but he could forecast events much better'n some weather observers I have read about in the newspapers. Blucher could tell months in advance when a person was going to die. O, you needn't shake your head like that! It's the gospel truth. Why, sir, whenever he rubbed his shaggy head against a person's legs that person was as good as dead. How Murphy got on to the fact that Blucher possessed this power I have never heard, but he knew just the same. So he took the dog every morning and stood out at the corner you see there and sicked him on. All day they would keep their positions, Blucher smelling every ankle that passed his way. In the early mornings, at noon, and in the evenings the corner was passed by hundreds of persons who were going to or coming from work, and it was a bad day that Blucher didn't get ten out of that number. As soon as Blucher had spotted his man Murphy would have him followed, find out where he lived, and then get acquainted with him and his folks.

"Murphy was fond of the young doctor, and was not opposed to his marrying his daughter, so finally he put Bethune next that he might meet the doomed also, and thus whipsaw the deal."

"Whipsaw the deal?" repeated the Eastern man. "What does that mean?"

"Why, ain't you never played faro bank?"

The Vermont man had never played the game, and said so.

"Well, if you ain't never played it, 'tain't any use of my trying to explain what whipsaw means. But it's all right." There was a pause, while the real estate agent lit another cigar. When he had thrown the match away he asked: "Where was I with the dog? O, yes. As I was saying, Murphy let the doctor get next, and he, too, sought and courted the company of the relatives of the 'marked ones.' I'll tell you, the two did a land office business. Pretty soon Murphy had all the undertaking of the community, and before long Miss Emiline began riding in carriages and attending box parties. The way she put on style was a caution. Whew! but she got swell; and the first thing the 'doc' knew she had thrown him out of her class with both feet and his overcoat. You see, Bethune got so busy he didn't pay her the attention she wanted. Besides, he made the mistake of presuming that he had her salted.

"Now, if you know much about women you know that their affections are more fluctuatious than wheat, and any man, at any time, who thinks he has one where the woodbine twineth is a double-barreled idiot. The women of the present are not like those of the old days.

"Miss Emiline Murphy and the 'doc' began drifting wider and wider apart just as their financial condition began improving at its best gait; and one day she took back every word she had said to him on the front steps of her father's home on the South Side. Bethune appealed to Murphy, but the undertaker was too busy watching the dog to pay attention to little things like love affairs. Murphy told him to forget Emiline for a while and keep his eye on Blucher; and that's what Bethune did. Two years ago they counted their money and found they had, between them, $310,000 cash. The banks were shaky about then, so they decided to invest in real estate, build cottages for the laboring people to buy on the installment plan. Those vacant houses are the result of the money being withdrawn from the bank.

"Well, about the time the houses were completed and everything but the health of the neighborhood was getting along fine, Blucher one day up and rubs his head against Dr. Bethune's legs, whereupon the doctor kicked the dog to death. It all happened right out there in front of the drug store, and the people, knowing how much Murphy thought of the dog, the event caused a great deal of excitement, and when Murphy heard of it he got so mad his face was the color of a Chinese dragon, and the result of it was that they had a fight, which ended in Bethune's telling of the secret of the dog.

"The people simply went wild when they heard of how Blucher and Murphy and the doctor had worked some 'hoodoo' on them to kill off their numbers that the undertaker and Bethune might prosper, and I guess they'd have lynched Murphy if he hadn't got out of the way. They were less severe on the doctor, because he had manners that were more attractive to the poor people than were Murphy's, but at that, in less than a week he didn't have a patient to his name. On top of this a lawyer from the Morton Building came over here one day, and went back to his office with suits against Murphy and the doctor aggregating $1,000,000. They were based on the claim that they two had worked some mysterious charm upon their dead relatives and had killed them. By that time, too, every tenant moved out of the cottages because they were afraid of them. Then the lawyers tied up the property so it can't be sold until a decision is reached, and there is no telling when that time will come."

At this juncture the real estate agent grabbed the horse's lines, for he saw a crowd of boys chasing a brindle cur down the street his way. He turned the animal's head toward the Randolph street bridge, and the rubber-tired vehicle moved noiselessly along. Presently the Vermont capitalist asked:

"Can't the property be rented at all?"

"I should say not," replied the real estate agent. "A rival agency to ours has attempted to get people to move in by paying them, but nobody will go. You saw for yourself the splendid condition the property is in, but what keeps folks away is a belief that the dog's ghost walks around the yards and in the hallways at all hours of the night, snapping and howling to beat the band."

"And what has become of the undertaker and his daughter?"

"Murphy? He is running a sandwich wagon at St. Louis, and last year Miss Emiline ran away with a beauty show that later stranded in Texas. The last I heard of her she was doing the clairvoyant act at Fort Worth."

"Well, the doctor? Why doesn't he move?"

"O, I don't know. Waiting for the lawsuits to end, maybe. Even if he wanted to get away, he hasn't money enough to pay fare to Hammond. And all this for killing a measly, woolly dog! Git up, there, hoss, and let's make the bridge before it is turned."

HOW GOVERNOR ROLLINS PUT IT.

Among the Thanksgiving proclamations there has been none better than the following from Governor Rollins of New Hampshire:

The husbandman has been rewarded with bounteous harvests; labor has received satisfactory remuneration; manufacturers have found a ready market for their products; success has rested on our arms and prosperity has smiled upon our country; therefore let us give thanks to God.

Before another year has rolled around and this time-honored festival has again drawn near, let us strive to make even stronger the reasons for our thanksgiving. Let us broaden our horizons. Let us devote more of ourselves to our fellow-men and less to self-seeking. Let us offer to the world a willing hand. Let us face our duties with smiling countenances. Let us show that devotion to our neighbor, to our State, and to our country which is the truest patriotism.

Isn't This "Rather Sudden"?

It is authoritatively stated that Miss Helen Gould receives per week begging letters asking for an average of about $1,500,000. Has it never occurred to Miss Gould that she might save herself the annoyance of a great many of these letters by getting married and thus changing her name?—Savannah (Ga.) News.

MAYOR TO THE RIVER MEN

In His Answer to the Improvement Association Mr. Harrison Quotes Opinion Formulated Last December—Says City Can Keep Tunnels a Year and Still Be Supreme — Quotes His Points on Which Agreement with Traction Company Rests.

Mayor Harrison sent his answer to the Chicago River Improvement association yesterday, submitting it also to the City Council for reference to the Street Railway commission. In replying to the request of the association for a conference with the Union Traction company over a solution of the tunnel problem the Mayor stated that his position in the matter had been that of nine members of the Executive committee of the association a year before. This was:

The removal or depression of the tunnels should not be allowed to become a part of the larger question of the renewal of the franchises, for this would make possible a delay of several years, and, further, cannot be tolerated, and also because the traction companies should not be permitted to use the tunnel matter to confuse the franchise question.

"This is a clear, succinct statement of facts on Dec. 11," the Mayor added. "Personally I know of no occurrence since that time that should have brought about a change of mind. The people of Chicago cannot do better, in my estimation, than to take this wholesome advice and discountenance all attempts to confuse the tunnel lowering question with the larger question of the renewal of franchises."

Mayor States His Case.

The Mayor added:

"The franchise extension question means more to Chicago than immediate action looking to the lowering of the tunnels. Chicago can delay the removal of all obstructions to navigation for a year and still maintain its supremacy as a shipping point.

"Franchise extensions granted today will bind the city for at least twenty years. In my last message to the City Council I called the attention of that body to what I regarded as the five cardinal points to be considered in connection with any renewal of grants to the street railroad companies. These points are:

"A requirement that before any franchise shall become operative it first must be submitted to a direct vote of the people for popular indorsement.

"It is along these lines that all negotiation with the street railroad corporations should be conducted. Whenever the Street Railroad committee of the City Council of Chicago shall have completed its investigations and submitted its report I shall be ready personally to take up the question of franchise extensions."

Other Municipal Matters.

In return for a franchise granting it permission to operate a switch stub from the Northwestern railway tracks to its brick yards the Illinois Brick company proposes to give the city a strip of land 180 feet wide and three miles long, located along the North Branch of the river, between Belmont and Peters avenues, which is valued at $15,000. This will permit the removal of a bad curve in the river.

Until the City Controller and the City Treasurer have settled differences in regard to the handling of pay rolls city officials are in danger of not receiving their wages.

WRITES OF SERVANTS' TYRANNY

Chicago, Nov. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In Chicago there is a certain number of English coachmen and butlers who now have the monopoly of what may be considered the "best situations." Some years ago a few Englishmen were brought to Chicago by their employers because of their superior qualifications as coachmen and butlers. On their account English men servants shortly became the fashionable fad. Unscrupulous intelligence agencies took advantage of this, and a large number of lazy, drunken, and dishonest and discredited men were brought in swarms to Chicago, taking the situations of good German, Swedish, and colored men away from them, chiefly by forged "characters" written in certain employment offices here in Chicago.

The English men servants—good and bad—then formed a union and commenced to put the screws on their employers, raising their demands every autumn, until now the lazy and worthless among them command salaries enormously out of proportion to their services.

Coachmen must all have "helpers"—if for only two horses; they must have lodging, light and heat, and wages of $50 to $75 a month. The butlers must have the same wages and must not be asked to do anything in the way of work which will take more than four hours of their time. Many are lazy and dirty and most of them drink. If they can, by false references, get hold of a situation for a month they will take the wages of one month (being discharged by their exasperated employers) and live in idleness till the money is gone and then play the same confidence game on another victim. One cause for this last is because the employer does not insist always on a verbal city reference. It is a pity that employers can't get it through their heads that seven-tenths of the written references in Chicago are forged.

Now, I, Mr .Editor, am a victim, but I am turning, like the worm. From this day forward I am finished with English servants. I shall go back to the wages of the ante-English craze—$40 for coachmen and $35 for butlers, and to a German coachman and a Swedish or colored butler.

These same English servants in England are grateful for £1 a week for coachmen and £3 to £4 a month for butlers. Footmen in England never get over £20 a year. I hope to hear through THE TRIBUNE of other employers who are resolved on becoming free men and women. Yours truly

The discovery of what is thought to be an infernal machine, that had become ignited on a mail car last week, created consternation among the employés in the Chicago Postoffice, where the machine was sent. C. B. Armstrong, a clerk, who opened the package, is disposed to doubt its deadliness, but he is an exception to the general belief that the parcel was meant to kill.

The box, about eight inches long and four inches in height and width, was mailed from Versailles, France, to a resident of Salt Lake City. It was noticed first in a mail car between Omaha and Ogden last Thursday by the mail clerks, who saw smoke coming from a mail bag. The bag was opened and the package found to be smoldering.

Through a hole that had been burned in the top the ends of several metallic cartridge cases were seen, and it was sent to the Chicago Postoffice.

After a cursory examination the clerks here pronounced the box a new type of infernal machine, and when Armstrong volunteered to open it they hastily withdrew to await the explosion. His investigation revealed nothing tangible, as the contents of the package had been burned. Each cartridge case had been wrapped separately in paper, and no evidence of an arrangement for a simultaneous explosion could be found. The cases were filled with the ashes of an unknown substance.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—We are not a nation of hero-worshippers. Grand and brilliant achievements, be they in art or science or politics, do not throw us into wild paroxysms of delight, as they do the nation which rejoices to call Sarah Bernhardt its most gifted daughter. Nor do we rise and cry "A bas" when mighty efforts fail or when disappointment falls in the place of expected success.

And so the hearty tribute which was paid to Mme. Barnhardt and Coquelin, the scarcely less gifted, at the Garden Theater tonight meant more perhaps than the wild scenes of enthusiasm which greeted her "L'Aiglon" in Paris a little less than a year ago. There were no kisses and embraces in the audience, few frantic bravos. But the tense restrained interest, the growing applause and welling emotions, and, finally, the grand outburst of acclaim that follows the Wagram scene signified more than would twice its volume have done in a Paris playhouse.

In a word, the production was a good and masterly success. Each of the great stars added something new to fame already won. A new light was thrown upon the genius of both. And the play confirmed the opinion already gained that Rostand, young as he is, stands in the great light of literary fame.

The new rôle which Bernhardt revealed to Americans was in contrast to every other view which has ever been afforded of her. As the Duke of Reichstadt she played her first male rôle. Assembling all the emotional passion and extraordinary vehemence of the human soul, she clothed them with masculinity. In manner, in every detail of action and gesture, she was the boy—the bodily weak, irresolute, deeply resentful, hopeless boy within whom blazed fitfully the hereditary instincts and inheritance of a Napoleon. Sympathy for the boy was held in the background by the regality of his aspirations. His death had majesty and dignity in it, although he was but a prisoner in a gilded cage. One stood in awe of his end, yet not moved to tearful pity. It seemed like a fitting sacrifice.

Coquelin, as the grenadier, was the embodiment of those qualities which make the old guard of Napoleon glitter in the history of France. Stalwart and brave, loyal to the core, splendid in physique, full of that grim humor which makes light of fear and danger, he was the rough embodiment of true majesty. He controlled as much of the sympathetic interest as did the Eaglet. His death on Wagram field touched a deeper chord of sympathy than did that of the little son of Napoleon. When one saw him in that grim death scene in the gray dawn of morning it was hard to believe Coquelin's greatest fame had been won in the humorous characters of Molière.

There were the others, M. Desjardin as the emotionless, calculating, forbidding Metternich, the Austrian Chancellor; Mme. Mea. as the volatile, thoughtless butterfly, Marie Louise; Mme. Kervich as the voluptuous Fanny Elssler; M. Durec as the dignified, evenly tempered Emperor Francis of Austria, and the brilliant background of the Viennese court, all were in the picture, in delicate, ingenious perspective.

"How would Bernhardt," the people wondered, "overcome her advancing years? How would she physically embody the boy?"

They looked upon her in wonder when she appeared in the gay court throng at Baden, pensive and sad, and clothed all in black. Her figure was as trim and lithe as the boy of 20 she was supposed to be. Her yellow hair, cut short to heighten the boyish effect, crowned a face that had in it the lines of sadness and restraint. The pent-up, forlorn aspirations within her flashed at intervals from her wonderfully expressive eyes. In movement and gesture, even to the jerky bow and languid motion of the hand, she was the weak, thin-chested, emotional youth of the play.

It was only in the scenes with the mother that the illusion of the Eaglet's youthfulness was lost. She certainly looked older than Mme. Mea, who played the rôle of the Empress. No art of Berhardt's could conceal entirely the stamp of years, although she could partly hide them behind her boyishness of manner.

Whether or not Rostand made a faithful copy of the Duke of Reichstadt as he was in history, he nevertheless made him in the drama an invalid, puny, irresolute boy, within whom burned the undaunted, fierce impulses of his father, the Emperor. The Corsican tincture in his nature is tempered but not eliminated by his half-Austrian parentage. He is, as his name indicates, the Eaglet, with an impulsive, combative nature, yet with wings too weak to permit him to soar.

And so Bernhardt played the character. By the time the drama had reached its end she had played upon every note in the scale of human nature. She infused the history lesson with youthful, buoyant enthusiasm. The by-play with the toy soldiers teemed with fervor and exultation. With his hands on the military puppets the martial instinct within him began to light up. The weakling for the moment became the man.

Bernhardt did not throw her whole emotional strength into the dramatic mirror scene. That came, after graduations, in the vivid picture on the field of Wagram. With Flambeau, the grenadier, dead at his feet, his erratic imagination stimulated by the laughing of the crowd and the strange noises of the night, the Eaglet at last sees in himself the expiation of his father's deeds. With the frenzy of excitement and fear he transforms the noises into the tumult of the battle. His emotions rise until they break their bounds, and then, rushing upon the imaginary foe, which proves to be his own Austrian regiment, the reaction comes and he collapses.

It is safe to say that upon this picture of despair Mme. Bernhardt expended the entire force of her emotional gifts. She dissected the boy's nature, put aside the physical weakness, created in its stead an emotional inspiration, and rose to the summit of dramatic intensity. The same qualities she has portrayed in other characters, but never in greater fullness.

The death scene, which came long after midnight, was deeply impressive, yet not deeply sympathetic. The Eaglet, physically crushed, still flashed with the last sparks of his impulsive, half Corsican nature. His loving, tender qualities were revealed in his words to those who mourned his ebbing life. Behind the tender picture stood Metternich, cold and implacable, a symbol of Austrian hate. The Eaglet languidly raised himself on his pillow as the Archbishop recited the titles which were his by birthright. Napoleon's name caught his ear. "Napoleon," he gasped, and fell back dead.

And then Metternich, unswerving in his hatred to the last, said: "Put him in the white uniform of an Austrian Colonel."

Coquelin, by instinct and physical endowment a comedian, achieved an almost absolute success in a rôle imbued with tragedy. Physically, he might have been better endowed to play the grenadier. He did not give quite the idea of corporeal brawn.

The eloquence of his first scene, in which he recounts the story of his venturesome career, was graphic to a degree, and it was intensified by perfect diction and perfect gesture.

There was grim and exciting humor when he played the ghost before Metternich in the Emperor's cabinet, a full sweep of loyal exultation as he stimulated the weak youth to take part in the conspiracy to return to France.

His death scene rivaled Bernhardt's. The halucinations of his last moments when he pictured the fight at Wagram were awful, and they were vividly portrayed. His moment of death was grandly pathetic. It symbolized the sacrifice of a noble man.

The play is in six acts, handsomely set. The full value of Rostrand's verse, not realized in the American adaptation, is brought out, and it proves to be a work of truly poetic inspiration.

The drama, however, is too long to suit the tastes of American audiences. It contains long monologues and brilliant apostrophes which halt the action, and in spite of the perfect diction fatigue the audience.

Bernhardt has seldom faced a better dressed audience than that of tonight. The gowns of the women were superb.

The Wagram scene in the fifth act was the one best liked by the women. At least, it was this scene that called forth most applause. The cries of the injured soldiers in this scene, the stage setting, and the climax caught the house. It needed no interpreter to translate the meaning of the words spoken.

After every act, several times more than once, Bernhardt was called upon so loudly and with such evident enthusiasm that the curtain had to be raised. After the Wagram scene it was difficult to restore the audience to quiet so that the play could be resumed.

Metternich	M. Desjardin
Gentz	M. Deschamps
D'Obenaus	M. Piron

Le Gal Hartman	M. Guiraud
L'Empereur Franz	M. Durec

The receipts of the 234 performances of "L'Aiglon" in Paris amounted to $495,425, an average of more than $2,000 every performance. At the prices she is to charge during her American tour—$5 a seat—it is estimated that the returns of every performance in the large cities of this country should be nearly double that figure.

The Lady Slavey.

Whatever of merit the patron of the Studebaker may find in the performance given this week of "The Lady Slavey" he may safely set down to the credit of the members of the Castle Square company rather than to anything the creators, Messrs. Danee and Kerker, have contributed to the work. The book begins not unpromisingly, but the promise is not fulfilled, and before the first act is half over one realizes that nothing of story, not to speak of plot, is to be expected. The music, too, commences well, but weakens as the act progresses, and only liberal interpolations save the second act from positive dullness.

Given such material, it speaks in no slight praise of the abilities of the singers and comedians engaged to state that the performance last night was not only of unusual briskness and smoothness but was entertaining throughout. Four comedians supplied an abundance of fun-making, and all that there are of musical solos and ensembles to sing were sung with admirable spirit and with a certainty and finish surprising in a first night performance. Miss Quinlan was the Lady Slavey, and the constant gain this energetic member of the company is making in her acting as well as her singing came gratifyingly to evidence last night. Archness and piquancy of manner, combined with deftness and grace in dancing and action, lend her work not only the merit of attractiveness but begin to raise it to the higher level of the individualized and give it power and worth. Her singing also shows increase in smoothness and finish, and last night was at all times pleasing and praise deserving. Miss Berri as the music hall singer surprised those of her admirers who heretofore had seen her only in serious parts. She sang and acted with a dash and abandon that captivated her auditors and won her insistent demands for repetitions of both her numbers in the first act.

Mr. Roberts had little singing to do, one love song which lies a little too low for his voice to be effective, but which he carried to success by virtue of the sincerity of expression he brought to its rendition, being his only solo. Mr. Moulan, as Sykes, gave a capital copy of Dan Daly's style and manner, and, together with Mr. Wooley as the Sheriff Roberts, Mr. Meyers as Lavender, and Mr. Juhre as Dinklebinkle, saw to it that laughter ample and hearty was not wanting during the evening. Mr. Clarke and the chorus made a hit with the "Stein Song," recently written for the Athletic club dinner, and which, interpolated in the second act, received a double encore.

Ada Rehan Scores a Success.

"Sweet Nell of Old Drury" Wins Applause from First-Night Crowd at Buffalo—Star Seems Girlish and Natural, and Has Excellent Opportunities for Displaying Her Talents.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Miss Ada Rehan presented at the Star Theater tonight "Sweet Nell of Old Drury." She portrayed Nell Gwyn, an actress, as an actress. The part lifts Miss Rehan out of the personality which has pervaded her plays for years, and shows her more versatile than her most ardent admirers had hoped for.

No one had expected a girlish Nell, yet as the play progressed, and each act was greeted more heartily than the act before it, Miss Rehan, obviously relieved and more confident, seemed to drop the years behind and become actually in spirit and almost in countenance, the bold and saucy girl who had left her basket of oranges in Drury Lane to play at the King's Theater, and be the mistress of his Majesty.

The play has its weaknesses, but tonight's audience judged it as a whole, and was demonstrative in its favor. It lags at the start, and there was a sigh of relief when Nell came into Drury Lane with her basket, and began to slap faces and chaff peasant and King. The dialogue between Nell and Charles Stuart was a delightful bit, well done by White Whitlesey as well as Miss Rehan. There the King is seen for the only time as a really merry monarch, who takes a loan from the orange girl and pays it back with two and sixpence.

"The pawnbrokers in Flanders would have charged you as much as that," says Nell.

The chief situation of the second act is hardly original. Nell Gwyn hides Fairfax behind one door of her drawing-room, and the King behind the other. When Lord Jeffreys comes for the fugitive Fairfax she makes the King's door her point of defense, so that, while Fairfax escapes, Jeffreys is humiliated by calling upon King Charles to come forth and be taken.

Best of all the scenes was that in which Nell garbs herself in the ermine and wig of the Chief Magistrate, and mimics him so well that her orders are executed to the downfall and chagrin of Jeffreys. She had the stage to herself most of the time, and it was Miss Rehan's best opportunity for acting of the higher sort. Then, after she had laughed in Jeffrey's face and borrowed his chair to go to Whitehall Palace, she closes the act so naturally and so cleverly that tonight the audience made an almost undignified uproar, and was not appeased until Miss Rehan reappeared, bringing by the hand Paul Kester, the author, for whom there had been frequent calls.

Mr. Kester was viewing "Sweet Nell" from the wings. He never had seen it before, as he could not go to London to witness the production in London, in which Julia Neilson had the leading part. Miss Rehan evidently seized him unawares, for his overcoat was on, and he carried his hat in his hand. He looked boyish and embarrassed.

The final act shows Nell's return to the King's favor, and the clearing of Fairfax through her. It sparkles in dialogue, Nell putting in a word here and a word there as Charles banishes her enemies from court. Finally they are alone, and the play ends with a song from Nell as she and the King pass out, hand in hand. It is a peculiarly pretty close.

A word should be said of White Whitlesey's King Charles. It was a revelation of the possibilities of a Kingly rôle, and the honors he won were second only to Miss Rehan's.

"Sweet Nell" is elaborately staged. The costuming has been done by careful and intelligent hands, from the robe of Jeffreys to the motto on the King's garter.

Lord Jeffreys, Chief Justice of England	D. H. Harkins
Sir Roger Fairfax	Earle Brown
Lord Lovelace	Foster Lardner
Lord Rochester	Charles F. Gotthold
Percival, a provincial player	William Elton

Lacy, an agent of Jeffreys	Wright Kramer
Captain Graham Clavering	Erhard Russell
Lord in Waiting	C. Howard Odlin
First Alderman	Richard Fulton
Second Alderman	Leroy Hanlon
Mercer Walter Pleugh William	Charles Howard
Nebuchadnezzar	Harry Blair
The Duchess of Portsmouth	Virginia Navarre
Lady Castlemaine	Louise Draper
Lady Olivia Vernon	Alice Neal
Nell Gwynn	Ada Rehan

A Man of Forty in New York.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—"The Man of Forty," a modern play in four acts, by Walter Firth, was presented for the first time in America this evening by Daniel Frohman's company at Daly's Theater.

Miss Cecilia Loftus made her début with the company in one of the most sympathetic parts in the play. Her success as a delineator of certain light character rôles is assured. She is bound to become a big favorite with Daly audiences.

The plot of "The Man of Forty" deals with the love affairs of three couples. There is a young grass widow, played by Hilda Spong, who is engaged to "The Man of Forty," John Mason, but is unable to marry him because her supposedly dead husband, one of the dual rôles of Edward Morgan, turns up. "The Man of Forty's" daughter also falls in love with the husband. There is a third married pair, the husband a golf fiend and the wife a follower of the races.

The first two acts are talky. John Mason has all the good lines. They are full of humor of the heavy British type. Morgan in these acts plays the pessimistic foil for Mason's optimistic rôle. Beatrice Morgan plays an impossible newspaper woman with poor taste. Hilda Spong, the company's new leading lady, did not carry off the honors of the evening. They fell most graciously on the shoulders of clever Elizabeth Tyree. Miss Tyree has a good part, and made the most of her opportunity.

The third and fourth acts of the play will carry it through a long and successful run. The last act is full of bright lines and clever situations.

Julia Marlowe as Mary Tudor.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" Wins Favor of First Night Audience at St. Louis and Gives Star a Difficult Rôle, but She Does Not Say the Swear Word—Cast of the Play.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—"When Knighthood Was in Flower" is a go, and Julia Marlowe doesn't say the swear word, either. An audience that crowded the Olympic Theater to overflowing tonight watched the first public production of the play Paul Kester has made out of Charles Majors' popular historical romance and received it with warmest demonstrations of applause. The play is full of the dramatic quality, yet its predomination is that of comedy and romantic sentiment.

There are few somber shades, and these are never of depressing emphasis. There are moments when the spectator's sympathies are played on in a fashion to call the suspicion of a tear to the eye, but these moments are of short duration and soon all is bright and full of merriment again. Faults the play certainly has, but such as can be easily corrected, as suggestions offer themselves to the management in the light of further experience before the public.

In Mary Tudor Miss Marlowe has one of the most difficult rôles she has yet essayed and at the same time one that will prove most popular with playgoers. It is a complex and many-sided character suggesting that of Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew," but being a far more winsome and loveable character than Shakspeare's heroine. Mary Tudor is a termagant. She has a vixenish temper that makes her royal brother, King Henry VIII., quail before it and rejoice mightily when the English Channel separates him from her; yet she is at the same time so personally charming, so magnetic, so persuasive, so delightfully feminine that there is no possibility of remaining angry with her.

The character requires the most rapid transitions and most whimsical variations of temperament. In an instant Mary Tudor runs the gamut of moods from tearing passion to melting meekness and back again, and, as Miss Marlowe portrays her, there is not a moment when she is not altogether lovely.

It was said that Miss Marlowe refused to utter an oath the playwright had put in his manuscript. It is not to be found in Mr. Majors' book. Mr. Majors wrote: "Carry this to your King, that I will see him and the whole kingdom sunk in hell before I will marry Louis of France." The playwright is alleged to have interpolated the word "damned" before "kingdom." Miss Marlowe did not accept it, and no one can believe for a moment that Mr. Kester expected she would.

In the main the playwright has admirably caught, and preserved the spirit of the book. Alterations and interpolations have necessarily been made, but these are not of a character to materially change the story. On the stage the story is told with the same charm that it is in Mr. Majors' book. Considered as a production there is much to praise in the matter of scenery, of which there are five sets, costumes, furniture, and other accessories. "When Knighthood Was in Flower" is an excellent reflection of the times in which the story is laid. The production can be strengthened by the assignment of more competent actors to several of the parts. Indeed, there is too strong a contrast between Miss Marlowe's impersonation of Mary Tudor and that of all the other rôles, save perhaps that of King Henry, which was taken by Charles Harbury. The Charles Brandon of Bruce MacRae was a disappointment, and neither of the others particularly distinguished themselves.

A number of critics, literary men, and friends of Miss Marlowe and Mr. Majors were here to witness the play. Mr. Majors was in the audience, but he declined to show himself in response to the call for the author, although the audience kept up a clamor for more than ten minutes.

LONDON, Nov. 27, 3 a. m.—Claudine Sharp, a pretty Chicago girl who has lived for the last few years with her parents in Paris, made her stage début last night in "The Casino Girl" at the Shaftesbury Theater. Her part is a small one at present, but next week she will understudy one of the principals, and probably will do an artistic dance as a specialty. Mr. Lederer is much pleased with the young woman's first appearance, and says she has enough talent to make several of the clever soubrettes fear her advent.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Jessie Bartlett Davis made her début in vaudeville today at Keith's Theater. Her success was immediate. A big audience gave her a cordial welcome and recalled her repeatedly after each song. Miss Davis sang "Good-Night, Beloved," "Dear Heart," and three other simple ballads. In response to many calls she sang "O, Promise Me."

Return of Mrs. Fiske.

She Begins Annual Engagement at the Grand Opera-House, Playing "Becky Sharp"—Maurice Barrymore Absent This Year, but the Performance Is More Symmetrical.

Mrs. Fiske began her annual engagement at the Grand Opera-House last night. She presented "Becky Sharp," her success of last year, and again the result of a pleasant victory. When "Becky Sharp" was first seen on the New York stage a year ago the declaration came from several critical quarters that the piece was a bad specimen of a built-from-a-book drama. It was said from the same corners that only Mrs. Fiske's tart, brilliant impersonation of Thackeray's siren carried the play. But a year has passed, and a year is too long for any single portrayal, regardless of the genius in it, to bolster up a piece. The truth now speaks for itself. "Becky Sharp" as a play is as well able to stand alone as is Mrs. Fiske's Becky, and taken together, the two are never other than admirable.

If the captious must find fault they will have to be content with doing so under the head of possible injuries done the memory of Thackeray's minor personages of the novel. Except in so far as the spirit of Becky Sharp herself is caught the play is neither a close nor an excellent dramatization of the great novel; but there both Mr. Langdon Mitchell and Mrs. Fiske excuse themselves by saying the play is not intended as a dramatization, by calling it "Becky Sharp." And it does enable the actress to offer the image of the little hypocrite the majority of persons have in mind.

That fact evidently is wholly satisfying to the public. It assuredly was to the portion of it which watched the opening performance of the return engagement last night. Not a whit of Mrs. Fiske's satirical emphasis of Becky's qualities of hard-heartedness and strong wit was lost upon her hearers. There were many curtain calls.

Mrs. Fiske's impersonation varied in no essential particular from the one she gave last spring. The familiar comment on matured characterizations is that they have mellowed. When Becky is allowed to be mellowed there, however, will be a stage wreck. She is coldly cunning and she must not warm. She is steely and she cannot be allowed to dull or soften. So Mrs. Fiske continues to keep the picture sharply distinct and to draw Becky for what she was, one of the world's adventuresses, a creature remote from sympathy, save possibly in that one fleeting moment she faces herself and writhes under the punishment.

The respect wherein the performance differed from previous ones was in the support. Last year there were two stars, Mrs. Fiske and Maurice Barrymore. This year there is but one. If there is a loss, however, there is also a gain. If no sensational attention now centers around Rawdon Crawley, the entire performance is perhaps made more symmetrical by the subduing of the part. Frank Gillmore gives a praiseworthy interpretation of the blundering dragoon, patterning somewhat after Mr. Barrymore, but adding not a little individualism. Charles Vane, who played minor parts with Sir Henry Irving here last winter, has succeeded Augustus Cook as the Marquis of Steyne. He looks the part less—according to Thackeray—but he acts it better, at least more Satanically. Laura McGilvray as Amelia Sedley likewise is an improvement over the actress of last spring and Norman Conniers is a more manly Dobbin than his predecessor.

The Star and Garter Succeeds.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Frank McKee presented his comedy company and the Agoust family in John K. McNally's farce, "The Star and Garter," at the Victoria this evening. Notwithstanding the new skit is avowedly a vehicle for the specialty of the Agousts, it would prove a successful entertainment in itself even with the star feature omitted. Although the story is flimsy and elastic, it is humorous in the extreme and closely interpolated with bright specialties.

Amusement Notes.

Charles Wayne and Annie Caldwell headed the new bill at the Olympic Theater yesterday, appearing in a sketch, "To Boston on Business," by George M. Cohan. Julia Kingsley and a company appeared at the same house in a sketch, "Uncle's Niece," and among the other entertainers were Blocksom and Burns, acrobats, and Phyllis Allen, balladist. At the Chicago Opera-House the Hawthorne sisters occupied the feature place yesterday, and their companions on the bill included Haines and Pettingill, negro impersonators; Lillian Burkhart and her company in a sketch, "Captain Suzanne"; George H. Wood, monologist; and the Ramsey sisters. Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardiner headed the list at the Haymarket Theater.

The fourth popular concert in the series arranged by Hannah and Hamlin will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in University Hall. The program enlists the services of Clara Henley Bussing, soprano; Mary Wood Chase, pianist; George Hamlin, tenor; David Canmann, bass; Bruno Steindel, 'cellist; and Nellie Bangs Skelton and Mrs. Steindel, accompanists.

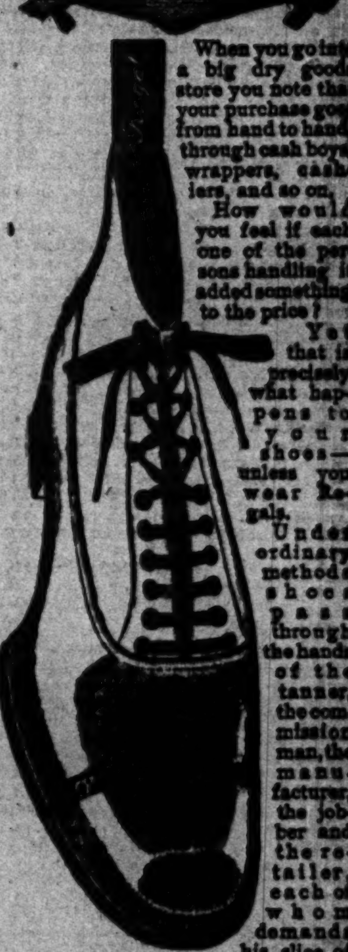

Ernest Seton-Thompson will give two additional lectures at Central Music Hall on Thursday. His subject will continue to be wild animals and their habits, and the talks will be illustrated with numerous views. The hours will be 11 o'clock in the morning and 8 o'clock in the evening.

James A. Herne is to give a Thanksgiving entertainment to several hundred of the poor children of New York. The actor is playing at the Republic Theater, New York, where "Sag Harbor" will reach its seventy-fifth performance on Friday.

It is said that if Forbes Robertson—Miss Gertrude Elliott's intended husband—succeeds in arranging for a London season in the spring, he will produce "Othello," playing the Moor himself, with Miss Elliott as Desdemona.

William Faversham has recovered from his illness of last week and is playing with the Empire Theater company in Baltimore this week.

THE REGAL
"FROM ME TO YOU"

When you go into a big dry goods store you note that your purchase goes from hand to hand, through cash boys, wrappers, cashiers, and so on.

Under ordinary methods shoes pass through the hands of the tanner, the commission man, the manufacturer, the jobber and the retailer, each of whom demands his slice of profit. Regal Shoes are sold straight from tannery to consumer with but one small profit added to the actual cost, and they cost you but $3.50 instead of $6. And they are sold at $3.50 year in and year out with no reductions of any character.

ALTER REPUBLIC BY-LAWS

STOCKHOLDERS MUST APPROVE ANY MORTGAGE ON PROPERTY.

Steel and Iron Company's Directors Act—Vice President George D. Wick Resigns—Trading on the Local Exchange in New York Stocks—Elgin National Watch Corporation to Retire $500,000 of Its $1,000,000 Bonds—Reports of Railway Companies.

The Board of Directors of the Republic Iron and Steel company put itself on record yesterday as opposed to the practice of issuing bonds on its property ahead of the capital stock without vote of stockholders. Recent developments in another corporation led the directors to take action. An amendment to the by-laws was passed providing that the company shall not mortgage any of its property except by purchase-money mortgage, without the assent of a majority of both its preferred and common stockholders. The company's by-laws contained no previous reference to the issue of bonds. If in acquiring other plants it should be desirable to place a mortgage on them in part payment that right is reserved.

The amendment passed is as follows: "The corporation shall not mortgage any of its property, except by purchase-money mortgage, without the assent, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority of each class of its stock; such asent to be either in writing or by vote at any meeting called in accordance with the by-laws."

George D. Wick, one of the Vice Presidents, resigned as of Dec. 1, and will return to his home in Youngstown, O. John F. Taylor, Treasurer, was elected to fill the vacancy, with the title of Vice President and Treasurer. Mr. Wick retains his place on the Board of Directors and the Executive committee.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent was declared on the preferred stock, payable on Jan. 2. Books close on Dec. 15 and reopen on Jan. 2.

Local Stock Exchange.

Light trading in New York stocks on the local exchange yesterday was the result of the difficulty of telegraphic communication by brokerage houses with the East, wires being down. Transactions in local stocks were small in volume and resulted in few changes. Union Traction stocks were weakened by the new complications in the Consolidated Traction suit. The preferred declined from 55 to 53, and the common to 13. Linseed issues were dull, and the preferred showed a loss at the close of ¾.

Will Retire $500,000 Bonds.

The Elgin National Watch company has decided to call in $500,000 of its bonds on Feb. 1. The total amount outstanding is $1,000,000. It is understood to be the policy of the present management not to increase dividends until all of the bonds are paid off. It is expected that the remainder will be called before the end of next year. The bonds are redeemable at par, and accrued interest. The issue was put out on July 1, 1887, all payable to T. M. Avery or bearer, twenty years from date, with interest payable semiannually. The bonds are redeemable in money or may be converted into stock at par at the option of the company. They bear 6 per cent interest.

Earnings of Corporations.

The annual report of the American Railways company shows that it holds $500,000 of preferred stock in the Chicago Union Traction company and $250,000 of common, for which it paid $500,000. It also owns $597,700 of the $600,000 stock of the Joliet railroad, which cost $498,808. President De Coursey says that the Joliet railroad is being extended to Chicago rapidly, and when completed will be thirty-one miles in length from the terminus in Joliet to the City of Chicago. Here it will connect with the Chicago City railway lines. It will also have a branch of 3½ miles from Summit to the Village of Lyons, where it will connect with the Chicago Union Traction company.

The net earnings of the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric railway company from Jan. 1 to Oct. 31 were $121,284, against $69,617 the corresponding period of last year.

Financial Topics.

The meeting of the stockholders of the International Packing company scheduled for today to hear the report of the committee appointed last week, will be postponed till Friday.

The application of the Amalgamated Copper company to have its stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange contains no statement of earnings or assets and liabilities. It gives the various mining companies whose stock issues are owned wholly by the Amalgamated company, and says that a majority of the capital stocks of the following is owned: Anaconda Copper Mining company, Butte, Mont.; Parrot Silver and Copper company, Butte, Mont.; Hennessy Mercantile company, Butte and Anaconda, Mont. There is no bonded debt on any of the properties.

The directors of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry company have decided to pass the dividend on the preferred stock for the present quarter. This action was expected, and the probability is that none will be paid for several quarters.

STORM AFFECTS THE MARKETS.

[BY E. W. HARDEN.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The volume of business on the New York Stock Exchange today was materially smaller than the average for the full days since election, largely as a result of interruptions to the cable and telegraph service. One of the principal cable company's lines were interrupted during nearly the whole of the business day, and other lines were so congested with business that considerable delay resulted in getting orders through from London. There was a storm which interfered with the land lines and cut down materially the business which would otherwise have been transacted by private wire houses. Some of the brokerage firms having wires to Chicago were unable to get good service, and as a result considerable delay was experienced in executing orders and getting confirmations. Notwithstanding this, sales today reached a total of 900,000 shares, and, with the exception of some of the industrials, the market was stronger than on Saturday.

The principal weakness shown was in Steel and Wire. Trading in this stock amounted to 45,000 shares, and the close was 1¾ points below Saturday's final figures. Federal Steel showed good gains on fairly heavy trading and both issues of Republic Iron and Steel closed at an advance.

The railroad issues were in good demand. The buying orders which came in from out of town were largely for this class of securities, and there was a gain noticeable, a good deal of buying of stocks to be taken out of the market. It is notable as indicating the stability of the market at the present time that the supply of stocks is small and that collateral loans on stock have shown a falling off as a result of the investment buying.

Chesapeake and Ohio was again a leader in the railroad group, although the buying in this stock was not as active as in some of the other issues. The initial gain was well maintained to the close, which was ⅝ point above Saturday's final figures. The buying in this stock is by pool, of which Dick Bros. are at the head. Atchison was particularly strong and active. Sales in the two issues were in excess of 65,000 shares, of which the preferred contributed 40,000, with a net gain of 1¼ points. The common gained ⅝ point.

The Pacific stocks were also strong, a gain being shown in nearly all of these issues. Union Pacific gained ¾ point; Southern Pacific, ⅝ point; and Northern Pacific, ¼ point. North American sold up 1¼ on limited trading and closed at the top.

London cables came in higher at the opening, and in the early trading arbitrage houses bought in the neighborhood of 20,000 shares of Southern railway common and preferred. It was to this buying largely that the sharp advance in today's market was credited. The common closed at a net advance of 2¾ points from Saturday's final figures, though the preferred showed a net gain of 2½ points. According to the belief of some of the big operators in the street London is still short of American securities to a considerable extent.

IN THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The reactionary tendency which weighed on the stock market during the latter part of last week was overcome today and prices resumed their upward course. London was a large buyer in this market, sales to that account being estimated at 30,000 shares. The Southern railway stocks were in special demand. The common and preferred stocks advanced an extreme 3 points each. The weekly earnings reported today on some of these systems showed sharp decreases from last year's corresponding period, notably in Missouri Pacific and Denver and Rio Grande. Nevertheless, these stocks held a prominent place in the advance. Gains in the group ran from 1 to nearly 3 points.

The local tractions showed a good recovery and Consolidated Gas was conspicuous with a rise of 4¼. The Steel stocks were decidedly unsettled, Steel and Wire showing acute weakness at times.

Money continued easy here and hardened in London, resulting in higher rates for sterling exchange. There was large buying of St. Louis Southwestern bonds. The market otherwise was strong and quite active. Total sales, par value, $4,130,000. U. S. refunding 2s when issued and the 5s advanced ¼ and the 3s ⅝ per cent on the last call.

Close: Money on call steady at 3@3¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent. Sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at 485⅝@485¾ for demand and at 481¾@481⅞ for 60 days; posted rates, 482½ and 486@486½; commercial bills, 480¾@481¼. Silver certificates, 64@65c. Bar silver, 63⅞. Mexican dollars, 50c. Government bonds strong; State bonds strong; railroad bonds strong.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says:

The opening of the markets here today was quiet and dull, as they usually are just before the settlement, but there was considerable improvement in the afternoon on the announcement that the diplomatic situation in Pekin had become clearer, especially as to the question of a money indemnity. Americans were quieter, but there was a good market for them throughout the session, although cable derangement seriously delayed arbitrage dealings. The arbitragers were short of Southern railway securities this morning, and London, taking the hint, bought them freely, while nibbling at others.

The bank lost £150,000 gold to Egypt. Call money was in active demand.

The bank did a large business in loans at 4¼ and discount 4 per cent, having the market well in hand. Paris exchange, 25.12; Berlin, 20.44½.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Notwithstanding the release of £600,000 by the retirement of London county bills, money was much wanted today in connection with the settlement, the new exchequer bonds, and month end requirements. Discounts were firm.

On the Stock Exchange operators were little disposed to engage in fresh transactions, in view of the settlement. Home rails were weak, except Caledonian deferred, which were in demand. Americans were firm and fairly active, although the changes were irregular owing to free realizations in Wall street. Southern railways and Southern Pacifics were the features, on dividend anticipations.

Bar silver steady, 29 9-16d per ounce. Money, 3¼@4 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¾@4 per cent; three months' bills, 4@4 1-16 per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Prices on the bourse today opened steady, but later realizations, in view of the approaching settlement and fresh offers of tractions, affected the parquet unfavorably. Internationals were firm. Rio Tintos fluctuated slightly, but finished firm. Kaffirs were easier at the beginning on high contangoes in London, but they recovered before the close. After the close of the bourse prices were buoyant.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Prices on the boerse today were generally firm. Home funds were in good demand. Chinese 5s hardened slightly. Locals fluctuated and closed better on bear covering in connection with the settlement.

Shipments from here last week were the smallest since last January, which was accounted for by the fact that the outside markets east of here were relatively lower than Chicago.

Eleven markets received 96,000 hogs, against 110,000 a week ago, 101,000 a year ago, and 146,000 two years ago, when Chicago alone received 68,261, not including over 3,000 sent direct to down-town packers.

Packers purchased 23,700 hogs, and shippers 4,500, leaving 7,000 in the pens. Armour bought 5,000, Anglo-American 3,600, Boyd & Lunham 2,500, Continental 3,000, Hammond 900, Lipton 1,700, Morris 3,500, Swift 3,500, and butchers, 2,000.

Cattle—The market was active and prices ruled strong to 10c higher. Four loads averaging 1,292@1,406 lbs sold at $5.90, with quite a few averaging 1,290@1,533 lbs at $5.75@5.85. Most of the 1,200@1,450-lb steers sold at $5.10@5.60; corn-fed Westerns, $4.90@5.60; corn-fed Texas, $4.30@4.80; grass Western steers, $3.75@4.40; native cows, $1.75@4.10; heifers, $2.70@4.25; bulls, $2.50@4.25; calves, $2.75@5.25; and stockers and feeders, $2.40@4.25. Butcher stock closed strong.

Hogs—Trade was active, with average prices the same as the closing day of the week. Some early sales showed a slight advance, but the finish was generally 5c below best prices of the morning. Packers bought freely up to 10 o'clock, but after that hour they semed indifferent. About 7,000 were carried over, a good share of them in first hands. Receipts hardly reached expectations. The quality was fairly good with the proportion of heavy packers larger than usual. Pigs were scarce and generally sold 10c higher at $4.00@4.20 for 60@90-lb averages, and $4.30@4.60 for 100@125-lb averages. About 500 hogs averaging 190@326 lbs sold at $5.02½@5.05. Quotations follow:

Sheep—Receipts were estimated at 20,000, including 1,838 fancy 132-lb Western sheep, which were contracted six weeks ago for export at $4.80, but they were worth only about $4.30 on the market. The general market for sheep and lambs was slow, with prices steady to 10c lower. Lambs sold at $3.50@5.10, bulk $4.50@5.00; native sheep, $2.75@4.25, bulk $3.60@4.00. Feeding lambs averaging 43@45 lbs sold at $4.00@4.50.

FIFTY CENTS FOR CORN.

NOVEMBER SHORTS GLAD TO COVER.

Failure of Elevator Men to Manufacture Contract Article Out of Low Grades at Drying Plants Makes Position of Bears Still More Uncomfortable, but Counselman Grain Finally Is Accepted—Dull Trade in Wheat, Prices Sagging Off.

In the ascending scale of prices paid for November corn by belated shorts a new mark was touched yesterday—50c, an advance of 5c from the close Saturday and of 3c from the best previous price. The close was 1c lower, Phillips bidding 49c. The action of the Appeals committee in turning down as below contract grade two cargoes tendered Phillips by Counselman and Bartlett-Frazier had the expected effect of strengthening the position of the bull leader and adding further worry to the troubles already heaped upon the shoulders of the shorts. For the first time in several days Phillips took an active hand in the game as an open bidder for small and large lots. The opening price was 46c, and there was a gradual advance to 49½c, Phillips taking most of the offerings. The first bid of 50c was by Carr for 5,000 bu, and it brought some stop loss orders on the market. Phillips filling one of 50,000 bu for Logan and making a number of smaller sales, his sales exceeding his purchases by about 60,000 bu. While November gained 4c December was also strong on covering by shorts and a big trade early selling at 36⅝c and closing at 36⅜-½c, a gain of ⅜-⅝c. May closed unchanged at 36⅝c. There was some changing from December to May at ¼c premium for December. There was nothing in the movement to discourage the bulls. Acceptances were heavier, but for deferred shipment, and the elevators, disheartened by the failure of their attempt to foist kiln-dried corn on Phillips, were not in the market for low grades. The receipts, 511 cars, included only 51 cars contract. There were 8,000 bu in by canalboat and 49 cars and 41,000 bu transferred from private to public houses, some of it possibly to be turned down by the Appeals committee later.

The statistics laid before the trade did not have much effect on prices. The amount on passage increased 1,848,000 bu, to 13,752,000 bu, compared with a decrease of 632,000 bu last year, to 20,528,000 bu. World's shipments were 6,115,000 bu, compared with 5,161,000 bu the previous week and 5,942,000 bu last year. Local stocks in public warehouses increased 585,000 bu, to 1,685,000 bu, but no one ventured an estimate on the proportion of contract grain in the total. The visible supply increased 276,000 bu, to 8,704,000 bu. Last year there was an increase of 512,000 bu, to 11,572,000 bu. Primary receipts were 791,640 bu, compared with 949,440 bu last year. Clearances were 750,132 bu. There were no local sales reported for shipment, but 100,000 bu at the seaboard. Liverpool futures advanced ½-⅝d, spot was ½d higher and steady.

The loading began in the morning with a different quality of corn from that tendered Saturday. It was passed on favorably by Chief Supervising Inspector Smilie and accepted by Mr. Phillips' inspector. Some 20,000 bu had been loaded when Mr. Smilie left the dock and declared there could be no objection if the quality was kept up.

Down on the Board of Trade where November corn had risen in the pit to 50c almost as much excitement was occasioned when Charles Counselman called Mr. Phillips from the pit. They were at once surrounded by a jostling crowd of speculators, eager to hear the conversation. The big elevator speculator, towering head and shoulders above the slight speculator, said to him:

"Mr. Phillips, I don't want to give you anything but contract corn, and I am having No. 2 corn loaded on your vessel."

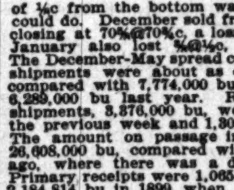

"All I ask, Mr. Counselman, is to get contract corn, and with that I shall be perfectly satisfied."

That was the extent of the conversation, hardly belligerent enough to satisfy the expectations of the speculators, but it was suggestive of an armed truce.

Anoher engagement was on in a few hours, for, after 65,000 bu had been loaded on the steamer at South Chicago Phillips' inspector reported a poorer quality of corn was being dumped into the boat. The work of loading was ordered stopped and Mr. Phillips went to the State Grain department and demanded that the Appeals committee be sent down to examine the cargo. This committee could not go then, and later Mr. Phillips concluded the corn was No. 2. Loading was finished and the Pabst left at midnight, towing the Armenia.

Wheat Dull and Lower.

Speculation was dull and lifeless in wheat, most of the regular traders sticking close to the corn pit, where the chief interest centered. Cables were too indifferent to give much encouragement to the bulls, and Eastern wires were down, delaying news and business. There was some buying early by the pit crowd on the expectation of a decrease in the visible, but the report was delayed, and this class of holdings dumped towards the close. Just before the final tap of the bell the figures were posted, showing a decrease of 100,000 bu, compared with an increase of 1,935,000 bu last year, but a rally was the best the market could do.

Of ¼c from the bottom was the best the market could do. December sold from 71⅛c to 70⅝@70⅜c, closing at 70⅝@70⅝c, a loss of ⅝@¼c for the day. January also lost ⅝@½c, closing at 71¼@71⅜c. The December-May spread continued 3⅛c. World's shipments were about as expected, 8,003,000 bu, compared with 7,774,000 bu the week before, and 6,289,000 bu last year. Russian and Danubian shipments, 3,376,000 bu, were about the same as the previous week and 1,300,000 bu ahead of 1899. The amount on passage increased 424,000 bu to 26,608,000 bu, compared with 23,840,000 bu a year ago, where there was a decrease of 488,000 bu. Primary receipts were 1,065,424 bu, compared with 2,184,814 bu in 1899, when, however, an extra day was figured in. Shipments were 794,452 bu, compared with 588,420 bu. Clearances were 371,250 bu. Liverpool was steady to ¼d higher, spot unchanged, and London ¼d lower to ¼d higher.

There was a good deal of latent strength in provisions, pork making an advance of 12½c in January and 7½c in May. Neither lard or rib futures were affected in price, but the market was strong and product in good demand. Hog receipts were 38,000, against 46,000 the previous Monday, and prices were steady at about Saturday's average. Principal packing points reported 65,100 head, against 80,900 the previous week, 69,100 the corresponding week last year. Shipments of cut meats for forty-eight hours were 2,696,000 lbs, and of lard, 1,700,000 lbs.

Oats was, as usual, a narrow market from a speculative standpoint, but a good deal of changing was done. The receipts were 104 cars, of which only 2 cars were contract. The visible decreased 1,063,000 bu, against a decrease of only 10,000 bu the previous week. Local stocks, now 3,373,000 bu, decreased 100,000 bu.

Rye was again dull, December nominally 45¼c; round lots of May, 49¼c, and job lots, 49c. Receipts were only 2 cars. The visible supply decreased 45,000 bu, against an increase of 185,000 bu the previous week. Local stocks, now 639,000 bu, increased 10,000 bu.

Barley was about unchanged in price. The low grades were decidedly strong, but the better grades were possibly a shade easier. Low to fair was quotably 47@48c; fair to good, 48@56c; and good to choice, 56@62c.

Seeds were entirely nominal. March timothy, $4.50 bid, and clover about $10.00@10.25.

On flaxseed the local market followed Duluth, which was weak and 3@5c lower. No. 1 Northwestern was 5¼c off at $1.63½, and No. 1 the same distance lower at $1.62. December sold from $1.61@1.63, closing $1.62 asked. May sold $1.60, closing $1.61¼ asked and $1.60 bid. There were 49 cars here, 91 at Duluth, and 104 at Minneapolis.

At a special meeting of the Board of Trade held in the visitors' room at the close of 'Change yesterday it was voted with practical unanimity to increase the trading limit of futures to ninety days and make trading in May wheat, as in May corn and oats, regular after October. Two amendments providing for these changes in the rules will be balloted upon in the near future.

The Smith case occupied the attention of the directors again yesterday. Registrar Dan Hogan was the only witness and was on the stand all day. Rumors were in circulation of new evidence of the prosecution, but no facts were permitted to leak out.

Smaller Brazilian receipts, larger American warehouse deliveries, improved spot demand in the street market, increase in investment speculation, most encouraging foreign market news, and anticipation of smaller crop movement in Brazil, all combined to strengthen bull convictions. Trading was more active than in months, total sales reaching close to 80,000 bags. Sentiment at the close was radically bullish. The market was finally firm with prices 20 to 25 points net higher. Total sales, 79,250 bags, including December, 6.10@6.15c; January, 6.25c; February, 6.35c; March, 6.40@6.45c; May, 6.50@6.55c; July, 6.60@6.65c; September, 6.65@6.75c; October, 6.70@6.75c.

Be sure and be at home. The ones that have received it are those that have always been just a little ahead of their competitors in business getting ideas. BAD AIR IN THE CHURCHES.

"Nearly all the churches of Chicago are filled with air bad enough to hasten the death of the people who attend them," said Chief Sanitary Inspector Andrew Young yesterday. "They never are properly ventilated. They are kept closed up tight all the week and become surcharged with germs until they are worse than any theater in the city."

Inspector Young has been engaged recently in investigating the methods of ventilation followed by the different churches, with the result that he has nothing but unfavorable criticism. He is an enthusiast in sanitation, and has done much to improve the conditions in the theaters, department stores, and other places where people assemble in large crowds.

"In England and other foreign countries," continued Mr. Young, "they have the problem of tombs under their church floors to contend with, but here there is nothing of the kind. Our churches are well built, according to modern plans, are usually roomy, with little or no plumbing to occupy our attention, and they should have the best of ventilation. On the contrary, the air in almost all is as bad as if not worse than the air in the tombs of the churches of the old countries.

"Our churches, especially the Protestant, with the exception of some of the Episcopal, are locked up throughout the week, while on Sunday they are opened for two or three short services, but not long enough to permit the air in them to become changed thoroughly. What is the result? They are never properly ventilated, but become the breeding place for disease germs of all kinds and become worse than theaters or any other worldly places.

"The fault is largely due to the ignorance of the officers of the churches. They are too often careless and permit the janitors to open the doors five minutes before the people begin to arrive for the services and to close them as soon as the last person leaves. Churches should be aired every day, just as a house is ventilated daily."

Inspector Young is interesting himself in the proper ventilation of the churches, and he will likely seek a way to bring about an improvement in them now that he has completed his work among the theaters.

THE SOUTH HALSTED STREET MYSTERY.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

White Maude, a worker among the slums of South Halsted street, is found murdered in her tenement home. The police think robbery the motive, but the crushed and mutilated body of the woman's mocking bird seems to indicate a deep hatred of the woman, and all things associated with her as having prompted the assassin. Sadie, a 14-year-old street gamin and gum peddler, is held by the police because of a blood stain on the shoulder of her dress, the mark left by a man who had roughly pushed her aside on the street the night of the murder. Dr. Roy Casson, a physician of the City Health department, is attracted by the novel features of the case, and, in calling on his sweetheart, Marian Manning, niece of Daniel Dreeme of the Lake Shore drive, political dictator of the North Side, shocks her by expressing his determination to mix up in the case and solve the mystery of the murder. He learns from her that her uncle, the blind "boss" and millionaire, under whose roof she is living, wants her to marry Volney, his candidate for Congress. She assures Casson, however, that he alone has her love. Casson makes a start in his investigations by securing from Sadie a broken cuff button which she had found fastened in her dress after her encounter with the man in the street.

CHAPTER V.—A STOLEN MEETING BETWEEN LOVERS.

THREE days later Casson had made his report to the detective department and talked confidentially with its chief. The result of this was that Detective O'Hara was started upon an entirely different line of investigation from that he had been following. He remarked that the description of the pseudo workman was so full and accurate that he would be able to find him in a city of 2,000,000 of people, and he had no doubt that in a week at latest he would have the man behind the bars. Casson was at liberty to accept this statement at its face value or not, and he chose to put his own valuation on it. Being an employé of the city, he felt no hesitation in giving to the department any information he might have and imparting any deductions he might have drawn from it, but he said to himself that he had taken no contract to furnish the thief-takers with brains, and he thought privately it would be useless to try. O'Hara had as clews the practical certainty that the man who murdered White Maud was disguised as a workman. From these starting points he expected to work wonders. Casson's formal report in writing said that the smear upon the child's shawl was not only human blood, but that it was the blood of the murdered woman. This he had proven by comparing the smear corpuscles and the corpuscles he had scraped from the floor. Their absolute similarity settled the question beyond doubt. He had dismissed the murder from his mind temporarily and was deep in an experiment in which a lot of culture tubes figured when he received the following note from Marian Manning, sent by messenger:

"I must see you tonight. For reasons I will give you later you cannot come to the house. I am supposed to go to the theater this evening. At 9 o'clock I will be on the lake shore, just opposite to the Grant statue. Meet me there without fail. Yours, M. M."

He found the girl at the place she had indicated. She made rather a strange figure, being in full dress, with an opera cloak wrapped about her white shoulders and jewels gleaming in her hair, but she sat perched on the stone wall, apparently oblivious to the hundreds of curious glances cast at her by the bicycle riders and others. She laughed a little nervously as her lover approached and seemed relieved by his presence.

"It is a good thing that this is a big town," she said. "In a smaller city I would have been recognized almost immediately."

"O," Casson answered, leading her toward the water's edge, where she would be out of the glare of the arc lights, "Chicago is big enough, for the matter of that. Sometimes I get hungry for the sight of a familiar face. I could even welcome my worst enemy if he would only stand still long enough to let me get a good look at him and say to myself that I knew him."

"I sent my duenna on to the theater," said Marian, "telling her that I was going for a stroll. She is used to my vagaries and made no protest. Furthermore, she will keep it to herself. I fancy she was rather glad to be rid of me for one night."

"Yes?" her lover said, tentatively. "I rather fancied from your note that you were in trouble, Marian. What is it?"

She faced him, standing tall and beautiful in the half light. "You remember what I told you when I saw you last?" she asked.

"That you would marry no man except me," he replied, stooping and kissing her hand. "I do."

"Since that night," she went on hurriedly, "my uncle has set himself to force me to marry Volney. He has persuaded, argued, and finally threatened. He has told me that unless I met his will in this matter I would be stripped and left penniless to face the world on my own account. It seems that he is given that power under my father's will. He has forbidden you the house. I feared that you would come, and that was mainly the reason I wrote you today. I was afraid—afraid for you."

Casson smiled. "But for the anxiety it has caused you, sweetheart," he said, "I could laugh. I am in no danger and would be in no danger even if I called. Your uncle is rather headstrong, I fancy, but, as a man nearly blind is incapable of doing harm to any one, save in a financial or political way. I have no money and am not a politician."

"He is a dreadful man, although my mother's brother," she said. "I have learned that since I saw you. During the years in which he has been my guardian I scarcely knew that he had a temper, but I tell you now that he is a demon. When I braved him to the last and finally told him—told him what I told you—he started toward me in his blind way, his face convulsed, and I believe would have struck me if he could have seen me clearly. Literally, froth came to his lips and he staggered as if about to fall. Involuntarily I thought of epilepsy. He recovered, however, and after saying again and again that I should marry Volney he felt his way from the room. I have not seen him since, but I know that he has given instructions to the man at the door to report the names of all visitors to him in his office as soon as they are shown into the drawing-room. That is for your benefit."

Casson was thinking deeply. The wildest speculations were darting through his brain. Strange things that he had read in medical books came to him, only to be instantly dismissed. He was acquainted, of course, as are all educated physicians, with hundreds of varying forms of insanity, but when he thought of the work Daniel Dreeme had done on the North Side, and was still doing; when he thought of the man's notorious power of organization and combination, the suspicion that he might be mentally unsound seemed absurd. He knew little of his sweetheart's uncle, but he felt a great desire to know more. It seemed to him imperative also that he should ascertain the secret of Volney's hold over the man, and thus arrive at the mainspring of his action in endeavoring to force his ward to marry against her will. So he said to her:

"What are your uncle's office hours, Marian?"

"I wish merely to see him and have an entirely peaceable talk with him," he answered. "Remember that he is blind and there can be no question of personal conflict between us. He has forbidden me his house, and when a man does that I must have his reason for it. Furthermore, I confess to an overweening desire to discover the tie which holds him to Volney, or Volney to him. This fellow is merely a cheap politician, and not especially able, even as a ward worker. He is not in your uncle's class. They are as different as a gentleman is always different from a cad. Yet Dreeme insists upon making this officeseeker a member of his family, handing over to him the most beautiful as well as one of the wealthiest maidens in Chicago. It is inexplicable until the key to the mystery is held in the hand. Your uncle has the key, and I want it."

"My uncle's office hours," said the girl, rather unwillingly, yet still obeying the superior mind, "are from 10 o'clock in the morning until noon, and from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 4. During that time he is always in his office and open to receive any and all visitors. Indeed, he does receive all sorts and conditions of men. He keeps no office boy. Those who wish to see him knock on the door which faces on the side street. If he says 'Come in!' they open the door and walk in. If he does not he is busy and they must wait their turn on the outside. I have been in his office only once in five years. I forget what took me there, but I met with so chilly a reception that I have never ventured since. That was nearly twelve months ago."

She described its interior with fidelity, but no detail of the furniture seemed to interest her hearer until she mentioned the safe. Then he waked into life in an instant.

"A large steel safe, you say? Almost as tall as you are? With 'Chilled Steel. Burglar Proof' on it? Where does it stand?"

She told him that it was next to the door which opened into the mansion proper. The full-length mirror let into the wall, which she next mentioned, seemed to interest him also. "A queer fancy, that," he said. "Hopes to recover his eyesight some day and wants to see himself the first thing. One would not suspect him of such a weakness."

"He has other weaknesses," Marian continued. "For instance, he is passionately fond of music, but likes only its deeper tones. He plays the 'cello well, but will not produce a note higher than the middle C on my piano. Shrillness, either of fife, piccolo, or flute sets him wild. If I know that he is within hearing somewhere about the house I play only bass chords. When he is in his office nothing seems to make any difference to him. He is busy with his politics then. He is a strange, strange man, and of late I have grown afraid of him. It did not use to be so, but he touched my hand by accident yesterday in passing and I shuddered, though I am sure I don't know why."

Casson had been listening intently, but now he said in a matter of fact way:

"That safe, Marian, contains the secret of Dreeme's support of Volney, the secret of his opposition to me, and the exact statement of the measure of his power over you and your fortune. This information I must have. I am going to ask you to show your love for me, and I believe I know you well enough to say now that you will do it. I want you to risk scandal by admitting me to the house with your own hands at 9 o'clock in the evening, previously sending the footman about his business. I want you to so arrange that I can have an hour in your uncle's office. I choose the night of the Congressional nominating convention, when he will be certain to be absent. I will see him tomorrow and get the lay of the land. I am the most law-abiding man in the world, but I am going to open your uncle's safe. If I am caught I will go to the penitentiary, probably, but I do not intend to get caught. Anyhow, the results to be obtained are worth the risk. One of those results, the most important of them, is you."

The girl had listened, wide-eyed and pale. Now she spoke: "I will prove my love in any honorable way, but I am afraid—afraid of the danger to you. Are there no other means?"

"None that I can see," he replied. "The safe holds the secrets, and I get at the secrets only by opening the safe. Shall I come on Friday night?"

She looked at him long and steadfastly. On the drive behind them the myriad lights of the bicycles were flashing to and fro. There was the steady noise of carriage wheels, the tramping of horses, and not infrequently bursts of laughter came to them. The happy, careless folk did not know that the final scene of a strange drama was approaching and that two of the chief actors in it stood within a stone's throw of them, oblivious to all the sights and sounds of pleasure's promenade. Marian bent toward Casson and laid both her hands in his:

"You may come," she said simply.

Champion Belgian Hare Here.

E. E. Gillen, Vice President of the American Belgian Hare company, arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon with the champion Belgian hare of the world, Palace King, winner of the Crystal Palace Cup at the Crystal Palace show in London, England, which closed on Nov. 14. Mr. Gillen also brings with him the second prize winner in the same class. Several men in England and from different parts of America wanted to secure these animals, Mr. Gillen says, but Chicago enterprise and money won.

Marquise de Fontenoy Letter.

Copyright, 1900, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.

DUKE ADOLPH of Mecklenburg-Schwerin has not taken long to console himself for his rejection by Queen Welhelmina of Holland and for her selection of his younger brother, Henry, as her consort. For his betrothal to Princess Feodora of Schleswig-Holstein, youngest sister of the German Empress, has just been announced.

Princess Feodora might have become Queen of Italy in the place of Princess Helene of Montenegro had she consented to abandon the Lutheran Church and to become a Roman Catholic. But her religious principles were too strong, and she declined to comply with the wishes of her brother-in-law, the Kaiser, or to lend herself to his political and dynastic aims in the matter.

Instead she accepted an offer of marriage from Duke Frederick of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and was his betrothed at the time when he lost his life through the foundering with all on board of the torpedo boat which he commanded in a gale off Kiel. She was generally believed to have vowed herself to a life of celibacy in his memory. But time seems to have softened her grief, and she has now accepted his brother, Duke Adolph, one of the best known gentleman riders of flat races and steeplechases on the continent. He is good-looking, far more so, indeed, than his brother Henry, while his fiancée is certainly less comely than Queen Wilhelmina.

The match, however, will serve to strengthen the bonds of relationship between the courts of Berlin and The Hague, for the German Empress' sister will become through her marriage to Duke Adolph the sister-in-law of Queen Wilhelmina.

The projected marriage does not, however, meet with the approval of superstitious people in Germany, who insist that marriages where the bride has been previously betrothed to the dead brother of the bridegroom are predestined to unhappiness, and should be forbidden by the church in precisely the same way as are matrimonial alliances between widowers and their dead wives' sisters, or else between widows and their dead husbands' brithers. The marriage of the Duke and Duchess of York was a match of this kind, the Duchess having previously been the fiancée of the Duke's elder brother, Prince Edward, Duke of Clarence, and it was precisely on this account that during the early months of the York marriage that the Princess of Wales showed such a marked aversion for her daughter-in-law as to excite public comment.

Yet her own sister, the now widowed Empress of Russia, contracted a marriage of the same kind, having previously been affianced to the elder brother of her husband—namely: the Czarevitch Nicholas, who died at Nice. The Czarina, who bore at the time the name of Princess Dagmar, was herself averse to marrying the younger brother of her dead fiancé, but was virtually compelled to accept his hand on political and dynastic grounds. At first the marriage was extremely unhappy, so much so that at one time there were even rumors of a separation, both Princess Dagmar and her husband excusing their distaste for one another's society on the ground that they always seemed to see the specter of Prince Nicholas hovering between them.

In the Parliamentary session of 1895 three young members of the English House of Commons drafted and submitted to the Legislature a measure which they described as the "Perrs disabilities removal bill," destined to remove the obstacles which now exist to the retention of seats in the House of Commons by persons succeeding to the peerage, and making provision to enable them to decide themselves whether on their succession to a peerage they will assume that succession along with its seat in the House of Lords., or else forego it in order to remain members of the House of Commons.

The reason which prompted the three originators of this bill—all three of them sons of peers—to put forward the measure in question was that they feared that their succession to their fathers' honors and elevation to the House of Lords would destroy their otherwise promising political careers, and that even the knowledge they were liable at any moment to be thus deprived of their seats in the House of Commons was calculated to seriously injure their political prospects.

The three members in question bore the names of George Nathaniel Curzon, St. John Brodrick, and William Palmer, by courtesy Lord Wolmer. The last named of the three, in spite of his having succeeded to his father's peerage and seat in the House of Lords as Earl of Selborne, is today, at the age of a little over 40, First Lord of the Admiralty and Minister of the British Navy. The second, St. John Brodrick, is, at the age of 45, a member of the Privy Council and Secretary of State for War, while George Nathaniel Curzon, after being invested with an Irish peerage and title, which enables him to sit in the House of Lords if he wishes, is now filling the magnificent and lucrative office of Viceroy of India, with salary and allowances five times as large as those received by the President of the United States. From this the conclusion may be drawn that after all, in spite of the former arguments of Messrs. Curzon, Brodrick, and Lord Wolmer, the fact of being the eldest son of a peer does not necessarily wreck, ruin, and blast the political and official future of ambitious youths.

In reply to an inquiry received from Washington I would say that the first Napoleon's son, who figures in history as Napoleon II., as King of Rome, and as Duke of Reichstadt, and in drama as "L'Aiglon," never at any time was known by the title of "Prince of Peace." This was a dignity conferred upon Godoy, the disreputable favorite of Queen Marie Louise of Spain. There are few names in Spanish history that are more profoundly execrated than that of this infamous "Prince of Peace," who was driven from Spain, retired to Rome, subsequently dying at Paris in such penury that he was a dependent upon the charity of King Louis Philippe. His descendants have wisely abandoned the title of "Prince of Peace" in favor of the Roman title of "Princes of Bassano," having no connection, however, with the French ducal house of Bassano which figured so prominently at the courts of the first and third Napoleon.

One of Godoy's daughters became the wife of the Prince Ernest of Looz et Corswarem, a scion of the ducal and formerly sovereign house of that name. She died under restraint as a lunatic, and it is her son Charles who, after being indicted in half the countries of Europe for swindling (his victims being principally American), was finally tried for a long series of frauds at Brussels, and although convicted, was nevertheless exempted from punishment on the ground that he was a lunatic, and that insanity was hereditary in his family.

Strictly speaking, the descendants of Godoy are the only people who have any right to the title of "Prince" or "Princess" in Spain, with the exception of the heir to the throne, who bears the title of "Prince or Princess of the Asturias," the remaining members of the royal family being either Infants or Infantas, but not possessed of the princely title.

SPEAKS FOR FAMILY PRIDE.

Professor George E. Vincent of the University of Chicago, in an address on "The Functions of Family Pride" before the Englewood Women's club yesterday, declared that there was not enough of it among Americans. He deplored the tendency of families to separate and live individual lives and to turn over the instruction of children to public institutions.

The professor deplored this condition in the home and advocated more home teaching for children.

"The function of the family pride," he said, "is to see that the lives and actions of the older members correspond to the precepts which are taught the children. It is no use trying to inject abstract virtues into a child. It must have living examples, and if it does not it will follow and adopt the wrong ones it encounters."

Although they were low the figures seemed to be the best of the session, as the liquidating process continued in full sway to the close. The South sent strong orders in great number, and Wall street dumped over many thousands of bales which shorts, desiring profits, were unable to absorb. There seemed to be no cotton in sight, and while occasional five-point rallies occurred the general tendency of the market was steadily downward.

In the early afternoon the last hopes of the bulls were swept away by estimates for large receipts for New Orleans and Houston tomorrow, and by advices that the Southern markets were easier and 1-16c to ¼c lower. The New Orleans speculative market presented a weak front, and on every hand were evidences that supporters of cotton were retreating, while the bears were momentarily gaining strength. MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

THE MOST DESIRABLE
Experts say its mechanical construction is perfect.
It is made in factories more than double the size and output of any similar institution in the world.
It is sold direct to the people at one fair factory margin, and without added profits of middlemen and Eastern branch houses.
IT IS THE BEST PIANO VALUE IN THE WORLD.

SECRETARY LONG TELLS OF NAVY.

AID WAS NEAR AT HAND.

SUMMARY OF YEAR'S WORK.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—Secretary of the Navy John D. Long has prepared his annual report, in which the operations in Oriental waters and lands are given first place. He starts out with a reference to the cordiality which has characterized the relations of the army and navy and then says:

"In view of the disturbed conditions in Asiatic waters and of the demands upon the navy, the department early in the year deemed it expedient to augment the force in that quarter. The Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic station, Rear Admiral Remey, was accordingly given an assistant, Rear Admiral Kempff, to insure under command of an officer of rank and experience a division of the fleet, if necessary, in quarters distant from the Philippines. Almost immediately thereafter circumstances made it necessary to maintain a separate force in Chinese waters, and the junior Rear Admiral was ordered to proceed with a squadron to Taku, China.

"When, therefore, an appeal for help came from the legations at Pekin, this government not only had an adequate naval force at the nearest seaport town but also was able to send forward immediately a force of marines for the protection of the United States Legation. The small marine guard assigned to this duty under the command of Captain John T. Myers consisted of fifty-six officers and men, made up of detachments from the U. S. S. Oregon and Newark. They reached the Chinese capital in the latter part of May, only a short time before the representatives and citizens of foreign countries in that city were subjected to siege and cut off from communication with the rest of the world.

Siege of Legations.

"The annals of history present few examples of more dramatic interest than the story of the beleaguered legations in Pekin, from June 20, 1900, the date on which the German Minister was killed and the siege began, until Aug. 14, when the allied forces entered the Chinese capital. Official and unofficial reports, and particularly the dispatches of our Minister, show that the American marines bore their full share in the burdens of defense during this memorable siege. The United States legation was situated just inside of and near to the wall of the Tartar city. When the legations were assaulted the American detachment immediately occupied a position on the city wall, a strategic point of great importance; established an improvised sandbag fort there, which enabled them to defend the section of wall immediately commanding the legations, and, although repeatedly attacked by overwhelming numbers, and on two occasions driven for a few minutes from the wall, they were never permanently dislodged, but held this vital position until relief came."

Seymour Praises McCalla.

The report then deals with the unsuccessful attempt by Admiral Seymour of the British navy to relieve the legations in Pekin, and quotes from a letter written by the British Admiral praising Captain B. H. McCalla, U. S. N., for his gallantry on that expedition.

Secretary Long then takes up the campaign around Tien Tsin, of which he says:

"To record the instances of gallantry displayed by our officers and men at the capture of Tien Tsin would almost be equivalent to a publication of the entire roster.

"The Chinese stronghold at Tien Tsin was captured early on the morning of July 14; on the same day systematic attacks upon the beleagured legations at Pekin ceased; an informal truce was arranged at the instance of the Tsung li Yamen; communication between the besieged and the outside world was partially reopened; the legations were offered certain supplies by the Chinese authorities, and, although subjected to desultory attacks from time to time and to a fierce final assault on the night of Aug. 13, were on the following day relieved by the entrance into Pekin of the allied forces.

"During the time of these events both Rear Admirals were in Chinese waters. Their prudence and efficiency are highly commendable."

More Officers Needed.

"This need will be still greater when vessels authorized or building are completed and ready for commission. The report of the Bureau of Navigation represents that it would be impossible at the present time to man our available fleet were an emergency to occur demanding such action. Attention is earnestly invited to detailed suggestions of this report and to the statement that with the completion of vessels now under construction an immediate increase will be needed in the enlisted force of not less than 5,000 men.

"For many years it has been found difficult to enlist a sufficient number of the seamen class to supply the demand. To obviate this difficulty the department decided to train its own seamen from raw material, and during the last year has assigned five vessels to the special duty of fitting landsmen between the ages of 21 and 26 for the higher naval ratings.

"This method differs from that of the apprentice system, in that it opens the door to the enlistment and immediate training of young men who possess little or no nautical knowledge or sea experience, and gives them an opportunity to acquire the habit of the sea and a knowledge of the practical mechanical appliances which are found on board the modern man-of-war. This has been carried out during the last year to a greater degree than ever before, and the experiment has been successful.

Shore Duty "Beyond Seas."

Attention is called to the act providing that when naval officers are detailed for shore duties "beyond seas" they shall receive the same pay and allowances as army officers doing similar duty. The report proceeds:

"It has been held by the accounting officers of the Treasury—contrary, it seems to this department, to the spirit and to the familiar interpretation of the letter of the statute—that Porto Rico, the Hawaiian Islands, Guam, and the Philippines, because they are now a part of our own territory, are therefore not 'beyond seas' within the meaning of the statute above quoted. Consequently, officers serving in those islands do not receive the same pay as officers of the army doing similar duty, but receive the same pay as if serving on shore within the continental limits of the United States—that is, 85 per cent of their sea pay. Further, this decision is retroactive in its effect, and it will accordingly be necessary to check against officers who have rendered service within the island possessions of the United States, and who have received full pay therefor, the difference between sea and shore pay for the entire period of such service.

Recommends Change in Law.

"Believing that it was the intention of Congress to place naval officers assigned to such duty upon an equal footing with army officers similarly situated, it is recommended that the statute be so amended as to afford the desired relief.

"In this connection attention is invited to the hardships suffered by officers and men of the Marine Corps detailed to shore duty in Guam or in China. The army appropriation act, approved May 26, 1900, provides that 10 per cent additional pay shall be given to officers and 20 per cent additional pay to enlisted men serving in Porto Rico, Cuba, the Philippine Islands, Hawaii, and the Territory of Alaska. This provision is applicable to the Marine Corps, but, being specific in its terms, is limited to the places designated, and is not operative elsewhere. Consequently, officers and men of the Marine Corps who were sent to Guam or China from Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, or Alaska lost the increased pay given by the act of May 26, notwithstanding the fact that they were subjected to the additional expense and hardships attendant upon foreign service. It is urged that this provision also be amended."

New Ships and Construction.

Vessels finally or conditionally accepted since the last report are the battleships Alabama, Kearsarge, and Kentucky, protected cruiser Albany, and torpedo boats T. A. M. Craven and Dahlgren. The battleship Illinois is 86 per cent completed and will be ready for service on Aug. 1, 1901. The battleship Wisconsin 97 per cent completed on Nov. 1 and is expected to be finished by Nov. 30.

Dry Dock for Philippines.

A dry dock capable of accommodating the largest vessels is recommended for the Philippine Islands. In this connection it is said:

"Aside from direct considerations of economy and convenience, it is important that this government should have under its own control, and always at command, in time of war as well as of peace, sufficient docking facilities to meet the requirements of the fleet in far Eastern waters. The department has, accordingly, appointed a board to examine into and report, for submission to Congress, upon the best and most available site for a naval station and dry dock in the Philippine Islands.

"The steel floating dry dock now under construction by the Maryland Steel company for use at Algiers, La., will, it is reported, be completed and ready to be towed to its destination by May or June next, when favorable weather for its passage may be expected. This dock is interesting as the largest of the class of floating dry docks in the world."

The health of the navy and marine corps is referred to as being satisfactory, though, owing to deaths from gunshot wounds, the mortality rate from injuries was somewhat greater than usual. Regarding the naval academy, attention is invited to the report of the Board of Visitors, particularly with reference to the age limit of cadets and the period of probation.

For National Reserve.

The report has the following to say in reference to Naval Militia:

"The department last year gave the various State Naval Militias, which are an important element in the general scheme of national defense, a tour of duty on board ship, with the object of so instructing them in man-of-war routine and duties as to enable them upon the outbreak of war to have sufficient knowledge to be of practical use on our naval vessels. The same facilities were again offered this year, although some of the State organizations failed to take advantage of them.

"Although the seafaring class of our people is a comparatively large one, it is not now brought into touch with the naval service and the Navy department in time of peace in such manner as to instruct and prepare any part of it for assistance to the regular service in case of a sudden outbreak of war. Means should be provided to this end, and the matter should receive the immediate attention of Congress and provision made, as recommended in my last annual report, for enrolling, in addition to the Naval Militia, which is an organization of the States and under their regulation, a naval reserve of a national character, which shall be under the call and general direction of the Navy department."

In a comparative statement of estimates and appropriations it is shown that the total appropriations for 1901 are $65,130,916. The estimates for 1902 amount to $87,172,630.

Increase in Navy.

Battleships, 2; armored cruisers, 2; gunboats, 6; destroyers, 2; torpedo boats, 3; transport, 1; training ships, 2.

Medals for Bravery.

Secretary Long recommends that in place of the present system of promotion by numbers for heroism, which operates to advance certain officers over the heads of others, that the law be changed so as to make the reward for conspicuous service a medal, as provided for in a bill already awaiting the action of the House. The report concludes:

"The last year has been so prolific of such examples that, while the enumeration of them in detail is here impracticable, the department calls special attention to the official reports in which they appear. They are found in every line of the naval service, not only in battle, which makes service conspicuous, but on the voyage, in watches along the coast, in expeditions to distant islands, in the trying responsibilities of command often unaided and alone, in the unmartial work of transportation, in hospital and on station, in surveys and soundings, in instruction and discipline, in the inestimably valuable preparatory work of the bureaus and navy yards, and in all the shifting variety of exacting duties in which service, if not conspicuous, is none the less deserving and is rendered with a zeal, loyalty, and ability as heroic in the homely routine of commonplace as when exhibited on the field of glory. There is no finer type of the public servant trained to high sense of his official obligations, and no hand in which the honor of his country and the rights of its citizens are safer, than are to be found in the navy of the United States."

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

If rates and good practices are to be maintained in Illinois through the efforts of union and nonunion specials it will be only by the conscientious principles of each individual agent to lend his moral aid and assistance to companies to avert a rate war. Managers of a number of union companies are credited with putting a stop to any plan of a definite agreement where non-union specials in the Illinois Field club would have an equal voice in the operation and maintaining of rates and the carrying out of definite lines of operation and practices on a coöperative plan in Illinois.

The Illinois State board met in special session yesterday, and, after some discussion, decided to discharge the Committee on Coöperation, which has met several times jointly with a similar committee from the Field club. The committee was composed of Henry Fowler of the Home, W. E. Vandeventer of the Ætna, and H. N. Kelsey of the Norwich Union. This action is considered significant as pointing to a policy of leaving the non-union specials to shift for themselves and "supporting all the rates they feel like and all the good rules they choose," as one of the union men tersely put it after the meeting. The regular monthly meeting of the State board will be held on next Monday, but the decision reached lays the plan of official coöperation aside for the moment.

San Francisco advices state Gordon & Fraser have been appointed general agents for the Pacific coast for the Traders' Fire Insurance company of Chicago. Assistant Secretary S. A. Rothermel left here several weeks ago for San Francisco to arrange for a successor to Charles A. Laton, who also represented the Palatine. It is believed here that the new appointment is a salaried one, although no definite advices on the subject have been received.

The Guaranty Fund Life case in Judge Chetlain's court has gone over until tomorrow morning.

William B. Risse of the Supreme Court of Honor, a fraternal insurance organization, with headquarters at Springfield, Ill., is in the city.

Jacob H. Wachenheimer of Peoria, President of the Illinois Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents, is in Chicago to attend the meeting of the Executive committee, called together to discuss the prospect of legislation in behalf of insurance interests to be introduced at the next General Assembly.

G. C. Stebbins of Marseilles, who has been acting as Assistant Secretary, has been given the office of manager, and hereafter will give the greater part of his time to the duties of this office. Mr. Stebbins has had an offer to take the State agency of a large insurance company, but refused it until his services and time are not needed by the local agents.

Official notification is being sent out by Central Managers Marshall and McElhone of the change in name of the Home Mutual of California to that of the Home Fire and Marine, to take place on Jan. 1, 1901.

Thomas A. Temple & Sons have resigned the management of the Victoria-Montreal, which has been having difficulty over unpaid claims, and a readjustment of the company is now proposed.

LAKE SHIPPING NEWS.

Freights and Charters.

CHICAGO—Best rates paid on grain were 2½ cents on corn. This figure was offered at the close of business, and will probably hold as the going rate. Vesselmen are getting to be afraid of contract grade corn on account of the corner now running to an end in that cereal. There are so many disputes over inspection that boats are experiencing serious delays. Charters reported were: To Buffalo—Armour, Neosho, Linn, Wyoming, Black Rock, corn. To Erie—Helena, corn.

CLEVELAND, O.—Owners of boats ready for coal cargoes are holding for 75 cents to the head of the lakes and the leading Lake Michigan ports. That rate was paid to Manitowoc, and one boat was placed for the Soo at $1. Boats are scarce and the feeling is strong. Duluth grain shippers are bidding for boats to hold cargoes at Buffalo. Charters: Coal—Ranney, Fairport to Sault, $1; Siberia, Sandusky to Manitowoc, 75 cents. Wheat—Gladstone, Duluth to Owen Sound.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

CLAIMS OF EAST-BOUND ROADS AT VARIANCE WITH FIGURES.

Assertions Made That They Are Doing an Enormous Business Are Controverted by Statement Given Out by the Board of Trade—No Doubt Entertained That Rates on Grain Are Being Secretly Cut—General News of Railroads.

The claim of the Chicago east-bound roads that they are doing an enormous business and could do more if they had cars enough is not borne out by the statement of last week's east-bound shipments, issued by the Board of Trade yesterday.

According to this statement shipments of flour, grain, and provisions were exceedingly light. The Erie and Nickel Plate roads again carried the bulk of the grain business. The Pennsylvania lines did better than usual, but all the other roads made an exceedingly poor showing.

No doubt is entertained that rates on grain are being secretly cut from three to five cents per hundred pounds, and the cut on provision rates is said to be still larger. The Baltimore and Ohio took out only 41,000 bushels of grain, yet a dispatch from Pittsburg says freight traffic on this road is so heavy these days that the yards at Cumberland and Pittsburg are frequently blockaded. On the Chicago division, the dispatch says, the rush of freight is tremendous. If this is true it would indicate that the Baltimore and Ohio gets its business from other points than Chicago.

Following is a detailed statement of shipments of flour, grain, and provisions from Chicago to the East by the all-rail lines last week:

	Flour, brls.	Grain, bu.	Prov'ns, tons.
Big Four	3,362	14,000	898
Michigan Central	1,542	81,000	542
Lake Shore	4,637	28,000	3,072
Fort Wayne	6,360	100,000	1,349
Panhandle	5,550	113,000	3,292
Baltimore and Ohio	8,225	41,000	2,246
Grand Trunk	1,384	83,000	4,415
Nickel Plate	6,126	191,000	2,811

For Interchangeable Tickets.

General passenger agents of the roads having lines west of the Missouri River left here last evening to attend a meeting at Kansas City today, the object of which is to consider the proposition to issue interchangeable mileage tickets in transmissouri territory of the Western Passenger association.

The advisability of issuing such tickets is conceded, but there is quite a diversity of opinion as to the manner in which it is to be done. Interchangeable mileage tickets covering 2,000 miles, at two cents a mile, have been sold for several years by the lines east of the Missouri River. Some of these want the system extended to the Rocky Mountains, and would sell 4,000 mile tickets instead of 2,000 miles.

This has been met with great opposition on the part of other roads, who contend that it would be an injustice to small merchants and jobbers to buy 4,000 mile tickets when the chances are that they will never be able to use so much mileage during the year, or compel them to pay the full tariff rate of three cents a mile. The failure of an attempt of the lines east of Chicago to sell 5,000 mile tickets is pointed out as a warning against making the denomination 4,000 miles by the Western roads.

A proposition will be considered at Kansas City to issue an interchangeable mileage ticket of 2,000 miles, to be good only between the Missouri River and Colorado points, independent of the tickets sold by the lines east of the Missouri River. If this proposition goes through there will be no further contention regarding the matter.

St. Paul to Issue Bonds.

It was announced yesterday that the directors of the Milwaukee and St. Paul had decided to issue $3,000,000 of new bonds, to provide the means for improvements. The officials of the road say the money is to be used for the physical improvements of the present lines and to provide for additional equipment, which is badly needed on account of the steadily increasing business of the road. A large amount of double tracking is also to be done, but no new extensions of any importance are contemplated.

Railway Notes.

Since the acquisition of the New Jersey and Long Island railroad, the Pennsylvania now leads in mileage and goes ahead of the New York Central or Vanderbilt system.

The Alton gave notice yesterday that it will place on sale one way settlers' rates from all points on its lines in Illinois to points in the Southeast authorized by the Southeastern Passenger association, on the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

During the last two weeks more than 12,672,000 tie plates have been put down on the railroads of this country, and millions will be put down next year. The tie plate is a new feature of railway construction made necessary on account of the scarcity of good tie timber and the increased cost of ties.

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Railway Passenger and Freight Conductors' Mutual Aid and Benefit association will be held at the Briggs House, Chicago, commencing on Nov. 28 at 10 a. m. At the close of the session on Thursday, Nov. 29, the delegates will go over the Illinois Central to St. Louis and there join the Conductors' Insurance association and go on a special Pullman train to Tampa, Fla., and from there to Havana, Cuba. The party will then return to Chicago.

The village hall at Grossdale was destroyed by fire at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning, causing a loss of over $5,000. The fire started from some unknown cause, but it is believed a defective flue from the furnace is responsible for the destruction of the building.

The excitement in Grossdale during the progress of the fire was intense. The village has only a volunteer fire company. The building will be reconstructed probably at once.

The Pine Manufacturing company lumber yards at Blue Island were destroyed by fire shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday morning, entailing a loss of $10,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. About 100,000 feet of lumber, a few small buildings, and some machinery were destroyed.
